1. OSNOVNE INFORMACIJE O ISPITU IZ ENGLESKOGA JEZIKA

1.1. Područja ispitivanja

Ispitom iz Engleskoga jezika na višoj razini provjerava se komunikacijska jezična kompetencija u čitanju, pisanju i slušanju prema nastavnom planu i programu Engleskoga jezika za gimnazije. Ispit iz Engleskoga jezika sastoji se od triju ispitnih cjelina: Čitanje, Slušanje i Pisanje.

Čitanje - Ovom se ispitnom cjelinom ispituje sposobnost samostalnog čitanja s razumijevanjem raznovrsnih autentičnih ili u manjoj mjeri prilagođenih pisanih tekstova i provjeravaju se znanja i vještine na receptivnoj razini. Ispituje se može li pristupnik u pisanome tekstu različite dužine:

- odrediti osnovni smisao teksta
- utvrditi glavne misli
- razlikovati pojedine informacije
- zaključiti iz implicitne poruke
- utvrditi logičke i složenije značenjske veze u tekstu
- predvidjeti sadržaj na temelju jezičnog ustroja teksta

Zastupljene teme i jezični sadržaji preuzeti su iz predmetnoga kurikuluma.

Slušanje - Ovom se ispitnom cjelinom ispituju vještine globalnog, selektivnog i detaljnog razumijevanja slušanoga teksta izgovorenoga razgovijetnim standardnim jezikom.
Ispituje se može li pristupnik u govorenome tekstu različite dužine:

- odrediti osnovni smisao teksta
- utvrditi glavne misli
- razlikovati pojedine informacije
- zaključiti iz implicitne poruke

Zastupljene teme i jezični sadržaji preuzeti su iz predmetnoga kurikuluma.

Pisanje - Ovom se ispitnom cjelinom ispituju znanja i vještine produktivne djelatnosti pisanja u skladu sa zadanim kontekstom i svrhom komunikacijske situacije.
Ispituje se može li pristupnik:

- u skladu s tekstnom vrstom razviti zadanu temu prema sadržajnim odrednicama, obrazložiti gledišta i potkrijepiti argumente pojašnjenjima ili primjerima
- u skladu s tekstnom vrstom smisleno i logički organizirati rečenice i odlomke u tekstu te se pritom koristi uobičajenim načinima i sredstvima za povezivanje i strukturiranje teksta
- upotrijebiti prikladne i pravopisno ispravne leksičke strukture
- ispravno upotrijebiti složenije gramatičke strukture

1.2. Struktura ispita

1.2.1. Čitanje

Ova ispitna cjelina sastoji se od 5 skupina zadataka (tasks) vezanih uz različite pisane polazne tekstove.
Tekstovi su autentični, izvorno napisani ili preuzeti iz različitih izvora poput novina, časopisa, knjiga, brošura, interneta itd. i prilagođeni. Tematski su bliski dobi, iskustvima i interesima učenika. Jasni su sadržajno i strukturno, osobito tekstovi na temelju kojih se provjerava gramatička i leksička kompetencija učenika. Mogu, međutim, sadržavati riječi i izraze čije se prepoznavanje ne traži na toj razini, ali samo ako te riječi i izrazi nisu ključni za razumijevanje teksta i uspješno rješavanje zadatka.
Za svaki ispitivani ishod navedeno je kojom će se vrstom zadataka ispitivati, na kojoj vrsti polaznog teksta te koliko je zadataka vezano uz te tekstove.

Tablica 1. Struktura ispitne cjeline Čitanje

	ISPITIVANI ISHODI	VRSTE ZADATAKA	VRSTE TEKSTOVA	BROJ ZADATAKA
1.	razlikovati pojedine informacije, zaključiti iz implicitne poruke	zadatak povezivanja	vrlo kratki pripovjedni tekstovi povezani u tematsku cjelinu	12
2.	odrediti osnovni smisao, razlikovati pojedine informacije, zaključiti iz implicitne poruke	zadatak višestrukoga izbora (između četiriju ponuđenih odgovora)	dug pripovjedni ili obavijesni tekst	6
3.	utvrditi logičke i složenije značenjske veze u tekstu	kombinirani zadatak povezivanja i dopunjavanja rečenicama	dug opisni ili obavijesni tekst	6

4.	predvidjeti prikladne leksičke i gramatiče strukture na temelju leksičkoga ustroja teksta	kombinirani zadatak višestrukoga izbora (između četiriju ponuđenih odgovora) i dopunjavanja	srednje dug opisni ili obavijesni tekst	8
5.	predvidjeti prikladne leksičke i gramatiče strukture na temelju leksičkoga ustroja teksta	kombinirani zadatak povezivanja i dopunjavanja riječima	srednje dug opisni ili obavijesni tekst	8

Napomena: Tekstovi u ispitnoj cjelini Čitanje sadrže od 2350 do 2450 riječi.

1.2.2. Pisanje

Ova ispitna cjelina sadrži jedan zadatak esejskog tipa.
Pristupnik treba oblikovati pisani tekst od 200 do 250 riječi o zadanoj temi.

Tablica 2. Struktura ispitne cjeline Pisanje

	ISPITIVANI ISHODI	VRSTA ZADATKA	VRSTA TEKSTA	BROJ ZADATAKA
1.	• u skladu s tekstnom vrstom razviti zadanu temu prema sadržajnim odrednicama te obrazložiti gledišta i potkrijepiti argumente pojašnjenjima ili primjerima • u skladu s tekstnom vrstom smisleno i logički organizirati rečenice i odlomke u tekstu te se pritom koristiti uobičajenim načinima i sredstvima za povezivanje i strukturiranje teksta • upotrijebiti prikladne i pravopisno ispravne leksičke strukture • ispravno upotrijebiti složenije gramatičke strukture	oblikovati dug i složen pisani tekst (od 200 do 250 riječi)	raspravljački esej (eng. Argumentative ili for and against essay)	1

1.2.3. Slušanje

Ova ispitna cjelina sastoji se od četiriju skupina zadataka vezanih za različite izgovorene polazne tekstove.
Vrste tekstova uključuju razne oblike kratkih govornih i razgovornih, opisnih, obavijesnih i pripovjednih tekstnih vrsta poput razgovora i rasprava, intervjua, izlaganja, predavanja, izvještaja, referata, kratkih literarnih tekstova, biografskih prikaza, reportaža, vijesti, obavijesti, poruka i slično. Tekstovi su autentični, izvorno napisani ili prilagođeni. Govore ih jedan ili više izvornih govornika standardnim engleskim jezikom. Tematski su bliski ciljanoj dobnoj skupini učenika, a govore o poznatim ili relativno poznatim, konkretnim ili apstraktnim temama.
Za svaki ispitivani ishod navedeno je kojom će se vrstom zadatka ispitivati, na kojoj vrsti polaznog teksta te koliko je zadataka vezano za te tekstove.

Tablica 3. Struktura ispitne cjeline Slušanje

	ISPITIVANI ISHODI	VRSTE ZADATAKA	VRSTE TEKSTOVA	BROJ ZADATAKA
1.	odrediti osnovni smisao teksta, utvrditi glavne misli, zaključiti iz implicitne poruke	zadatak povezivanja	vrlo kratki govorni tekstovi	5
2.	odrediti osnovni smisao teksta, razlikovati pojedine informacije, zaključiti iz implicitne poruke	zadatak višestrukoga izbora (između triju ponuđenih odgovora)	kratki govorni i razgovorni tekstovi	8
3.	odrediti osnovni smisao teksta, razlikovati pojedine informacije, zaključiti iz implicitne poruke	zadatak višestrukoga povezivanja	srednje dug tekst	6
4.	odrediti osnovni smisao teksta, razlikovati pojedine informacije, zaključiti iz implicitne poruke	zadatak višestrukoga izbora (između triju ponuđenih odgovora)	srednje dug tekst (predavanje, izlaganje, izvještaj, intervju i sl.)	6

Napomena: Tekstovi u ispitnoj cjelini Slušanje sadržavaju približno 1850 riječi.

1.3. Trajanje ispita

Ispit iz Engleskoga jezika traje ukupno 180 minuta. Ispitna cjelina Čitanje traje ukupno 70 minuta, ispitna cjelina Slušanje traje približno 35 minuta uključujući i 5 minuta za označavanje odgovora na listu za odgovore dok ispitna cjelina Pisanje traje 75 minuta.
Ispit nije moguće položiti ako se ne pristupi svim trima cjelinama ispita.

PRIBOR
Tijekom pisanja svih dijelova ispita iz Engleskoga jezika dopuštena je upotreba samo kemijske olovke kojom se piše plavom ili crnom bojom i koja se ne može brisati, a nije dopuštena upotreba korektora ni rječnika.

1.4. Opis bodovanja

Ukupan broj bodova u ispitu iz Engleskoga jezika na višoj razini je 85. Ostvareni bodovi u svakoj od triju ispitnih cjelina čine određeni udio (1/3) u ukupnome rezultatu.

ISPITNA CJELINA	BROJ BODOVA	UDIO
Slušanje	25	1/3
Pisanje	20	1/3
UKUPNO	85	1

1.4.1. Bodovanje ispitne cjeline Čitanje
Svako pitanje ima jedan točan odgovor. Svaki točno označen odgovor na listu za odgovore donosi jedan bod. Ova ispitna cjelina donosi ukupno 40 bodova.

1.4.2. Bodovanje ispitne cjeline Slušanje
Svako pitanje ima jedan točan odgovor. Svaki točno označen odgovor na listu za odgovore donosi jedan bod. Ova ispitna cjelina donosi ukupno 25 bodova.

Važno je pozorno pročitati tekst općih uputa i tekst uputa za rješavanje zadataka i označavanje točnih odgovora.

1.4.3. Bodovanje ispitne cjeline Pisanje
Ova ispitna cjelina donosi ukupno 20 bodova.

Esej se boduje prema ljestvici koja uključuje četiri osnovna kriterija:
1. Izvršenje zadatka
2. Koherencija i kohezija
3. Vokabular i
4. Gramatika.

Po svakome kriteriju moguće je dobiti maksimalno 5 bodova.

READING PAPER

Task 1 (Questions 1-12)

You are going to read an article in which people talk about the blogs they write. For each question (1-12), choose one person from A-F. There is an example at the beginning (0→A).

Bloggers

A Anna

I started blogging when I was 14 years old. At the age of 16 I began my own magazine, Prize. I tend to blog about my personal style, shopping trips, Prize itself and my inspirations. I get countless emails a day from readers, but the malicious comments are few and far between. If I ever do receive one it just gets deleted right away. It's not worth my time, as I'm concentrating on the quality of my work, sharing my likes and dislikes and getting more advertising money from mainstream companies.

B Ben

I'm a weightlifter, photographer, and world traveller. I also write blogs that blend together scientific research and the biographies of important figures. I enjoy passing on their tips on how to build habits that can improve your well-being. Actually, I'm often reviewing their texts or books, but what makes my blog unique is the selection of authors I choose to write about and my style. I like my posts to be relaxing but to include lots of useful details. And the technical aspects of starting a blog don't have to be time-consuming at all. I've found the whole experience very easy-going and rewarding.

C Cate

When I started back in 2014, I didn't think much about my age – I never felt intimidated or out of my depth while blogging about politics, and had always done my homework properly before writing. But then some bloggers couldn't believe I was 'only' 15 and gave me a hard time in their comments. I was offended they were assuming a teenager couldn't be an authority on politics. At the time, I even considered blogging about something else. As I moved into my college years, though, the tough schedule made me devote more of my time to studying politics.

D Damon

Biscuit Bob is my healthy vegetarian food blog. If it just stopped there, it would be enough. But it's more than that, because I've also incorporated stories and photos of my dog Bob. Cute dog photos will melt almost anyone's heart, so using them in your blog can be a fun way to stand out. My example proves that by posting vegetarian food recipes with a little creativity, you can create a prizewinning food and recipe brand. And this applies to all blogging subject areas. It's hard to imagine that initially exposing myself like this made me feel really uncomfortable, and it took time to figure out what I wanted to blog about.

E Ellen

There was no grand design when I started blogging 14 months ago; I just wanted to write about music, film and lifestyle. It took me some time to get the blog up and running and I mostly concentrated on film reviews because that's what really interested me. For ages no one read it, but then I was noticed by the national press, worked on my design and promotion and now I get roughly 30,000 unique hits a month. But I can't see myself doing this indefinitely. I'd sooner be a film director than a critic.

F Frank

I'd say my blog is a longstanding and powerful one and is making readers live simpler, healthier and more mindful lives. I myself went from being depressed, stressed, unhealthy, and dissatisfied with my life and former job – to running a marathon, getting up early every morning, and writing each day. It didn't happen overnight though. Rather, it came because I was able to slowly change my habits and ultimately my work and my life. This is a blog to read whenever you're feeling anxious, lonely or sad. It advises you to keep it simple, slow down, and just breathe.

Which person...

0 began blogging when they were 14? → A

1 blogs less than they used to? C
2 won an award for their work? D
3 had their blog recognised by major newspapers? E
4 had a job they didn't like? F
5 started a publication? A
6 ignores negative feedback? A
7 didn't get any attention at first? C
8 says it doesn't take long to set up a blog? B
9 shares other people's advice in their blog? B
10 felt under pressure to change their field of interest? C
11 didn't enjoy blogging at the beginning? D
12 is planning a change of career? E

Task 2 (Questions 13-18)
Read the text below. For each question (13-18), choose the correct answer (A, B, C or D).

The history of infectious diseases

In terms of infectious diseases, a pandemic is the worst case scenario. When an epidemic spreads beyond a country's borders, the disease officially becomes a pandemic. Although infectious diseases existed during humankind's hunter-gatherer days, it was the shift to agrarian life, about 10,000 years ago, which created communities that made epidemics possible. Malaria, tuberculosis, influenza, smallpox and others first appeared during this period.

As we became more civilised, built more cities, forged trade routes to connect with other cities, and of course waged wars, the more likely pandemics became. The earliest recorded pandemic happened during the Peloponnesian War, in Athens in 430 BC. After the disease had passed through Libya, Ethiopia and Egypt, it crossed the Athenian walls just as the Spartans were laying siege to the city. As much as two-thirds of the population died. The symptoms included fever, thirst, sore throat and tongue, red skin and lesions. The disease, suspected to have been typhoid fever, weakened the Athenians significantly and was a crucial factor in their defeat by the Spartans.

The Antonine plague, which started in 165 AD, was possibly an early appearance of smallpox. It broke out among the Huns, who then infected the Germans, who passed it on to the Romans. And then returning Roman troops spread it throughout the Roman Empire. Symptoms included fever, sore throat, diarrhea and, if the patient lived long enough, skin sores. This plague continued until about 180 AD, claiming Emperor Marcus Aurelius as one of its victims.

Leprosy, though it had been around for ages, grew into a proper pandemic in Europe in the Middle Ages, resulting in the building of numerous leprosy-focused hospitals to accommodate the vast number of victims. A slow-developing bacterial disease that causes sores and deformities, leprosy was believed to be a punishment from God that ran in families. This belief led to moral judgments and the stigmatization of its victims. Today called Hansen's disease, leprosy still afflicts tens of thousands of people a year, and can be fatal if not treated with antibiotics.

The Black Death entered Europe through Sicily in 1347 AD, when people with the plague arrived in the port of Messina from the Far East, and spread the disease throughout Europe rapidly. Dead bodies became so prevalent that many were not buried, creating a constant stench in European cities. England and France were so incapacitated by the plague that the countries called a truce to their Hundred Years War. The British feudal system collapsed as a result of the plague dramatically changing economic circumstances and demographics. It went on to decimate populations in Greenland, and the Vikings lost the manpower to wage battle against native populations, and their exploration of North America came to a halt.

Following the arrival of the Spanish in the Caribbean in 1492, diseases such as smallpox, measles and bubonic plague were passed along to the native populations by the Europeans. With no previous exposure, these diseases devastated indigenous people, with as many as 90 percent dying throughout the north and south continents. Upon arrival on the island of Hispaniola, Christopher Columbus encountered the Taino people, population 60,000. By 1548, the population stood at less than 500. This scenario repeated itself throughout the Americas. In 1520, the Aztec Empire was destroyed by a smallpox infection. The disease killed many of its victims and incapacitated others. It weakened the population so they were unable to resist the Spanish colonizers and left farmers unable to produce needed crops.

13 The writer says that infectious diseases
A are termed epidemics when they spread abroad.
B are considered worst case scenarios.
C affected hunter-gatherer societies.
D started about 10,000 years ago.

14 According to the second paragraph, the first pandemics
A were facilitated by cities and trade.
B caused wars in early civilisations.
C killed two thirds of the population.
D helped defeat the Spartans.

15 The Antonine plague
A was started by Roman soldiers returning to their homes.
B started among German troops fighting the Romans.
C was confirmed as the first outbreak of smallpox.
D infected a Roman Emperor.

16 The writer says that leprosy
A resulted in a focus on pandemics.
B was considered to be a divine penalty.
C kills tens of thousands of people a year.
D first appeared in Europe in the Middle Ages.

17 According to the fifth paragraph, the Black Death
A was brought into Europe by travellers.
B spread to North America through the Vikings.
C made England and France go to war with each other.
D was made worse by economic circumstances and demographics.

18 A combination of smallpox, measles and the bubonic plague
A were found by Christopher Columbus on the island of Hispaniola.
B infected indigenous people before the Spanish invasion.
C helped the Spanish to conquer the Americas.
D brought down the Aztec Empire in 1520.

Task 3 (Questions 19-24)
Read the text. For each question (19-24), choose the sentence (A-H) that best fits the gap.
There are two sentences that you do not need. There is an example at the beginning (0→I).

Handwriting

Handwriting is a complex motor skill that is the combination of sensory, neurological, and physiological impulses. It incorporates factors such as visual perception and sensitivity, comprehension of form, central nervous system pathways, and the anatomy and physiology of the bones and muscles of the hand and arm. (0) I.

Most people learn to write by reproducing letters from a copybook at a young age. (19) F. It is based on each writer's perception of the image and his or her ability (motor skills) to reproduce that visual perception.

The act of handwriting is mastered through practice and repetition. (20) B. They deviate from the copybook forms, adding their own individual characteristics. The writing becomes a pattern of the subconscious, habitual formations that are repeated from one writing to the next.

Each person has their own unique style of handwriting, whether it is everyday handwriting or their personal signature. Although genes, the place where one grows up, and one's first language are significant, other forces and ways of shaping words combine to create a unique style of handwriting for each person. (21) _____.

Experts have compared the handwriting of twins and other individuals. Twins typically share the same environmental influences, study in the same school systems at the same time, and, in the case of identical twins, share the same DNA. Therefore, one would expect the handwriting of twins to be more similar than the handwriting of other individuals. In fact, identical twins have been found to share a high degree of similarity in their handwriting. (22) _____.

The comparison and evaluation of individual features or habits enable forensic experts to identify or exclude, if possible, a known writer as the source for any questioned script. Lay people observe only the features of the handwriting such as letter formation, size, or slope of the handwriting.
(23) _____. These subtleties may differentiate between the handwriting of one person and other very similar ones.

Handwriting features that experts evaluate include the size and slope of the writing, pen pressure, pen lifts, the spacing between words and letters, the position of the writing on the baseline, height relationships, beginning and ending strokes, and line quality. (24) _____. Rather, it is proved through a combination of the significant features between the writings, with no significant differences.

A A writer's identity cannot be established through a single individual feature in the writing.
B Once this occurs, writers focus on the subject matter rather than the physical act of writing.
C However, these studies all found that trained experts were able to distinguish between the handwriting of twins.
D Even identical twins do not have the same handwriting.
E Because handwriting is relatively stable, so a change in the handwriting can be indicative of the nervousness of the writer.
F This ability to copy the letters varies from one child to the next.
G In contrast, experts can tell the difference between both the obvious features and the less conspicuous elements.
H Instead, the relationship between handwriting and personality has been firmly established.
I All of these components combine to produce the desired output.

Task 4 (Questions 25-32)
Read the text below. For each question (25-32), choose the answer (A, B, C or D) that best completes the sentence. There is an example at the beginning (0→A).

Climate and health

Changes in the Earth's climate can affect public health, agriculture, water supplies, energy production and use, land use and development, and recreation. The nature and extent of (0) A effects, and whether they will be harmful or beneficial, will vary regionally and over time.

The impacts on human health are complex, often indirect, and dependent on multiple societal and environmental factors (including how people respond to these impacts). Therefore, the development of appropriate health-(25) B climate indicators is challenging and still emerging. It is important for such indicators to be clear, measurable, and timely to (26) A understand the link between climate change and health effects.

Changes in climate affect the average weather conditions to (27) D we are accustomed. These changes can result in multiple threats to (28) B health and wellbeing. Warmer average temperatures will likely lead to hotter days and more frequent and longer heat waves, which could increase the number of illnesses and deaths. Increases in the frequency or (29) C of extreme weather events, such as storms, could increase the risk of dangerous flooding, high winds, and other direct threats to people and property. Warmer temperatures could also reduce air quality by increasing the chemical reactions that produce smog, and, along with changes in precipitation patterns and extreme events, could enhance the spread of some diseases.

In addition, climate change (30) A require adjustments on larger and faster scales than in the past, presenting challenges to our welfare and the economy. The more extensively and more rapidly the climate changes, the larger the potential effects on society. The extent to which climate change will affect different regions and sectors of society will depend not only on the sensitivity of those systems (31) B climate change. It will also depend on their ability to (32) D to or cope with climate change. Populations of particular concern include the poor, the elderly, those already in poor health, the disabled, and indigenous peoples.

Task 5 (Questions 33-40)
For each question (33-40), choose the answer (A-M) that best completes the sentence. There are five options that you do not need. There is an example at the beginning (0→N).

Why many Swedes don't speak to strangers

In many cultures, striking up a conversation with a stranger is the norm, and (0) N even lead to a budding friendship. But not for most Swedes. In Sweden, casual chattiness is (33) C as needless since conversation is used for exchanging real, meaningful information. Here, small talk is (34) F to be futile, and is referred to as kallprat ("cold talk") or dödprat ("dead talk"). To prevent ending up in these situations, many Swedes have made an art of avoiding eye contact with strangers and acquaintances they might come across in the street by looking at their phones or staring at shopping windows (35) H. For Swedes, the purpose of talking is to exchange meaningful information and (36) B in purposeless chit-chat simply isn't valued.

Visitors to Sweden who attempt to start an informal conversation with a shopkeeper or waiter, even with the local greeting of hej, are likely to (37) A met with a flat hej in response, often with a subtext of faint irritation or mistrust. Experts say this reserve could be (38) D Sweden being a sparsely populated country in a relatively vast landscape, whereby for hundreds of years, people grew accustomed to rarely speaking with those outside their immediate circle.

Another hypothesis is that this aversion to chit-chat could be linked to relatively low levels of immigration to Sweden until the 1960s. Minimal exposure to other cultures historically meant that Swedes were less inclined to (39) E up this decidedly un-Swedish practice.

Yet, (40) J their seemingly cool and reserved exterior, Swedish people will almost always be polite. Expect them to be friendly, albeit simply in a different way to those from more talkative cultures. In a country that reveres simplicity and practicality, it's best not to talk without a reason.

LISTENING PAPER

Task 1 (Questions 1-5)
You will hear five people talking about the reason for choosing their career. Match each speaker (1-5) with one option (A-H). There are three options that you do not need. You will hear the recording twice.

What was the main reason each person chose a career?

A To make money.	D To feel safe.	G To make an impact.
B To travel.	E To work office hours.	H To be healthy.
C To learn.	F To please parents.

Task 2 (Questions 6-13)
You will hear people talking in eight situations. For each question (6-13), choose the correct answer (A, B or C). You will hear each recording twice.

6 You hear a man talking about tourism.
In his view, tourism is:
A overpriced and overrated.
B doing too much harm to the environment.
C a privilege of modern life.

7 You hear a woman talking about shopping for food.
How often does she do it?
A Once a day.
B Once a week.
C More than once a week.

8 You hear a man talking about going to a rock concert.
What did he think of the concert?
A It was disappointing.
B It was satisfactory.
C It was fantastic.

9 You hear a woman talking about an incident at a bus stop.
What happened?
A A man was verbally abusive to a woman.
B There was an argument between a man and a woman.
C There was an argument between two men.

10 You hear a man talking about his first week at university.
What does he say about it?
A It was an unhappy week for him.
B He can't remember it.
C It was a great way to begin his new life.

11 You hear a woman talking about a trip with her boyfriend.
Where did they go?
A To her boyfriend's mother.
B To her parents.
C To Paris.

12 You hear a woman talking about a book she's reading.
What type of book is it?
A A thriller.
B Historical fiction.
C An autobiography.

13 You hear a man talking about birthday celebrations.
What does he think about them?
A They are too expensive.
B They are a waste of time.
C They are important landmarks.

Task 3 (Questions 14-19)
You will hear two friends talking about three electric cars. For each question (14-19), choose the correct answer (A, B or C) from the list of cars. Mark A for Amos, B for Bea or C for Condor. You will hear the recording twice.

Which car...
14 is the most environmentally friendly? C/A
15 is the fastest? C
16 has the most space? B
17 can travel furthest? B
18 is the safest? C
19 is the cheapest? A

Task 4 (Questions 20-25)
You will hear a radio interview with comedian Joe Fulham about his first film 'The Screenagers'. For each question (20-25), choose the correct answer (A, B or C). You will hear the recording twice.

20 Why did Joe decide to try film-making?
A His comedy failed.
B To increase his earnings.
C To share a personal problem.

21 Why was a 13-year-old girl an ideal main character for his film?
A Some 13-year-olds today face a lot of anxiety.
B As a millenial, he understands that generation.
C She represented his YouTube audience.

22 Why was Joe studying the videos of unpopular young YouTubers?
A To learn how they faked perfect lives.
B To find good actors.
C To build a realistic main character.

23 What convinced the producers to finance his film debut?
A His popular comedy show.
B His social networking skills.
C Its predictable success.

24 Why did Joe insist on directing the film himself?
A He studied directing in college.
B He had time to learn directing.
C No other grown up could do it better.

25 Why was Jenny chosen for the main role?
A She was a popular food YouTuber.
B She'd passed the auditions.
C She was Joe's favourite.

2.2. Kako se pripremiti za ispit Čitanje?

Vještina čitanja temelji se na nekoliko načela važnih za njezino uspješno usvajanje. Potrebno je što više i češće čitati razne vrste tekstova te se usredotočiti na sadržaj teksta. Značenje i poruka teksta jednako su važni kao i jezični sadržaji koji se nalaze u tekstu. Važan čimbenik vještine čitanja je razvijanje sposobnosti predviđanja. Pogled na tekst (naslov, podnaslov, izgled teksta) omogućuje ti da shvatiš o čemu je riječ i prije nego što počneš čitati tekst. Razumijevanje svih riječi i gramatičkih struktura nije potrebno za uspješnost u ovoj ispitnoj cjelini. Potrebno je razumjeti ključne riječi i odvojiti bitne od nebitnih informacija.

pripreme za maturu №1 TRINOM.HR ZAGREB i prijemne ispite

Kako biti uspješan u vještini čitanja?
- pozorno pročitaj upute za svaki zadatak
- pozorno pročitaj tekst/tekstove i pitanja u određenome zadatku
- primijeni odgovarajuće strategije za pojedinu vrstu zadatka
- nakon što riješiš sve zadatke, riješi zadatke koje nisi riješila/o u prvom čitanju i pokušaj ih riješiti
- pozorno označi odgovore na listu za odgovore
- pravilno rasporedi vrijeme kako bi imala/o dovoljno vremena za rješavanje svih zadataka

TASK 1 - Strategija za rješavanje zadatka povezivanja
Za uspješno rješavanje zadatka višestrukoga povezivanja potrebno je pažljivo pročitati natuknice (prompts) i potražiti u tekstu/tekstovima ključne riječi ili fraze koje povezuju natuknice i tekst/tekstove.
- pročitaj tekst zadatka u cijelosti
- pročitaj pitanja i podcrtaj ključne riječi
- brzo pročitaj tekstove i pronađi tekst koji nudi odgovarajući/točan odgovor

- pitanja i tekst ne sadrže identične izraze! (npr. loss of privacy u pitanju može biti remain anonymous u tekstu)
- pročitaj tekst još jednom vrlo pažljivo i pronađi ključne riječi/fraze koje ukazuju da je to točan odgovor; poveži ključne riječi pitanja s odgovorom

TASK 2 - Strategija za rješavanje zadatka višestrukoga izbora

Za uspješno rješavanje zadatka višestrukoga izbora potrebno je nakon izbora određenoga odgovora u tekstu pronaći odgovarajuće argumente.

- pročitaj tekst zadatka u cijelosti
- pročitaj sva pitanja i podcrtaj ključne riječi prije nego počneš detaljno čitati tekst
- pronađi gdje se u tekstu spominju podcrtane riječi odnosno njihovi sinonimi i detaljno pročitaj taj dio teksta
- pronađi ključne riječi/fraze za koje misliš da daju točan odgovor na pitanje; provjeri zašto ostale tri navedene opcije nisu mogući odgovori

TASK 3 - Strategija za rješavanje kombiniranog zadatka povezivanja i dopunjavanja rečenicama

Za uspješno rješavanje zadatka povezivanja potrebno je pažljivo pročitati tekst i obratiti pozornost na strukturu teksta.

- pročitaj tekst zadatka u cijelosti
- pročitaj ponuđene rečenice ispod teksta
- pažljivo pročitaj dijelove teksta ispred i iza praznina u tekstu
- izaberi rečenicu za koju misliš da bi najbolje popunila prazninu (primjerice po sadržaju); obrati posebnu pozornost na kohezivna sredstva (vezna sredstva, interpunkcijski znakovi i sl.)
- provjeri zašto ostale navedene opcije nisu mogući odgovori
- ponovi postupak za svake ostale praznine
- po završetku zadatka ponovno pročitaj tekst u cijelosti i provjeri njegovu smislenost

Pripreme za maturu No1 TRINOM.HR ZAGREB Prijemne ispite

TASK 4 - Strategija za rješavanje kombiniranog zadatka višestrukoga izbora

U ovom tipu zadatka potrebno je izabrati točno rješenje između 4 ponuđena odgovora.

- pročitaj tekst zadatka u cijelosti
- razmisli o mogućem odgovoru prije nego što pogledaš ponuđene odgovore; imaj na umu da je točno rješenje vjerojatno leksički i/ili strukturalni obrazac
- popuni praznine posebno vodeći računa o tome što se nalazi ispred i za praznine
- provjeri zašto ostale navedene opcije nisu mogući odgovori
- ponovi postupak za svaku prazninu
- po završetku zadatka ponovno pročitaj tekst u cijelosti i provjeri njegovu smislenost

TASK 5 - Strategija za rješavanje kombiniranog zadatka povezivanja i dopunjavanja riječima

U ovom tipu zadatka potrebno je dopuniti tekst koristeći ponuđene riječi (dijelovi leksičkih i/ili strukturalnih obrazaca).

- pročitaj tekst zadatka u cijelosti
- popuni praznine, vodeći računa o dijelovima ispred i iza praznine
- izaberi riječ za koju misliš da bi popunila prazninu, obrati pažnju na značenje i formu
- provjeri zašto ostale navedene opcije nisu mogući odgovori
- po završetku zadatka ponovno pročitaj tekst u cijelosti i provjeri njegovu smislenost

2.3. Kako se pripremiti za ispit Slušanje?

Za uspješno razvijanje vještine slušanja potrebno je što više i češće uvježbavati zadatke slušanja. Prije rješavanja zadataka potrebno je pozorno pročitati upute prije rješavanja zadataka. Vrijeme predviđeno za čitanje uputa izuzetno je važno za uspješno rješavanje zadataka. Upute sadrže bitne informacije o temi koju ćeš slušati i o tome što se očekuje u pojedinome zadatku. Razumijevanje svake riječi tijekom slušanja nije potrebno. Pozornost moraš obratiti samo na one informacije koje su ključne za razumijevanje. Svakako treba naglasiti korisnost ponavljanja slušanja zvučnih zapisa.

Kako biti uspješan u vještini slušanja?

- pozorno pročitaj uputu i tekst svakoga zadatka
- primijeni odgovarajuće strategije za pojedinu vrstu zadatka
- ako ne odgovoriš na neko pitanje, nastavi rješavati iduća pitanja
- tijekom drugoga slušanja pokušaj odgovoriti na pitanja koja nisi riješila/o tijekom prvoga slušanja
- pozorno označi odgovore na list za odgovore

Strategija za rješavanje zadatka povezivanja

U ovom je zadatku potrebno razumjeti glavne misli/specifične informacije u kratkim pričama i povezati ih s određenim govornikom.

- prije prvoga slušanja pozorno pročitaj uputu i pitanja (prompts) i podcrtaj ključne riječi koje ti mogu biti korisne tijekom slušanja
- budi pozorna/an tijekom slušanja jer ćeš većinu opcija čuti nekoliko puta, ali samo je jedna točna

- također budi pozorna/an tijekom drugoga slušanja kako bi izabrala/o točan odgovor ili potvrdila/o odgovor dobiven tijekom prvoga slušanja
- ponovi postupak za svako pitanje

TASK 2
Strategija za rješavanje zadatka višestrukoga izbora – kratke priče/razgovori
U ovom je zadatku potrebno razumjeti glavne misli/specifične informacije u kratkim pričama ili kratkim razgovorima i odabrati točan od triju ponuđenih odgovora.
- prije prvoga slušanja pozorno pročitaj uputu i pitanja i podcrtaj ključne riječi koje ti mogu biti korisne tijekom slušanja
- budi pozorna/an tijekom slušanja jer ćeš čuti sva tri ponuđena odgovora, ali samo je jedan točan
- također budi pozorna/an tijekom drugoga slušanja kako bi izabrala/o točan odgovor ili potvrdila/o odgovor dobiven tijekom prvog slušanja
- ponovi postupak za svako pitanje

Strategija za rješavanje zadatka višestrukoga povezivanja – razgovor/intervju
U ovom je zadatku potrebno razumjeti specifične informacije u razgovoru ili raspravi dvoje govornika i odabrati točan od triju ponuđenih odgovora.
- prije prvoga slušanja pozorno pročitaj uputu i pitanja i podcrtaj ključne riječi koje ti mogu biti korisne tijekom slušanja
- budi pozorna/an tijekom slušanja jer će govornici spominjati sva tri ponuđena odgovora, ali samo je jedan točan
- također budi pozorna/an tijekom drugoga slušanja kako bi izabrala/o točan odgovor ili potvrdila/o odgovor dobiven tijekom prvoga slušanja
- ponovi postupak za svako pitanje

TASK 4
Strategija za rješavanje zadatka višestrukoga izbora - predavanje/izlaganje/izvještaj/razgovor
U ovom je zadatku potrebno razumjeti specifične informacije u predavanju, izlaganju, izvještaju ili razgovoru i odabrati točan od triju ponuđenih odgovora.
- prije prvoga slušanja pozorno pročitaj uputu i pitanja i podcrtaj ključne riječi koje ti mogu biti korisne tijekom slušanja
- budi pozorna/an tijekom slušanja jer ćeš čuti sva tri ponuđena odgovora, ali samo je jedan točan
- također budi pozorna/an tijekom drugoga slušanja kako bi izabrala/o točan odgovor ili potvrdila/o odgovor dobiven tijekom prvoga slušanja
- ponovi postupak za svako pitanje

3. ISPIT PISANJE

3.1. Kako se pripremiti za ispit Pisanje?

Najvažniji čimbenik u pripremanju za ovu ispitnu cjelinu je što više i češće uvježbavati pisanje različitih vrsta tekstova, odnosno razvijanje navike pisanja. Posebnu pozornost treba obratiti pažljivom čitanju i raščlambi zadatka. Neispunjavanje dijela zadatka može značajno umanjiti uspješnost u ispitnoj cjelini Pisanje i zato je planiranje pisanog teksta iznimno bitno za uspješno izvršenje zadatka.
Prije samoga ispita korisno je rješavati zadatak u vremenu koje je predviđeno na ispitu. Pravilno raspoređivanje vremena jedan je od ključnih čimbenika za uspjeh u ovoj ispitnoj cjelini.

Kako biti uspješan u vještini pisanja?
- pozorno pročitaj uputu za zadatak
- razmisli o zadanoj temi i zabilježi neke ideje
- organiziraj ideje i napiši koncept zadatka u natuknicama
- napiši cjeloviti tekst zadatka o zadanoj temi
- pročitaj tekst i provjeri je li zadatak u potpunosti obavljen (Izvršenje zadatka – razrada i argumentacija)
- ponovno pročitaj tekst i provjeri jesu li zadovoljeni ostali kriteriji prema ljestvici za ocjenjivanje (Koherencija i kohezija, Vokabular i Gramatika)

3.2. Pisanje odlomka

Odlomak je kraći pisani tekst koji se sastoji od nekoliko sadržajno povezanih rečenica koje daju informacije o određenoj temi. Broj rečenica nije važan, ako je tema jasno i u cijelosti obrađena.
Odlomak se sastoji od tri osnovna sastavna elementa:

1. TEMATSKA REČENICA (the TOPIC SENTENCE),
2. GLAVNI DIO (the BODY - SUPPORTING SENTENCES/IDEAS),
3. ZAKLJUČNA REČENICA (the CONCLUDING SENTENCE).

Tematska rečenica uvodi temu odlomka. Ona također sadržava i autorovo mišljenje ili ideju o temi odlomka. Moglo bi se stoga reći da se tematska rečenica sastoji od dva dijela: teme (the topic) i kontrolne ideje (the controlling idea). Kontrolna ideja pomaže čitatelju da bolje razumije što će biti tema odlomka.

Glavni dio (argumenti) razrađuje, odnosno objašnjava tematsku rečenicu davanjem primjera, razloga, navođenjem detalja, činjenica, statističkih podataka ili autorovih osobnih iskustava vezanih uz zadanu temu. Rečenice u glavnom dijelu detaljnije objašnjavaju temu odlomka.
Zaključna rečenica označava kraj odlomka. Ona može preformulirati, odnosno drugim riječima ponovno izreći tematsku rečenicu (the restatement - the paraphrase) ili sažeti glavne točke (bit) odlomka (the summary).

TEMATSKA REČENICA
GLAVNI DIO argumenti +potpora
ZAKLJUČNA REČENICA

Uz navedena tri osnovna elementa, dobro strukturirani odlomak mora govoriti samo o temi (ideji) navedenoj u tematskoj rečenici (UNITY), jasno i u cijelosti objasniti tematsku rečenicu (COMPLETENESS) i rečenice moraju biti povezane kako bi argumentirale (uz odgovarajuću potporu) temu odlomka. Rečenice moraju biti poredane u logičnom slijedu, što se može postići uporabom veznih (kohezivnih) sredstava ili interpunkcijskih znakova.

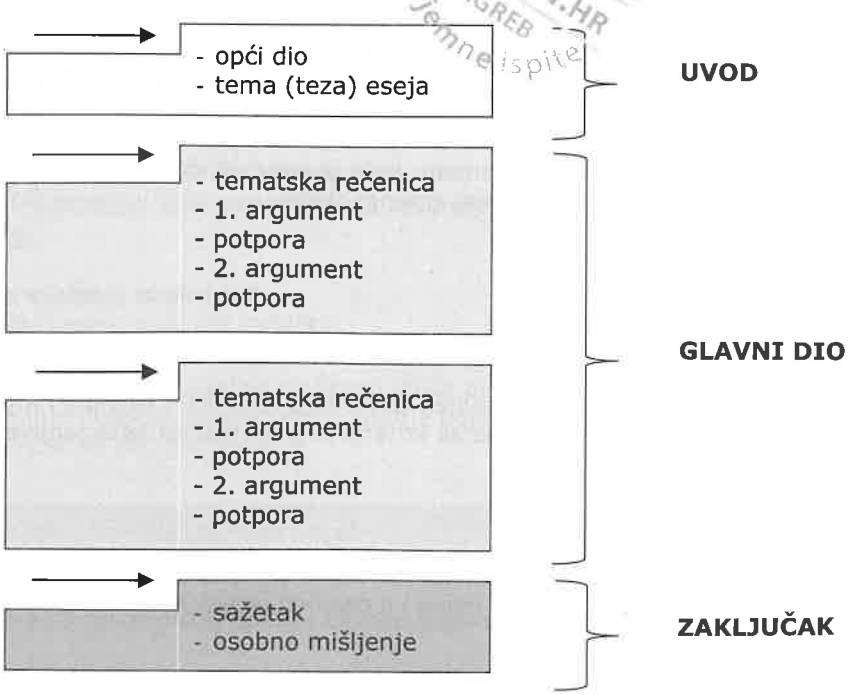

3.3. Pisanje eseja

Esej je pisani tekst koji se sastoji od nekoliko odlomaka o jednoj temi, glavnoj ideji ili nekoliko glavnih ideja. Shodno tomu, tema (ideja/ideje) se mora podijeliti na različite aspekte (gledišta) i o njima se raspravlja u odvojenim odlomcima. Nakon toga se odlomci povezuju uz pomoć raznih veznih (kohezivnih) sredstava i zatim se dodaju uvodni i zaključni odlomak.

Esej se sastoji od tri glavna dijela:

A. UVOD (an INTRODUCTION),
B. GLAVNI DIO (a BODY),
C. ZAKLJUČAK (a CONCLUSION).

A. UVODNI ODLOMAK je prvi odlomak u eseju. On uvodi i objašnjava temu (tezu) eseja i njegova je svrha potaknuti interes čitatelja.
Uvodni odlomak sastoji se od dva dijela:

1. općeg dijela (general statement),
2. teme (teze) eseja (a thesis statement).

Na početku uvodnog odlomka potrebno je napisati tri ili četiri rečenice (general statement) koje će čitatelju dati nekoliko općih informacija o temi (tezi) eseja.
Tema/teza eseja (a thesis statement) najvažniji je element u uvodnom odlomku jer jasno iznosi temu, glavnu/e ideju/e ili aspekte teme (teze) eseja. Kao i tematska rečenica u odlomku, tema (teza) eseja sastoji se od dva dijela: teme (the topic) i kontrolne ideje (the controlling idea).

B. GLAVNI DIO eseja sastoji se od dvaju odlomaka. Njihova je svrha argumentirati s odgovarajućom potporom temu (tezu) navedenu u uvodnom odlomku eseja. Svaki se ODLOMAK u glavnom dijelu eseja sastoji od tematske rečenice (glavne ideje), argumenata s potporom i zaključne rečenice koja nije uvijek nužna. Broj odlomaka ovisi o broju ideja (gledišta/aspekata) teme o kojima se raspravlja.

Argumentiranje
Argumentiranje je sistematska razrada tematske rečenice (glavne ideje) logičnim slijedom.

Odlomak se sastoji od sljedećih dijelova:

1. tematska rečenica (a topic sentence) – uvodi temu odlomka
2. prvi argument (an argument) – razrađuje temu
3. potpora prvom argumentu (support) - (detalji, primjer i sl.) objašnjava i opravdava argument.
4. drugi argument (an argument)– razrađuje temu
5. potpora drugom argumentu (support) - (detalji, primjer i sl.) objašnjava i opravdava argument.

Načini davanja potpore argumentima mogu biti u formi:
1. detalja (razloga),
2. primjera (brojke, činjenice),
3. autorovog osobnog iskustva,
4. citata.

C. ZAKLJUČNI ODLOMAK je zadnji odlomak u eseju.
Slično kao i uvodni odlomak, zaključni odlomak sastoji se od dva dijela:

1. zaključna rečenica/e (a concluding sentence(s))
2. osobno mišljenje (a final opinion).

Zaključna rečenica može biti u formi parafraze - opisa drugim riječima (a restatement) teme (teze) eseja ili sažetka (a summary) glavnih argumenata u eseju.

3.4. Primjer strukture eseja na državnoj maturi

Write an essay of 200-250 words.
Your essay must have an introduction, body and conclusion.

Some people say that international sport events bring countries together, while others say that they cause problems between countries.

Discuss both of these views and give your own opinion.

pripreme za maturu br.1 TRINOM.HR ZAGREB prijemne ispite

U navedenom primjeru zadatak se sastoji od četiri dijela:
1. uvod
2. jedno gledište (glavna ideja 1) za raspravu
3. drugo gledište (glavna ideja 2) za raspravu
4. zaključak koji uključuje i osobno mišljenje.

1. Adekvatni uvod sastoji se od:
   1. općeg dijela (opće informacije o temi)
   2. teme (teze – a thesis statement) koja uvodi (navodi) zadanu temu eseja i njegove glavne ideje.

Primjer adekvatnoga uvoda:

> Sports events like the Olympics and the FIFA World Cup arouse global interest. But sport is all about competition. So do these events unite countries because of a shared interest in sport or divide them because of opposing interests in the result?

2. – 3. Glavni dio (argumentacija)

e.g., Some people say that international sports events bring countries together, (glavna ideja 1) while others say that they cause problems between countries (glavna ideja 2).

Glavna ideja (gledište) ne smatra se razrađenom (raspravljenom) ako se samo usput spomene.

Razrada glavne ideje (gledišta) podrazumijeva navođenje barem jednog argumenta s potporom.

PLEASE NOTE

pripreme za maturu №1 TRINOM.HR ZAGREB i prijemne ispite

4. Adekvatni zaključak sastoji se od:
   1. sažetka glavnih argumenata u eseju ili parafraze teme (teze) eseja
   2. osobnog mišljenja.

Primjer adekvatnoga zaključka:

> In conclusion, international sports events can help people learn more about other countries. However, nationalist supporters may see opposing teams and their countries as enemies. Personally, I think that there will always be an element of war in international sports events.

3.4.1 Vježba

1. Zašto se navedeni uvodni odlomci smatraju nedostatnima (not adequate) ili nerazrađenima (undeveloped)?

> The international sports events are very popular at the time. Nowadays, people are in a big hurry so they need something to relax, and they often choose sports events. A sport event, like world football competition in Africa will connect this poor continent with the rest of the world and allow them to do a big step forward.

> It is important to do sport. It makes people physically fit and healthier. The advantages include stronger muscles and loss of extra weight. It also improves mental health and helps prevent depression. But do international sports events bring countries closer or cause problems between them?

Some people say that international sports events bring countries closer, while others say that they cause problems between countries. International sports events have their advantages and disadvantages.

2. Zašto se navedeni zaključci smatraju nedostatnima (not adequate) ili nerazrađenima (undeveloped)?

In conclusion, international sports events have their advantages and disadvantages. Every competitive sport must have winners and losers. In my opinion, it's very important to do a competitive sport, because we learn how to win and also how to lose. And this is important in life.

In conclusion, international sports events, like everything in life, have their good and bad sides. In my opinion, there will always be international sports events.

All in all, both sides of the argument have advantages and disadvantages. More or less there will be discussions about this topic. I think that is very good for all the world but they should choose where want they go play some sports. I don't know where they want play some sports.

3.4.2 Vježba

1. Napiši uvodni odlomak (c. 80 riječi) na sljedeću temu:
   Some people say that owning a business offers more advantages than working as an employee in a company. Others disagree.

2. Zabilježi dva ili tri argumenta s potporom na glavnu ideju 1 (Main idea 1) i glavnu ideju 2 (Main idea 2) i napiši dva odlomka (body paragraphs).
   Some people say that the World Wide Web can be very useful for various researches. (Main idea 1)
   Others disagree and claim it contains a lot of incorrect information. (Main idea 2)

3. Napiši zaključak (c. 80 riječi) na sljedeću temu:
   High school graduates should take a year off before entering college. Others disagree.

3.5. Raspravljački esej

Some people think doing homework has positive effects on children. Others think it has only negative effects on them.

GENERAL STATEMENT: Many children today have to spend hours every evening doing homework. THESIS STATEMENT: Some people seem to believe that doing homework is beneficial for students' academic success while others feel that homework has unfavorable effects on them.

on the one hand

TOPIC SENTENCE: There are several advantages to homework. ARGUMENT 1: First and foremost, students do need some practice of new material learned in school. SUPPORT: This means they need to sit quietly at home and find out how well they understand the new information and ideas. ARGUMENT 2: Furthermore, homework helps the teacher to know what the students have or have not learned. SUPPORT: Accordingly, the teacher can then change the next lessons by either increasing or slackening their pace.

Firstly / To begin with secondly / moreover on the other hand

TOPIC SENTENCE: However, too often there are negative aspects to homework. ARGUMENT 1: To start with, many teachers give too much homework and often do not coordinate the quantity given. SUPPORT: Due to this, children do not have free time to relax or play sports, which is also vital for their development. ARGUMENT 2: A further point is that unnecessary assignments raise students' stress level. SUPPORT: This can actually lower productivity and performance instead of raising it since it is hard to work properly under pressure.

SUMMARY: In conclusion, although homework can be helpful in reinforcing of what has been learnt in school, if given in excessive amounts, it can also put unnecessary pressure on students. OPINION: It appears to me that finding the balance between free time and homework leads to a happy and successful school experience for all students.

in my opinion

1. Proučite ljestvicu za ocjenjivanje eseja.

Ljestvica za ocjenjivanje pokazuje što se boduje u eseju.
Ljestvica za ocjenjivanje ima 4 kriterija: Izvršenje zadatka, Koherencija i kohezija, Vokabular i Gramatika. Proučite objašnjenja ljestvice za ocjenjivanje kako biste znali što trebate učiniti.

Trebate:

- razraditi četiri sadržajne odrednice: napisati uvod, glavni dio (s dvama različitim gledištima ili prednostima i nedostacima jednoga gledišta) i zaključak (vidi kriterij Izvršenje zadatka)
- u glavnome dijelu obrazložiti gledišta i potkrijepiti argumente primjerima (vidi kriterij Izvršenje zadatka)
- poredati svoje misli logičkim slijedom koji je lako pratiti (vidi kriterij Koherencija i kohezija)
- povezati svoje misli tako da pomognete čitatelju lakše ih pratiti (vidi kriterij Koherencija i kohezija)
- podijeliti glavni dio u prikladne odlomke (vidi kriterij Koherencija i kohezija)
- upotrebljavati prikladan vokabular za izražavanje svojih misli (vidi kriterij Vokabular)
- upotrebljavati prikladne gramatičke strukture (vidi kriterij Gramatika).

PLEASE NOTE

Ljestvica za ocjenjivanje eseja

BROJ BODOVA	IZVRŠENJE ZADATKA	KOHERENCIJA I KOHEZIJA	VOKABULAR	GRAMATIKA
5	•Sve četiri sadržajne odrednice (uvod, dvije strane glavnog dijela i zaključak) relativno su jednako razrađene. •Gledišta su dosljedno obrazložena i potkrijepljena.	•Jasan je tijek misli. •Odlomci su učinkovito strukturirani i učinkovita je upotreba kohezivnih sredstava.	•Širok je raspon vokabulara za izvršenje zadatka. •Pojavljuju se manje pogreške u upotrebi/obliku/pravopisu, ali ne utječu na lako razumijevanje teksta.	•Širok je raspon struktura za izvršenje zadatka. •Pojavljuju se manje pogreške u upotrebi/obliku/pravopisu, ali ne utječu na lako razumijevanje teksta.
4	•Sve su sadržajne odrednice razrađene, ali nejednako (uvod ili zaključak su nepotpuni). •Gledišta su uglavnom dobro obrazložena i potkrijepljena.	•Uglavnom je jasan tijek misli. •Odlomci su dobro strukturirani i dobra je upotreba kohezivnih sredstava.	•Vrlo je dobar raspon vokabulara za izvršenje zadatka. •Pojavljuju se pogreške u upotrebi/obliku/ pravopisu, ali ne utječu na lako razumijevanje teksta.	•Dobar je raspon struktura za izvršenje zadatka. •Pojavljuju se pogreške u upotrebi/obliku/pravopisu, ali ne utječu na lako razumijevanje teksta.
3	•Jedna sadržajna odrednice (uvod ili zaključak ili jedna strana glavnog dijela) nije razrađena (ili i uvod i zaključak su nepotpuni). •Gledišta su dostatno obrazložena i potkrijepljena ili esej mjestimično nije povezan s temom.	•Ponekad je nejasan tijek misli. •Dostatno je strukturiranje odlomka i zadovoljavajuća je upotreba kohezivnih sredstava.	•Dobar je raspon za izvršenje zadatka. •Pogreške u upotrebi/obliku/ pravopisu ponekad utječu na lako razumijevanje.	•Općenito se oslanja na jednostavne strukture. •Pogreške u upotrebi/obliku/pravopisu ponekad utječu na lako razumijevanje teksta.
2	•Dvije sadržajne odrednice (uvod i zaključak) nisu razrađene ili jedna sadržajna odrednica nije razrađena, a druga je nepotpuna. •Gledišta su nedostatno obrazložena i potkrijepljena ili esej na više mjesta nije povezan s temom. •Neprikladan je oblik teksta. •Procjena izvršenosti zadatka ponekad je otežana zbog jezičnih pogrešaka.	•Često je nejasan tijek misli. •Ograničeno je strukturiranje odlomaka i ograničena je upotreba kohezivnih sredstava.	•Dostatan je raspon za izvršenje zadatka. •Pogreške u upotrebi/obliku/ pravopisu ponekad uzrokuju teškoće u razumijevanju teksta.	•Često se oslanja na upotrebu jednostavnih struktura. •Pogreške u upotrebi/obliku/pravopisu ponekad uzrokuju teškoće u razumijevanju teksta.
1	•Tri sadržajne odrednice nisu razrađene: npr. uvod, zaključak i jedna strana glavnog dijela ili esej uglavnom nisu povezani s temom. •Nema jasno izloženih i obrazloženih ili potkrijepljenih gledišta ili esej uglavnom nije povezan s temom. •Procjena izvršenosti zadatka često je onemogućena zbog jezičnih pogrešaka.	•Uglavnom je nejasan tijek misli. •Nedostatno je strukturiranje odlomaka i nedostatna je upotreba kohezivnih sredstava.	•Raspon je nedostatan za izvršenje zadatka. •Pogreške u upotrebi/obliku/ pravopisu često onemogućuju razumijevanje teksta.	•Raspon je vrlo ograničen. •Pogreške u upotrebi/obliku/pravopisu često onemogućuju razumijevanje teksta.
0	•Razrađeno je manje od jedne sadržajne odrednice. Sadržaj teksta ne odnosi se ni u jednome svojem dijelu na postavljeni zadatak (esej nije povezan s temom). Tekst je uglavnom nerazumljiv. Tekst sadrži manje od 70 riječi.

Objašnjenje
Ako su opisivači unutar pojedinog kriterija (IZ, KK, V i G) na različitoj razini, primjenjuje se niža razina, npr. ako raspon vokabulara u eseju zaslužuje 5 bodova, a točnost vokabulara 4 boda, tekst će za kriterij Vokabular dobiti 4 boda.
Tekst koji je dobio 2 boda za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka ne može dobiti više od 4 boda za svaki od ostalih kriterija.

Tekst koji je dobio 1 bod za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka zbog nedovoljne duljine ne može dobiti više od 3 boda za svaki od ostalih kriterija.
Tekst koji je dobio 1 bod za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka zbog nerazrađenih sadržajnih odrednica, neobrazloženih gledišta ili zato što je često teško razumljiv ne može dobiti više od 1 boda za svaki od ostalih kriterija.
Tekst koji je dobio nula (0) bodova za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka zbog nedovoljne duljine ne može dobiti više od 1 boda za svaki od ostalih kriterija.
Tekst koji je dobio nula (0) bodova za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka zbog nepovezanosti s temom, nerazumljivosti itd. ne može dobiti više od 0 bodova za svaki od ostalih kriterija.
Minimalan broj bodova za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka je nula (0).

Brojanje riječi
Riječi se broje prema načelu kako ih broji računalo. Riječ podrazumijeva sve zasebne elemente teksta odvojene prazninom. Skraćenice (npr. I'm, isn't) broje se kao jedna riječ. Ne broje se riječi u ponavljanjima, nabrajanjima i ulomcima koji se ne odnose na zadatak.
Ako je tekst nedovoljne duljine, oduzet će se bodovi u okviru kriterija Izvršenje zadatka na sljedeći način:

- 1 bod za 170 do 199 riječi
- 2 boda za 140 do 169 riječi
- 3 boda za 110 do 139 riječi
- 4 boda za 70 do 109 riječi

pripreme za maturu i prijemne ispite TRINOM.HR ZAGREB

Tekst koji ima manje od 70 riječi dobiva nula (0) bodova i ne boduje se s obzirom na preostale kriterije. Tekst smije imati i više od 250 riječi o zadanoj temi, ali se za njih ne dobivaju dodatni bodovi.

2. Vježbajte.

Napišite nekoliko eseja na zadane teme. Izbrojite riječi da dobijete predodžbu o tome što možete reći u 200-250 riječi. Pišite esej 75 minuta (toliko vremena imate za pisanje eseja) kako biste vidjeli koliko će vam vremena trebati za pisanje 200-250 riječi i koliko vremena možete odvojiti za planiranje eseja prije nego što ga počnete pisati, a i za provjeravanje eseja nakon što ste ga napisali.

3. Proučite komentare.

Pažljivo pročitajte i proučite komentare i broj bodova koji ste dobili za svaki kriterij na ljestvici za ocjenjivanje za eseje koje ste napisali. Učite iz pogrešaka.

KADA ISPIT POČNE

4. Pozorno pročitajte temu.

- O čemu točno morate pisati?
- Morate li raspraviti o dvama suprotnim gledištima? Koja su to gledišta?
- Morate li raspraviti o prednostima i nedostacima?
- Morate li navesti argumente za i protiv?

A. U uputama piše: Write an essay
Napišite uvod, glavni dio i zaključak. Nemojte samo početi i nastaviti pisati u jednome dugom odlomku, bez uvoda ili zaključka. U tome slučaju nećete napisati dobar esej i ne možete dobiti više od 2 boda za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka i ne možete dobiti više od 4 boda za svaki od ostalih kriterija (Koherencija i kohezija, Vokabular i Gramatika). Ako ne napišete uvod ili zaključak, ne možete dobiti više od 3 boda za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka.

B. U uputama piše: Write an essay of 200-250 words.
Nemojte napisati manje riječi jer ćete izgubiti bodove za kriterij Izvršenju zadatka. Nemojte pisati puno više riječi jer riskirate da napišete nešto što nije povezano s temom ili ponovite već rečeno, zbog čega ćete izgubiti bodove za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka i možda nećete imati dovoljno vremena završiti esej.

C. U uputama je zadana tema eseja.
Držite se teme. Ne dolazite na ispit s unaprijed pripremljenim tekstom. Esej koji ne obrađuje zadanu temu bit će bodovan s nula (0) bodova. Ne ponavljajte dijelove teksta koje ste već napisali.
Ako esej u maloj mjeri obrađuje zadanu temu ili sadrži puno toga što nije bitno za nju, nećete moći dobiti više od 1 boda za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka niti ćete moći dobiti više od 1 boda za svaki od ostalih kriterija.

D. U uputama je zadana vrsta eseja.
Uputa raspravljačkog eseja s dva zadana gledišta glasi Discuss both these views and give your own opinion.
Uputa raspravljačkog eseja s jednim zadanim gledištem glasi Discuss arguments for and against this view and give your own opinion.

U uputama se od vas traži:

Raspravljački esej s dva zadana gledišta	Raspravljački esej s jednim zadanim gledištem
• da raspravite dva različita gledišta, tj. navedete argumente za jedno, a potom i drugo gledište • da izrazite vlastito mišljenje.	• da obrazložite prednosti i nedostatke jednog gledišta, tj. da navedete argumente za to gledište i protiv tog gledišta • da izrazite vlastito mišljenje.

Odgovorite na sve dijelove pitanja.
Ako su zadana dva gledišta, ne raspravljajte samo o jednome gledištu. Navedite argumente za oba gledišta.
Ako je zadano jedno gledište, navedite argumente za to gledište i protiv tog gledišta.
Ne raspravljajte samo o prednostima gledišta, već i o njegovim nedostacima. Ako se ne držite navedenoga, nećete moći dobiti više od 3 boda za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka.
Izrazite vlastito mišljenje. Ako to ne učinite, esej neće moći dobiti više od 3 boda za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka.

Isplanirajte esej prije nego što ga počnete pisati
Esej je oblik organiziranoga pisanja. Nitko ne može napisati dobar esej, a da ga prethodno nije isplanirao. Osnova pisanja uspješnoga eseja je planiranje.
Nemojte odmah početi pisati esej. Prvo ga isplanirajte. Osnova uspješnoga planiranja je pisanje bilješki.

Razmislite o čemu ćete pisati.
Proučite temu i zadana gledišta. Što možete reći o njima? Zabilježite svoje argumente. Ne pišite rečenice, već samo zabilježite natuknice.
Proučite svoje argumente. Koje razloge ili primjere možete dati da biste ih poduprli? Zabilježite ih. To će vam pomoći da dobijete dobru ocjenu za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka. Ako imate puno više za reći o jednome gledištu nego o drugome, usredotočite se na ono što možete reći o drugome ledištu. Ako posvetite puno više pozornosti jednomu od gledišta, nećete moći dobiti više od 4 boda za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka. Jako je važno posvetiti neko vrijeme pronalaženju argumenata i potpore. Kada budete zadovoljni svojim argumentima i potporom, usredotočite se na planiranje eseja. Kada budete znali što želite reći, usredotočite se na to kako ćete to reći.

5. Grupirajte svoje misli.

Grupirajte svoje misli na sljedeći način:
- jedno gledište – drugo gledište
- argumenti za jedno gledište – argumenti protiv toga gledišta.

6. Poredajte svoje misli logičnim slijedom.

Na taj se način lakše slijedi vaše argumente. Logičan slijed misli je važan ako želite dobiti veći broj bodova za kriterij Koherencija i kohezija.

7. Oblikujte svoj esej u odlomcima.

Oblikujte onoliko odlomaka koliko imate gledišta o temi, uz uvod i zaključak.
Ne pišite glavni dio eseja u samo jednome odlomku. U raspravljačkom eseju s dva zadana gledišta jedan odlomak se bavi jednim gledištem i ne bi trebao sadržavati rečenice o drugome gledištu. U raspravljačkom eseju s jednim zadanim gledištem, jedan odlomak se bavi argumentima za to gledište te ne bi trebao sadržavati rečenice koje se tiču argumenata protiv tog gledišta.
Oblikovanje odlomaka je važno ako želite dobiti veći broj bodova za kriterij Koherencija i kohezija.

8. Provjerite svoj plan.

Imaju li vaše misli logički slijed?
Jesu li gledišta obrazložena činjenicama? Imaju li ti argumenti logički slijed?
Jesu li vaši argumenti potkrijepljeni pojašnjenjima ili primjerima?
Jesu li gledišta, argumenti i potpora grupirani u odlomke koje ćete napisati?
Kada ste poredali svoje ideje logičkim slijedom i podijelili ih u odlomke, možete se usredotočiti na pisanje eseja.

DOK PIŠETE ESEJ

Opći savjeti

9. Napišite uvod.

Recite čitatelju što će pisati u glavnome dijelu eseja.
Prvo napišite opći dio uvoda. Zatim napišite uvod u tezu. Uvod u tezu nije prepisana tema, već temu treba preoblikovati svojim riječima najavljujući gledišta o kojima ćete pisati. Ako ćete pisati o argumentima za jedno gledište, a zatim protiv njega, recite to čitatelju. Ako ćete prvo pisati o jednome gledištu, a onda o drugome, recite to čitatelju. Ako ne napišete uvod, nećete moći dobiti više od 3 boda za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka.

10. Napišite odlomke.

Odlomak započnite tematskom rečenicom (main idea) koja najavljuje o kojem ćete gledištu pisati.
Naglasite svoje argumente. Jedan je način da upotrebljavate tematske rečenice (main ideas), a drugi da upotrebljavate ove fraze: The main advantage is ... ili Another important reason why .... is ....., A major argument against ..... is .... To će vam pomoći da dobijete veći broj bodova za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka.

Povezujte svoje misli na primjeren način:
- unutar rečenica (npr. because, while, whereas, so, although ...),
- između rečenica (npr. For this reason, As a result, In addition, A second major...)
- između odlomaka (npr. However..., On the other hand ...).

To će vam pomoći da dobijete veći broj bodova za kriterij Koherencija i kohezija.

priprema za maturu №1 TRINOM.HR ZAGREB i prijemne ispite

Završite, po mogućnosti, odlomke sa zaključkom u kojemu ćete sažeti ono što ste rekli. To će vam pomoći da dobijete veći broj bodova za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka.
Ako dobro sastavite odlomke, dobit ćete veći broj bodova za kriterij Koherencija i kohezija.

11. Napišite zaključak.

U zaključku sažmite ukratko obrazloženja gledišta (argumente) o kojima ste u prethodnim odlomcima raspravljali i napišite svoje sobno mišljenje.
Ako ne napišete zaključak, nećete moći dobiti više od 3 boda za kriterij Izvršenje zadatka.

Ostali savjeti

12. Pazite na rukopis.

Čitak rukopis pomaže ocjenjivaču lakše pratiti tijek vaših misli i ostavlja dobar dojam. Razmislite što ćete napisati, a zatim to čitko napišite.

13. Uvucite prvi red odlomka.

Uvlačenje prvoga dijela odlomka je vrlo važno jer po tome ocjenjivač može jasno vidjeti gdje započinje novi odlomak.

→ xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

14. Ostavite prostor između redaka.

Ostavite prostor između redaka kako biste mogli precrtati pogreške i napisati ispravak iznad precrtane riječi.

NAKON ŠTO STE NAPISALI ESEJ

15. Provjerite vokabular i gramatiku.

Provjerite vokabular. Imate li pravopisnih pogrešaka (npr. bed umjesto bad, then umjesto than, god umjesto good)? Provjerite jeste li zaboravili prepisati neku riječ s lista za koncept na list za čistopis.

Provjerite gramatiku. Imate li pogreške u sročnosti između subjekta i predikata (npr. they ... has been; it .... were found)? Jeste li dodali nastavak –s/-es na glagole u 3. licu za glagolsko vrijeme Present Simple? Jeste li točno upotrijebili glagolska vremena? Jeste li upotrijebili upitnu konstrukciju kada niste trebali (npr. I don't know why do they do this.)?

3.8. Interpunkcijski znakovi (punctuation)

Knowing where and when to use the punctuation mark can greatly improve your writing skills. The most frequent punctuation marks in English are: a period, a question mark, an exclamation point/mark, a comma, a semicolon, colon, an apostrophe and quotation-marks.

Sentence Endings

There are three punctuation marks appropriate for use as sentence endings. They are: a period, a question mark, and an exclamation point/mark.

A period (.) is placed at the end of declarative sentences and other statements thought to be complete, after initials and after many abbreviations. For example:

- As a sentence ender: Jane and Jack went to the market.
- After an initial: F. T. Collins is a famous novelist.
- After an abbreviation: They went to the U.S.A..

Use a question mark (?) at the end of a direct question (an indirect question if the first part is itself a question) and after a question tag.

For example:

When did Jane leave for the market?

An exclamation point/mark (!) is used when a person wants to express a sudden outcry or add emphasis.

Within dialogue (a sudden outcry): "Holy cow!" screamed Jane.

To emphasize a point: My mother-in-law's rants make me furious!

Comma, Semicolon and Colon

A comma, a semicolon and a colon are often misused because they can all indicate a pause in a series.

A comma (,) is a punctuation mark used to indicate a separation of ideas or elements within the structure of a sentence. Additionally, it is used in letter writing after the salutation and closing.

- Separating elements within sentences: Suzi wanted the black, green(,) and blue shoes.
- Separation of two complete sentences: We went to the movies, and we went to the beach. (coordinating conjunctions: and, or, but, nor, yet, so, for)
- Letter salutations: Dear Uncle John,

A semicolon (;) is used to connect independent clauses and indicating a closer relationship between the clauses than a period does.

For example: John was hurt; he knew she only said it to upset him.

A colon (:) has two main uses.

The first is after a word introducing a quotation, an explanation, an example, or a series and often after the salutation of a business letter.

For example: You will need the following items for class: paper, pencils, notebook and ruler.

The second is within time expressions.

Within time, it is used to separate out the hour and minute: 12 : 15 p.m.

Apostrophe and Quotation Marks

An apostrophe (') is used to indicate the omission of a letter or letters from a word, the possessive case, or the plurals of numbers, letters, and abbreviations.

Examples of the apostrophe in use include:

- Omission of letters from a word: It isn't true!
- Possessive case: Sara's dog bites.
- Plural of numbers: Sixteen people were born on dates with 7's in them.

Double quotation marks (" ") are used primarily to mark the beginning and end of a passage attributed to other people and repeated word for word.

Single quotation marks (' ') are used most frequently for quotes within quotes.

Capital letters

A capital letter is used:

- to begin a sentence
- for names of people, places and organisations
- for people's titles
- for nationalities, religions, historical times and languages
- for days of week, months, holidays, festivals and special days
- for the titles of books, plays, films, etc. (the first and the most important words)
- for abbreviations and acronyms
- the personal pronoun I

Some think computer technology offers many new solutions for schools. Others think it just creates new problems.

ESEJ 1

In this day and age we can hardly imagine our lives without computer technology. We use it to improve work efficiency, keep our homes safe and stay in touch with our family and friends. As our lives become more and more intertwined with technology, an important question arises: should it be used in the education system as a promotor of learning, or does it open new issues to deal with?

On the one hand, computer technology can enrich learning experience by presenting the information using fun and engaging tools. Animations, videos and quizzes all help keep the students' attention, making learning much easier. Secondly, such technology can be of immense help when it comes to repetitive tasks teachers have to perform, like grading exams. It is much faster and more precise than a human, which results in students getting their scores faster and teachers having one less thing to worry about.

On the other hand, with all the fun gadgets, students may have difficulty concentrating on the actual content of the lecture. After all, the most important thing is for students to understand what is being taught, not enjoy colourful pictures. It might also promote sedentary lifestyle. In a time when childhood obesity is a major issue and children don't move nearly as much as they should, giving them another reason to sit in front of a computer screen might make matters worse.

To conclude, there are sound arguments both for and against using technology in classrooms. While some argue that it can positively influence student participation and equip them with useful tools for their careers, others say that it adds to already widespread problems of internet addiction and childhood obesity. Personally, I think that the answer lies somewhere in the middle: students should be introduced to the technology, but it shouldn't be used in every lesson.

Nowadays, people have access to all kinds of computers such as mobile phones or PCs. By integrating computers into schools, some say that they're extremely helpful while others claim otherwise.

On the one hand, computers are extremely powerful tools which can ease the lives of many, including both students and teachers. Computers can easily and safely store data, such as: exams, homeworks etc. This can decrease time consumed by teachers on creating and grading exams, making their jobs easier. Computers have the ability to replace textbooks forever, thus decreasing the weight of the bags that students have to carry and allowing them to access the textbook content wherever they are.

On the other hand, computers are still a fairly new type of technology to some people like senior school members. They will most likely have issues trying to understand how they work. That is not ideal for a place such as a school because it leads to educational inequality where some students are tought by teachers experienced on computers, while other students are tought by those who are not. Also paper for textbooks is much cheaper than computers which would conserve a lot of money that could be spent on things like food for children.

All in all, computers are an extremely useful tools which could ease the teachers job and the lives of students. But there is a learning curve to them which is unwanted in places like schools. I'm strongly for digitalising schools because IT sector is one of the largest in the world and it is imperative that teachers and students get accustomed to them because their jobs will most likely require a certain expertise in them.

Some people say that shopping online is far more practical than shopping in stores.

Everyone agrees that shopping nowadays is a part of everyones day to day life. However, not everyone agrees with the practicality of it. Is it preferable to completely rely on technology while shopping, or should we enjoy the traditional form of it?

The major advantage of shopping online would have to be the ease of it. Some people find shopping extremely tiring and time consuming, but doing it from the comfort of your own home surely makes it easier. Furthermore, internet provides us with numerous amounts of clothes, colors and sizes which might not be available in the stores themselves. All things considered, not having to physically go to the shopping centre and walk around the stores can only be beneficial.

On the other hand, shopping online presents numerous problems which sometimes lead to even more stress while enjoying your daily shopping. Being unable to try on the clothes you like and getting to personally touch and feel the material makes it difficult to pick the right size. Moreover, the clothing you see online on beautiful models often ends up looking and fitting your body shape completely different which can lead to the lack of confidence and a disruptive self image. In addition, shipping can not only be very time consuming but can also damage the item you have purchased.

To sum up, both online shopping and shopping in stores have their benefits. While online shopping might be easier to handle, shopping in stores is definitely much safer. In my opinion, every individual has a different body type which is always hard to satisfy. Being able to touch, feel and try on the item you have layed your eyes on makes shopping a much better experience.

Nowadays a lot of people prefere to do their shopping online while some say that shopping in stores is much better. Even though there are certain advantages to online shopping there are also some disadvantages.

On the one hand, doing your shopping online is much easier than going to the store. With online shopping there is no need to wait in long queues. Plus, you may shop from the comfort of your own home. Furtheremore, buying things online often offers a wider variety of products. Because the shopping is done from warehouses, there are usually more options to choose from than there are at the store.

However, there is always the possibility of disappointment. Sometimes what we see online and buy is not what we get. Companies often exagerate and use photoshop to fool the customers into buying useless junk that will end up in the trash. Moreover, there is also the problem of delivery. Depending on where the purchased item is being send from, it may take a while for the order to arrive to its destination.

In conclusion, there are both advantages and disadvantages of online shopping. Although online shopping seems like a faster and easier way of getting what you want, there is always a chance of something going wrong. For example, not being satisfied with the end result. In my opinion, online shopping can be enjoyable and useful but only if you are sure that your are getting your money's worth.

3.11. Najčešće pogreške pri pisanju eseja

GRAMATIKA

1. it's vs its
IT'S is short for either IT IS or IT HAS
It's raining.
It's been a long time since we last saw each other.

ITS is a possessive form of IT.
What a beautiful coat! Who is its owner?

2. uncountable nouns
Uncountable nouns have neither singular nor plural. Nouns such as liquids, material nouns, abstract nouns and nouns such as INFORMATION, ADVICE, EVIDENCE, PROOF, etc. are uncountable.
So, you CANNOT say ~~INFORMATIONS~~
BUT
two/three, etc. PIECES OF INFORMATION

3. there is/are
Whenever you want to say that something exists, you should use THERE IS/ARE.
DON'T SAY: ~~We have many advantages...~~
BUT
SAY: There are many advantages...

4. most, all and some
You can either say:
MOST PEOPLE, ALL PEOPLE and SOME PEOPLE (većina, svi, neki ljudi-općenito)
OR
MOST OF THE PEOPLE, ALL THE PEOPLE and SOME OF THE PEOPLE (većina ovih/tih/onih ljudi, svi ti ljudi, neki od tih ljudi-određena skupina)

5. person and somebody
When you refer to a person or somebody, you should use THEY:
If somebody asks for me, tell THEM I'll be back in fifteen minutes.

6. use of articles
If you talk about someone or something non-specific, use:
A/AN for singular (a house= neka kuća) and
NO ARTICLE for plural (houses=neke kuće).

If you talk about a specific person or a thing, use THE for both singular and plural:
the house (ova/ta/ona kuća)
the houses (ove/te/one kuće)

7. non-defining relative clauses
If you use a non-defining relative clause, use WHICH not THAT after a comma.
The big brown bag, which she gave Ann as a birthday gift, was very expensive.

8. possessive adjectives vs possessive pronouns
Possessive adjectives are: MY, YOUR, HIS, HER, ITS, OUR, YOUR AND THEIR.

Possessive pronouns are: MINE, YOURS, HIS, HERS, ITS, OURS, YOURS and THEIRS.

Use possessive adjectives when a noun follows:
My house is near the post office.
Use possessive pronouns when there is no noun following:
The house near the post office is mine.

9. a few/few and a little/little
A FEW and FEW are used for COUNTABLE NOUNS.
He has a few friends. (=nekoliko)
He has few friends. (=malo)

A LITTLE and LITTLE are used for UNCOUNTABLE NOUNS.
He has a little money. (=nešto)
He has little money. (=malo)

10. a lot of/lots of
A LOT OF is neutral, whereas LOTS OF is informal.

11. possessive form (genitive)
To express possessive form we use:

a) 's/s' for living beings
Mary's room the cat's milk
men's cars my parents' car

b) 'of phrase' for inanimate objects and longer phrases regarding people the door of the room
the advice of the woman I met in Paris

12. demonstrative pronouns
THIS/THAT is used with singular nouns: this/that book
THESE/THOSE is used with plural nouns: these/those books

13. was (were) or have (has) been
We use past simple (WAS/WERE) for actions for which we know when they happened:
They were at home yesterday.

We use present perfect (HAVE/HAS BEEN) for actions for which we don't mention when they happened, especially if we can see their consequences in the present:
There have been many changes in society since then.

14. reflexive pronouns
myself, yourself, himself/herself/itself
ourselves, yourselves, themselves

15. present simple vs continuous
USE PRESENT SIMPLE:
- for facts A lot of people oppose to death penalty.
- for routines He reads every evening.
- for time tables The train leaves at 6.
- with state verbs He doesn't believe you.

USE PRESENT CONTINUOUS:
- for actions happening right now or around now
  He's sleeping now.
- for future arrangements
  We're meeting tomorrow at 1.
- for present changes
  He's getting old.

16. first or second conditional
a) first conditional
If it rains, we won't have dinner in the garden.
REAL CONDITION
(Ako bude padala kiša, nećemo večerati...)
FACT: We don't know if it'll rain.

b) second conditional
If it rained, we wouldn't have dinner in the garden.
HYPOTHETICAL CONDITION
(Da pada kiša, ne bismo večerali...)
FACT: It isn't raining.

17. double negation
Double negation cannot be used in English.

INCORRECT~~: I don't know nothing~~.
CORRECT: I know nothing./I don't know anything.

18. word order
a) subject-verb-object in affirmative sentences:
He's reading newspapers.

b) auxiliary verb-subject-main verb-object in questions:
Is he reading newspapers?

c) subject-verb-object in indirect questions:
Everybody wants to know when the results will be announced.

If there is no question word (yes/no questions), use: if/whether-subject-verb-(object)
The question is if this practice should be introduced or not.

19. a 'why' structure
Why pay more?
Why not support the idea?

20. will or would?
Use WILL if something is sure to happen and WOULD if it could happen (hypothetical).
If the idea in the topic of the essay is a suggestion of something which hasn't become real yet, use WOULD/COULD/MIGHT.

4.2. PRONOUNS

A pronoun is a word used in place of a noun or a noun phrase.

Personal pronouns

Subject pronouns	Object pronouns
I	me
you	you
he	him
she	her
it	it
we	us
you	you
they	them

We use the subject pronouns before the verb in a clause or a sentence.
We use the object pronouns after a verb or a preposition.

myself yourself himself herself itself ourselves yourselves themselves

We use reflexive pronouns when the same person is the subject and the object of the verb.
I burnt myself cooking the dinner.

Idioms:
enjoy yourself help yourself
behave yourself

The following verbs don't normally take reflexive pronouns in English: wash, shave, dress, feel, relax, concentrate, etc.

Emphatic pronouns
We can use a reflexive pronoun to emphasise the noun or a pronoun before it. If the reflexive pronoun refers to the subject, it can come at the end of the sentence.
Jane herself designed the house. Jane designed the house herself.
by myself/himself, etc. means 'alone' I can't move this box by myself.

PRONOUNS & ADJECTIVES

The following groups of words can be used as adjectives (before the noun) or pronouns (they can stand alone).

1 Possessives

Order of adverbs

Adverbs can be used in front (at the beginning of the sentence), mid (normally before the main verb or after the auxiliary) or end (at the end of the sentence) position in a sentence.

The usual adverb order is: manner – place – time
He watched TV quietly in his room until 5.00.
When there is a verb of movement in the sentence the order is: place – manner – time
Ann was rushed to hospital suddenly an hour ago.

Adverbs of manner go before the main verb, after the auxiliary verb or at the end of the sentence.
She easily passed the exam. We are eagerly waiting for his letter. He acted foolishly.

Adverbs of place usually go at the end of the sentence.
There is a supermarket nearby.

Time adverbs go in end position. They also go in front position to emphasise the time.
She goes to the gym on foot every day. Every day she goes to gym on foot.

When there is more than one time adverb, we usually put the more specific before the more general one (time – day – date – year). He died at 22.15 on Friday March 17th, 1960.

Adverbs of frequency (often, seldom, never, ever, usually, always, etc.) come after the auxiliary verb but before the main verb. Usually, sometimes, often, occasionally and normally can also go in front or end position.
She never comes on time. She is often late.

Adverbs of degree (almost, quite, hardly, etc.) go before the words they modify.
I've almost finished.

Sentence adverbs modify the whole sentence or clause. In affirmative sentences, these adverbs usually come after the verb BE or after the auxiliary. In negative sentences, they come before the auxiliary.
I'll probably be late. I certainly won't be early.

Some adverbs often come at the beginning of the sentence and may be followed by a comma.
Clearly, the situation is serious.

These adverbs can also come before the verb, after the verb BE or after the auxiliary.
Figures clearly show a drop in sales. The situation is obviously serious.

DM 2019, ljetni rok, Ispitni katalog 2023/2024, Task 5

Read the text below. For each question (33-40), choose the answer (A-M) that best completes the sentence. There are five options that you do not need. There is an example at the beginning (0→N).

Multi-tasking

Your computer screen shows you have eight different websites open, along (0) N two email accounts, three documents, a spreadsheet and one social networking site. You seem to be working an at (33) ___ five different things and just as you get into one of them, you get an email. And you move onto that one instead. And it's not just (34) ___ work where the trend for multi-tasking is increasing.

On average, people do this (35) ___ two hours each day. Doing two things at once makes us feel as (36) ___ we're somehow saving time. Yet there's still a nagging feeling that finishing one job before starting another might be more efficient. We are led to believe that trying to juggle too much at the same time means we don't pay (37) ___ attention to each task.

Multi-tasking is hardest when the tasks are similar (38) ___ each other, but a bit easier if they are different: Chatting on the phone and writing an email is difficult because they both involve similar thinking processes in (39) ___ to generate meaningful sentences. Talking while playing the piano isn't as hard. The intriguing thing about multi-tasking is that although it increases our cognitive load, many of (40) ___ still can't resist working in this way. So multi-tasking may have its downsides, but it isn't always bad.

A at	C for	E least	G order	I to	K us	M you
B enough	D in	F of	H though	J too	L each	N with

4.8. SYNTAX

Syntax is the set of rules for building up a sentence.

CLAUSE is a syntactic unit that alone can be analysed into elements / sentence elements.
SENTENCE is the largest grammatical unit consisting of clauses or/and phrases.

WORD ORDER
S - V - O - A – C
subject – verb – object – adverbial – complement

SENTENCE / CLAUSE distinction:
1 SIMPLE SENTENCE – contains just ONE clause (independent clause)
2 COMPOUND SENTENCE - contains TWO or more independent clauses
3 COMPLEX SENTENCE - contains ONE independent clause (MAIN CLAUSE) and ONE or MORE dependent clauses (SUBORDINATE CLAUSE)

SIMPLE SENTENCE may be classified into four major syntactic classes which correspond to their different communicative functions:

1 STATEMENTS / declarative sentences	We study English.
2 QUESTIONS / interrogative sentences	Have you been waiting long?
3 COMMANDS / imperative sentences	Stop that noise!
4 EXCLAMATIONS / exclamatory sentences	What weather we are having lately!

COMPOUND SENTENCE consists of two or more independent clauses which are joined by coordination (a grammatical device which involves linking of clauses in such a way that they remain constituents of the same level; they are units of equal rank).

The weather was very bad; all classes were cancelled. (PUNCTUATION)
Everyone was in the hall and the doors have been closed. (CONJUNCTION)

CONJUNCTIONS

AND / AND THEN BUT SO	OR / EITHER ..... OR NOR / NEITHER ..... NOR	FOR YET

Tom phoned and left the message.
Tom phoned and Frank answered. (different subject)
Jimmy fell off his bike, but (he) was unhurt.
He couldn't find his pen, so he wrote in pencil.

COMPLEX SENTENCE consists of one independent clause and one or more dependent clauses which are joined by subordination - one clause (subordinate clause) is included in the other (main clause).

THAT	I hope (that) you will like this place.
CONJUNCTION	I'll be surprised if he can do it.
a WH-WORD	We asked where he had been all night.
INVERSION	Had I known, I wouldn't have come.
NON-FINITE VERB	I hope to see you tonight.

QUESTIONS

A question is a sentence asking for information.

FORMS: YES/NO QUESTIONS | WH - QUESTIONS | QUESTION TAGS | NEGATIVE QUESTIONS | INDIRECT QUESTIONS

YES / NO QUESTIONS

A YES/NO question begins with an auxiliary or modal verb.

It is raining. Is it raining?	Yes, it is. / No, it isn't.
He likes music. Does he like music?	Yes, he does. / No, he doesn't.
He can swim. Can he swim?	Yes, he can. / No, he can't.

WH-QUESTIONS

A WH-question begins with a question word.

WHO, WHOSE, WHO(M) - people WHAT – things, (people, animal, things – unlimited choice) WHICH – people, things (restricted choice)	WHERE – place WHEN - time	WHY - reason HOW – manner

Question phrases: what time, what colour, what kind/sort, which way, whose book, how tall, etc.
- what/which/whose + noun
- how + adjective/adverb

SUBJECT/OBJECT QUESTIONS

Subject questions - we want to know the information about the subject.
- no auxiliary verb, no inversion

Tom bought the flowers. → Who bought the flowers?*
The book costs €10 → What costs €10?*

Object questions - we want to know the information about the subject.
Tom bought the flowers. → What did Tom buy?*
The book costs €10 → How much does the book cost?*

Prepositions in questions
She is dancing with her friend John. Who is she dancing with? (WITH WHO(M) is she dancing?)

QUESTION TAGS

A question tag is a short question added to a statement. When tag is spoken, the voice can go DOWN or UP.

FALLING INTONATION - the speaker is sure that the statement is true; we don't expect an answer
RISING INTONATION – the speaker is less sure; the tag is like a question and we expect answer
It's a nice day today, isn't it? positive statement – negative question tag
It isn't raining, is it? negative statement - positive question tag

After negative words: never, hardly, seldom, rarely, the question tag is positive. He is never late, is he?

I am – aren't I	Don't do that again - will you?
Close the door - will / won't you?	There is / are – isn't / aren't there?
Let's – shall we?	This / that is – isn't it?

NEGATIVE QUESTIONS

- used to express surprise, disappointment, annoyance, etc.

Don't you like ice-cream? Everyone likes ice-cream! (short form – in everyday speech)
Did they not inform you? (full form – formal)

INDIRECT QUESTIONS

- used when we ask for information politely. They are introduced by following phrases:

Could/Can you tell me... Do you know...? I wonder...?
Have you any idea...? I'd like to know...

Where is Sam? → Do you know where Sam is?
Is Sam coming to the party? → Do you know if/whether Sam is coming to the party?

The word order is the same as in statements (subject+verb).

4.9. TENSES

Verbs are words or phrases expressing a state, an action or an event.

There are three classes of verbs (division by function):
1 lexical / full / ordinary verbs (play, sing, learn, etc.)
2 auxiliary verbs (auxiliaries)
1 principal / primary auxiliaries (be, do, have)
2 modal auxiliary verbs (can, could, may, might, must, have to, shall, will, should, would, ought to, need)

Auxiliary verbs are used:
1 to make different verb forms do – Present Simple, Past Simple (questions, negatives) be – continuous verb forms, passive have – perfect verb forms
2 to form negatives
3 to form questions
4 in short answers / question tags / reply questions
5 for emphasis (I do like tennis.)
6 to avoid repetition (I like horror films and so does my brother.)

USED TO - WOULD - PAST SIMPLE

Used to + infinitive – for repeated past habits, actions and states that are finished.

We used to live in Budapest when I was a child.
I used to go swimming every other day when I was a student.

Would – for repeated past actions that are finished (often used in stories, cannot be used for past states)

Every weekend we would go to the mountains on long hiking trips.

Past Simple – can be used instead of used to and would but the main difference is that it doesn't emphasize the repeated or continuous nature of the action or situation.

We visited different country every year.
We used to visit different county every year.
We would visit different county every year.

BUT!

We visited Canada in 2003.

From impulse shopping to a multi-million business

Inspiration for an entrepreneur often comes when they look for something - a service or a product they need - only to find it doesn't (0) __B__ exist. In Sebastien Fabre's case it was his wife's impulse shopping that provided the inspiration that (25) ___ to a successful business.
Mr Fabre knew nothing about fashion, but he (26) ___ that his wife had a lot of bags. And these purchases weren't just any old bags, but high-end designer ones. Yet, (27) ___ having so many, she used just one.
Together they decided to sell them, but even though there were many second-hand marketplaces already in existence, they couldn't find anywhere, where their credentials as a seller (28) ___ be trusted and the bags' value recognised.
It sparked an idea. He established an online marketplace for second-hand designer bags, shoes, accessories and clothing. And eight years later, sales are growing 85% a year, which is not bad for someone who until he set up the business (29) ___ in tech and knew absolutely nothing about fashion.
Mr Fabre believes the firm's focus on authenticating the products is helping it to stand (30) ___.
The aim is also to make all the items and the website itself look like a designer (31) ___ than a used goods website.
The firm offers (32) ___ prices for those who buy designer labels. So, it seems that luxury and second hand can go together after all.

4.10. PASSIVE

The passive voice is used when we want to emphasize the action (the verb) and the object of a sentence rather than subject.

Only transitive verbs (followed by an object) can be changed into the passive.
Some transitive verbs (have, fit, etc.) cannot be changed into the passive.

Form: to be + past participle (of the main verb)
Tom invited me to dinner. (ACTIVE) I was invited to the dinner. (PASSIVE)

The object of the active sentence becomes the subject of the passive sentence. The active verb remains in the same tense, but changes into passive form. The subject of the active sentence becomes the agent, and is either introduced by preposition by or omitted. The agent is omitted in the passive sentence when the subject of the active sentence is one of the following words: somebody, people, he, one, etc. But the agent is not omitted when it is a specific or important person or when it is essential to the meaning of the sentence.

Pripreme za maturu TRINOM.HR ZAGREB i prijemne ispite

by + agent → The letter was written by Jane.
with + instrument/material /ingredient → Most cakes are made with flour and milk.

Object pronouns (me, him, them, etc.) become subject pronouns in the passive.

Somebody has rearranged the furniture. The furniture has been rearranged.
The government will pass a new law. A new law will be passed by the government.

With verbs which take two objects such as: bring, send, show, buy, write, award, owe, give, etc. we can make two different passive sentences.

Jim gave Sarah some flowers.
Sarah was given some flowers. (more usual)
Some flowers were given to Sarah.

GET is used in colloquial English instead of BE to express something happening by accident.

He got hurt last evening.

Use:
1 when the person who carries out the action is unknown, unimportant or obvious from the context
2 when the action itself is more important than the person who carries it out (news headlines, newspaper articles, formal notices, etc.)
3 when we refer to an unpleasant event and we do not want to say who or what is to blame

HAVE SOMETHING DONE (CAUSATIVE HAVE)

We use HAVE + OBJECT + PAST PARTICIPLE to say that we arrange for someone to do something for us.

We had our house painted.

We can also use have something done to say that something unpleasant happened to somebody.

Paul had his bike stolen.

We can use the verb GET instead of the verb HAVE only in informal conversation.

It lists daily recommendations and all the ingredients, including trans fats if they're used. In 2007 New York City banned trans fats from all restaurants, and (33) _____ to recent studies this has prevented hundreds of heart attacks and strokes. Even fast food chains such as McDonalds are now (34) _____ forced to change their recipes as people become more health-conscious. European food manufacturers have started using labels that show (35) _____ healthy each product is.
We all need some fat in (36) _____ diet. There are three different types of fats: saturated fats, unsaturated fats and trans fats. Doctors recommend that we get most of our fatty calories from unsaturated fats. Neither butter nor margarine fit this category, though other spreads like peanut butter (37) _____. Reading the label is a good way of avoiding dangerous ingredients (38) _____ trans fats. (39) _____ way is to avoid eating out, especially in fast food restaurants. Also, try to buy your food in the fresh-food section. You might not think this is important, but the choices you (40) _____ now will affect you for the rest of your life. The healthier your diet is now, the longer and healthier your life will be.

4.13. ADVERBIAL CLAUSES

Adverbial clause is a dependent clause that functions as an adverb.

Types:

13.1 TIME	expresses the time or duration of the action (WHEN?)
13.2 PLACE	indicates the place of the action (WHERE?)
13.3 CONDITION	states the dependence of one circumstance or another
13.4 CAUSE / REASON	indicates why an action was done (WHY?)
13.5 RESULT/CONSEQUENCE	denotes the result of the action (WITH WHAT RESULT?)
13.6 CONCESSION / CONTRAST	denotes some obstacle which does not prevent the realisation of the action (IN SPITE OF WHAT?)
13.7 MANNER	expresses the manner in which an action is done (HOW?)
13.8 COMPARISON	compares two people/things
13.9 PURPOSE	indicates the purpose of the action (WHAT FOR?, FOR WHAT PURPOSE?)

13.1 CLAUSES OF TIME

Conjunctions used to form time clauses are: when, after, as, while, as soon as, before, by the time, once, since, until/till, etc.

It always rains after I've washed my car. Have some coffee before you go.
Once you've learnt to swim, you'll never forget. A lot of things have happened since I last saw you.

WHEN, WHILE and AS refer to two things happening at the same time:
I had a sudden idea when/while/as I was waiting in front of the cinema.

WHILE and AS suggest something continuing for a period of time:
While Ann was in hospital, she had a visit from her teacher.
As we were cycling along, we saw a fox. (We can also use WHEN here.)

pripreme za maturu br.1 TRINOM.HR ZAGREB i prijemne ispite

For a complete action we use WHEN.
When I arrived, the party was in full swing.
WHEN can also mean every time.
When you dial the number, no one answers.

WHENEVER and EVERY TIME are more emphatic:
Whenever/Every time Max visits me, he brings me flowers.
We can use AS (but not WHILE) to express the idea that a change in one thing goes with a change in another:
As we drove further north, the weather got worse.
JUST AS means at that exact moment.
Just as we came out of the theatre, the rain started.

To emphasize the idea of one thing coming immediately after another, we can use these conjunctions:
As soon as/Immediately the gates were open, the crowds rushed in.
The minute/The moment you hear any news, let me know.
Martin had no sooner sat down than the phone rang.
(OR: No sooner had Martin sat down than the phone rang.→ inversion)
I had hardly started work when I felt a pain in my back.
(Hardly had I started work when I felt a pain in my back. → inversion)

13.2 CLAUSES OF PLACE

Conjunctions used to form place clauses are: where, wherever, anywhere, everywhere.
I found the bag where I had left it. Where he lives is not known.

13.3 CONDITIONAL CLAUSES (see 4.14. CONDITIONAL CLAUSES)

13.4 CLAUSES OF CAUSE /REASON

Clauses of reason are introduced by: as, since (=because), because, for (=because), as long as (=because), the reason for, the reason (why), on the grounds that.
FOR never precedes the main clause, it always comes after a comma:
She didn't come on time, for she was held up in a traffic jam.

Reason can also be expressed with because of, due to, owing to +noun/-ing form and because of/due to/owing to the fact+that clause:
Because of /Due to/Owing to the fog all train departures were cancelled.
Due to /Because of/Owing to the fact that there was fog, all train departures were cancelled.

13.5 CLAUSES OF RESULT / CONSEQUENCE

Result clauses are introduced by conjunctions such as: so, so... that, or such ... that.
The lecture was boring and irrelevant, so some of the students began to fall asleep.
Peter was having problems with mathematics, so he went to see his tutor to ask for advice.
There were so many books on the subject that Cindy didn't know where to begin.
There was such a lot of material to cover that Ivor found it difficult to keep up with his studies.

There are many other ways of talking about the result of an action or a situation. In some situations you may prefer to use and as a result or with the result that.
The lecture was boring and irrelevant, and as a result some of the students began to fall asleep.
The lecture was boring and irrelevant, with the result that some of the students began to fall asleep.

As a result/As a consequence can also be used at the beginning of a new sentence:
The lecture was boring and irrelevant. As a result/As a consequence, some of the students began to fall asleep.
The following words and phrases are used in the same way: Therefore, Thus, In consequence, Consequently, For this/that reason.
Causal relations can be expressed by ing-clauses of result.
The government increased the duty on wine. As a result, there was a fall in demand.
The government increased the duty on wine, resulting in a fall in demand.

13.6 CLAUSES OF CONCESSION / CONTRAST

Concession is expressed with:
1 although/even though/though (informal)+clause
Although /Even though she spent all afternoon on the project, she didn't finish it.
THOUGH cannot be used in front position.
ALTHOUGH, EVEN THOUGH and THOUGH can also be used in mid-position.
He passed the exam, although/even though/though he didn't study enough.
THOUGH can also be used at the end of the sentence:
She spent all afternoon on the project. She didn't finish it, though.
2 despite/in spite of+noun/-ing form/the fact that+clause
Despite/In spite of their wealth, they weren't happy.
Despite/In spite of being rich, they aren't happy.
Despite/In spite of the fact that they are rich, they aren't happy.

pripreme za maturu No1 TRINOM.HR ZAGREB i prijemne ispite

3 while/whereas/but/on the other hand/yet+clause
He is tall while/whereas/on the other hand/but she is short.
BUT/YET always come between the two clauses:
Tom studied hard, but/yet he failed the exam.

4 nevertheless/however+clause
John's flat was on fire. Nevertheless/However, he didn't panic.

5 however/no matter how+adjective/adverb +subject+(may)+verb
However/No matter how slowly he may speak/speaks, he can't make himself understood.

6 whatever/no matter what+clause
No matter what he said, she wasn't convinced.

7 adjective/adverb+though+subject+verb/may+bare infinitive
Well qualified though he is/may be, he can't find a job.
Early though he left/may have left, he didn't arrive on time.

8 adjective/adverb +as+subject+verb
Careful as she is, she had an accident.

13.7 CLAUSES OF MANNER

Clauses of manner are introduced by: as if/as though, as, how, (in) the way, (in) the way that, the way in which, (in) the same way, (in) the same way as.
They come after verbs: act, appear, be, behave, feel, look, seem, smell, sound and taste.
She looks as if she is sick.
It seems as though there will be war soon.
Do it as I've told you to.
In clauses introduced by AS IF/AS THOUGH were can be used instead of was in formal English.
The verb usage following AS IF/AS THOUGH is normally similar to that in conditionals and depends on whether the ideas are true or untrue.
She behaves as if she is rich. (She may be rich, she may not-she seems to be.)
She felt as if she had a high temperature. (We don't know but she seemed to have a high temperature.)

13.8 CLAUSES OF COMPARISON

Clauses of comparison are introduced by: as ..... as, not as/so .... as, than.
He plays the piano as well as I do.

13.9 CLAUSES OF PURPOSE

Purpose is expressed with:
1 to-infinitive/in order to/so as to:
She wrote to tell him the news.
She wrote in order to tell him the news.
He studied hard so as to be the first.
2 so that+can/may (present or future reference)
I'll help him so that he can finish early.
3 so that+could/might (past reference)
I helped him so that he could finish early.
4 for+noun/-ing form
Let's go out for a meal.
A kettle is used for boiling water.
5 with a view to+ing form
We are gathered here with a view to reaching a decision.
6 with the aim of+ing

8 in case+past (past reference)
I took some water in case I got thirsty.

Negative purpose is expressed with:
1 so as not/in order not+to-infinitive
He left early so as/in order not to miss the train.
2 so that+won't/can't (present or future reference)
I'll pick you up from the station so that you won't need to take a taxi.
3 so that+wouldn't/couldn't (past reference)
He got a taxi so that he wouldn't be late.
4 for fear+might
He locked all the windows for fear (that) he might be burgled.
5 for fear of sth/doing sth

4.14. CONDITIONAL CLAUSES

Conditional clauses consist of two parts:

If he runs, he will get there in time.

When the main clause comes before the if-clause, no comma is necessary.
He will get there in time if he runs.

There are four types of conditionals: Type 0, Type 1, Type 2 and Type 3.

TYPE	IF CLAUSE	MAIN CLAUSE	USE
0	IF + PRESENT SIMPLE	PRESENT SIMPLE	General truth, always
	If you heat ice, Ako (Kad) zagriješ led,	it melts. on se topi.
1	IF + PRESENT TENSE (present simple, present continuous, present perfect simple & continuous)	WILL + INFINITIVE (can/may/should)	Real present or future
	If you help me with the dishes, Ako mi pomogneš oprati suđe,	I will help you with your homework. ja ću ti pomoći sa zadaćom.
	If you have finished with your lunch, If you are working,	we can go. don't answer the phone.
2	IF + PAST TENSE (past simple, past continuos)	WOULD + INFINITIVE (could/might)	Unreal present or future
	If I had more time, Da imam/kad bih imala više vremena,	I would visit you. posjetila bih te.
	If you weren't driving so quickly, If you had some time,	I wouldn't be scared. we could go for coffee.
3	IF + PAST PERFECT (simple/continuous)	WOULD + HAVE + PERFECT INFINITIVE (could/might)	Unreal past
	If you had studied, Da si učio,	you wouldn't have failed the exam. ne bi bio pao ispit.

TYPE 0 (ZERO CONDITIONAL) general truth;
no condition
TYPE 1 (FIRST CONDITIONAL) true or likely to happen in the present or future (real present); possible condition
TYPE 2 (SECOND CONDITIONAL) imaginary situation which is contrary to facts in the present (unreal present); improbable condition
TYPE 3 (THIRD CONDITIONAL) imaginary situation which is contrary to facts in the past (unreal past); impossible condition

MIXED CONDITIONALS

All types of conditionals can be mixed.

	If clause	Main clause
Type 2	If they were working all day, They were working all day	they will be tired now. so they are tired.	Type 1
Type 2	If I were you, You are not me	I would have accepted the job. so you didn't accept the job.	Type 3
Type 3	If she had finished earlier, She didn't finish earlier	she would be going to the party tonight. so she isn't going to the party.	Type 2

EXPRESSIONS THAT CAN BE USED INSTEAD OF' IF'

If you don't reserve a ticket, you won't get a seat. Unless you reserve a ticket, you won't get a seat.
You will get a seat providing/provided (that)/as long as/only if you reserve a seat.
Only if you reserve a ticket, will you get a seat. (INVERSION)
Reserve a ticket, otherwise/or else you won't get a seat.
What if it rains, will you still go for a picnic with him?
Supposing it rains, will you still go for a picnic with him?
Will you still go for a picnic with him even if it rains?
But for him, I wouldn't have been able to survive. (If it hadn't been for him-without his help)

We don't normally use WILL, WOULD or SHOULD in an if-clause.
However, we can use them in conditionals to make a REQUEST or express INSISTENCE, ANNOYANCE, DOUBT or UNCERTAINTY.

If you will/would calm down for a minute, I will be able to help you. (REQUEST: Will you please calm down?)
If you will make a noise, I'll send you out. (INSISTENCE: If you insist on making a noise...)
If you should need any help, ask me. (UNCERTAINTY: I'm not sure if you will need help.)

We can omit 'IF'. When we omit IF, should, were and had come before the subject.
If he should turn up, tell him to wait for me. →SHOULD he turn up, tell him.....
If I were you, I would speak to her. → WERE I you, I would speak to her.
If he had known that, he would have told us. → HAD he known that, he would have told us.

After 'IF' we normally use WERE instead of WAS in all persons in Type 2 conditionals in formal situations. WAS is mainly used in spoken English.
If I were you, I wouldn't do it.

Wishes
We use the verb WISH (or the expression IF ONLY – more emphatic) to express a wish.
1) wish / if only + Past Simple (Past Continuous) → we would like sth to be different in the present
I wish I had a room of my own.
2) wish / if only + Past Perfect → regret that sth happened or did not happen in the past
I wish I had got your message earlier.
3) wish / if only + WOULD → polite imperative; a wish for a change in a situation or sb's behaviour (it's annoying)
I wish you would stop shouting.
I wish the wind would stop blowing.
After the subject pronouns I/we, we can use COULD instead of WOULD.
I wish I could travel abroad.

I hope it doesn't rain tomorrow. (possible – wish will be realised)

4.15. RELATIVE CLAUSES

Relative clauses are introduced with relative pronouns (who, whom, whose, which and that) and relative adverbs (when, where and why).

That's the man who/that owns the place.

main clause | subordinate clause (relative clause)

The man who lives at No 10 plays golf.	people
The letter which you saw is for me.	things, animals
The letter that you saw is for me.	people, things, animals
I met a girl who / that is from Japan.	subject
That's the hat (which / that) I bought last week.	object (can be omitted)
That's the boy whose brother won the prize.	to show possession
The woman smiled. I was looking at her.	(preposition)
The woman at whom I was looking smiled.
The woman (who(m)/that) I was looking at smiled.

WHOSE, WHOM and WHICH can be used in expressions of quantity with 'of' (some of, many of, most of, none of, half of, etc.).

She has a lot of money, most of which was inherited from her aunt.

WHAT – 'the thing(s) which / that', 'anything that'

I'm sorry about what happened.

Relative adverbs

WHERE – place WHEN – time WHY (THAT) – reason

There are two types of relative clauses : defining (identifying) and non-defining (non-identifying).

A defining relative clause gives necessary information and is essential to the meaning of the main sentence. It is not put in commas.

The family who lived next door moved here from Ireland.
(The relative clause is necessary to identify which family is meant.)
Are you the person who telephoned here an hour ago?
That's the woman (who/that) I met at Tony's house.
This is the beach (that/which) I was telling you about.
They are the workers whose jobs are being cut out.

Darren, who lives next door, is having a party.
(The relative clause isn't necessary because we know which Darren is meant.)
This is my friend Jane, who has just returned from Italy.
The woman next door, who/whom I met for the first time last week, is moving next month.
Mary Stuart, who/whom we have all depended on so much, has announced her retirement.

(I stood in the garden and watched the children.)
While understanding your problem, I can't allow you to break the rules. (contrast)
(Although I understood your problem, I can't allow you to break the rules.)
The woman waving at me is my aunt. (relative clause)
(The woman who is waving at me is my aunt.)

3 instead of the Past Simple in narratives when we describe actions happening immediately one after the other

Hearing the news, he fainted.
(He heard the news and he fainted.)

to avoid repeating the Past Continuous in the same sentence

He was walking down the street whistling a tune.
(He was walking down the street and he was whistling a tune.)

We use a past participle clause in place of subject + passive verb.

Bored with his job, he decided to leave.
(He was bored with his job so he decided to leave.)
After being cleaned, the bike looked as good as new.
(After it was cleaned, the bike looked as good as new.)

4 When I got the message, I called my superior. _____

4.17. REPORTED SPEECH

We can report other people's words by using direct speech or reported speech.
Direct speech is the exact words someone used. We use quotation marks (" ") in direct speech.
"I'm tired, " Jill said.

Reported speech is the exact meaning of what someone said, but not the exact words. We do not use the quotation marks in reported speech. We can either use the word that after the introductory verb or we can omit it.
We can report someone's words either a long time after they were said (out-of-date reporting) or a short time after they were said (up-to-date reporting).

Annie said, 'I'm hungry.'
introductory verb
present / future / present perfect - no tense change past tense - tense change ('one tense back' rule)

REPORTED STATEMENTS
Verb tenses and time expressions change in reported speech:
1 when the introductory verb is in the past tense
2 in out-of-date reporting (someone's words are reported a long time after they were said)

BACKSHIFT ('ONE TENSE BACK'):

When this/these are used in time expressions they change to that/those. (this week – that week)
When this/that are not used in time expressions, they change as follows:

1) when used as adjectives they change to THE
'This film is boring,' Claire said to me. Claire told me that the film was boring.
2) when used as pronouns they change to IT/THEY-THEM
'This is an unusual situation,' he said. He said it was an unusual situation.

4) PRONOUNS, ADJECTIVES (change according to the meaning of the sentence)

The verb tenses remain the same in reported speech when the reporting verb is in present/future or present perfect.
The verb tense can either change or remain the same in reported speech:

1) in up-to-date reporting (someone's words are reported a short time after they were said)
2) when reporting a general truth or law of nature
'The sun rises in the East,' the teacher said. The teacher said (that) the sun rises/rose in the East.

REPORTED QUESTIONS

(usually introduced with: ask, inquire, wonder, want to know); verb tenses, pronouns and time expression change as in statements; question marks are omitted

The policeman asked the men, 'What are you doing?'
The policeman asked the men WHAT THEY WERE DOING. (the same question word is used)

She asked me, 'Are you cold?'
She asked me IF / WHETHER I WAS COLD.
(IF/WHETHER are used instead of an auxiliary or a modal verb)

Pripreme za maturu №1 TRINOM.HR ZAGREB i prijemne ispite

In reported questions the word order is the same as in statements (SUBJECT + VERB).

INDIRECT QUESTIONS

Indirect questions are used when we ask for information politely. They are introduced with the following phrases:

Could/Can you tell me ...?	Do you know ...?	I wonder ...	Have you any idea ...?	I'd like to know ...

Where is Sam? Do you know where Sam is?
Is Sam coming to the party? Do you know if/whether Sam is coming to the party?

The word order is the same as in statements (SUBJECT + VERB). There are no changes in verb tenses.
(*cf.*reported questions).

REPORTED COMMANDS, REQUESTS, SUGGESTIONS, INSTRUCTIONS

He said, 'Lie down , Tom!' He told Tom to lie down.
He said to me, 'Don't shout.' He told me not to shout.

We use an appropriate introductory verb (ask, order, suggest, beg, deny, etc.) + to-infinitive, -ing form or that-clause.

He said to her, 'Shall we go out for dinner?' — He suggested going to the restaurant.
He said to her, 'Close the door, please.' — He asked her to close the door.
He said to them, 'Please, please, don't hurt me.' — He begged them not to hurt him.
The teacher said to me, 'You should learn more.' — The teacher advised me to learn more.
She said to me, 'I'm sorry I forgot to call you. ' — She apologised for not calling me.

4.18. INVERSION

We invert subject and auxiliary verb in a sentence to give emphasis.

1 MAIN VERB + subject

1) Reported speech 'I've never seen him,' said Bill.
2) After verbs of movement or adverbial expressions of place when they come at the beginning of a sentence
Here comes the bride.

2 BE / HAVE / MODAL / AUXILIARY VERB + subject + MAIN VERB

1) questions
Have you seen my shoes?
2) conditionals (with should, were, had at the beginning of a sentence when 'if' is omitted)
Had he known the rules, he would have never joined the contest.
Were I you, I would leave that company immediately.
3) connected statements (statements with parallel structures and different subjects) - so, neither, nor, as
I hate chemistry and so does Tom. I hate chemistry and Tom does, too.
I am not going to school and neither is Mary. I am not going to school and Mary isn't either.
She was a talented musician, as was her sister / and so was her sister.
4) after certain adverbs and phrases with a restrictive or negative meaning

HARDLY EVER	Hardly ever did her children eat non-organic food.
HARDLY ..... when/than	Hardly had we come than the rain began.
SCARCELY (EVER) .....WHEN	Scarcely had she finished cooking when the children came home.
BARELY	Barely had I closed my eyes when the doorbell rang.
LITTLE	Little do I know about my ancestors.
NEVER	Never have I seen such a mess!
SELDOM	Seldom do we go out since we got married.
RARELY	Rarely do I meet with my highschool friends.
NO SOONER ..... THAN	No sooner had he arrived at the airport than his flight left.
NOT ONLY ..... BUT ALSO	Not only was she a great singer but also a magnificent painter.
NOT TILL / UNTIL	Not until I saw her did I believe she colored her hair pink.
NOWHERE	Nowhere have I ever met such polite people.
IN / UNDER NO CIRCUMSTANCES	Under no circumstances are you allowed to leave the house.
ON NO ACCOUNT/OCCASION	On no account will I lie to my parents to protect you.
ONLY BY / IF / THEN / WHEN	Only if you study hard will you succeed.
SO	So beautiful was the view from the top of the mountain.
NEITHER / NOR	Neither did she call me nor did she send me a text.

4.19. EMPHATIC STRUCTURES (Cleft sentences)

We use emphatic structures when we wish to emphasise a particular part of a sentence in spoken or written English.

1) We can use IT IS/WAS+SUBJECT/OBJECT+THAT or WHO(M) in statements/negations or IS/WAS IT +SUBJECT/OBJECT+THAT OR WHO(M) in questions.
If the object is a person, we use THAT, WHO or WHOM, otherwise THAT is the correct form.
It was the headmaster that/who organised the school bazaar. It is me that/who you're talking to, so don't lie.
Was it here that you met him? It wasn't Sophie that/who prepared this meal.

2) We can use THAT IS/WAS+QUESTION WORD in statements or IS/WAS THAT+QUESTION WORD in questions.
That is what I told the police. That was how he became a successful businessman.
Is that where he's living now? Was that why he resigned?

3) We can also use QUESTION WORD+IS/WAS IT+THAT in questions.
Where is it that you are planning to go? Who was it that sent you those flowers?
When was it that you realised you were being followed?

4) We can use QUESTION WORD+SUBJECT+VERB+IS/WAS
What I need is some good advice. What I don't need is criticism.

5) In the Present Simple, Past Simple or Imperative we can use the construction: DO/DOES/DID+BARE INFINITIVE to give emphasis.
I do care for you. He did tell me he was leaving. Do sit down, please!

Numbers in texts

1 We use words at the beginning of a sentence. (Two hundred and fifty people were injured.)
2 For numbers 1 – 10, we use words. (She visited seven cities in a week.)
3 For larger numbers (11 and over) we usually use figures. (The fire injured 150 workers.)
4 We usually write ordinal numbers (1st, 2nd, 3rd, etc.) as words (except for dates).
John was first in the boxing competition. The meeting was on the 4th November 2011.
5 For decimals and percentages, we use numbers. (The room was 5.5 m wide.)

4.21. PHRASAL VERBS

Phrasal verbs are formed with a verb + a particle. The particle is an adverb or a preposition. Sometimes its meaning may be inferred from the meaning of the verb and the particle (literal meaning), but often the meaning is completely different from the meanings of the separate words (metaphorical meaning).

Can you slow down? (literal) He takes after his mother in his mathematical ability. (metaphorical)

4.22. WORD FORMATION

The basic part of any word is the stem (root); to it, you can add a prefix at the beginning and/or a suffix at the end to change its meaning.
A prefix is one or more syllables placed at the beginning of a base word (stem) to change or extend its meaning; generally no change of word-class; often used to give negative meaning.
A suffix is one or more syllables placed at the end of a base word (stem) to form a new word; change of the word-class and the meaning of a word.

Common prefixes

anti- (= against)	antinuclear
bi- (= two)	bilingual
co- (= with)	cooperation
de- (= acting against)	decomposition
dis- (= not/stop)	disagree
en- (= to bring into the condition of)	enlarge

READING PAPER

Task 1 (Questions 1-12)

You are going to read an article about food waste. For each question (1-12), choose one person from A-F. There is an example at the beginning (0→C).

Food waste

A Alan

Checking the production and use-by dates on the products prior to buying or consuming them is what I consider crucial in fighting the constant wasting of food, especially food that has a short shelf-life. I'm determined to do it every time I do grocery shopping, thus avoiding overspending.
However, I find it very difficult to make a distinction between sell-by date and use-by date. One has to be an expert to understand this! Plus sometimes this date cannot be read due to very small, smudged or blurry print.

B Ben

In the case of food waste, it is mostly considered a problem at the family level: parents buy too much food, mothers cook too much of it or family members often eat out. I think a lot can be done in the domain of consumers' behaviour. For instance, the family can plan their meals more carefully.
Thus, food and money are not wasted. Also, a lot more can be done before the food actually comes to our table. For example, we can establish better standards in factories and transport, especially limiting CO2 emissions or introducing other regulatory measures.

C Celine

Contrary to my belief, most people consider food waste a minor modern-day issue, which can easily be solved by organising charities to raise awareness. Having done a lot of research into the problem at university, I can say that one of the main drivers of generating food waste is growing prosperity.
This, combined with declining food prices, has enabled the citizens of the developed world to care less about the surplus food they buy and throw away. There has also been a lot of research about the rising number of single households – the percentage of food waste there is appalling.

D David

In my opinion, food waste is more a product of irresponsible individuals or society as a whole than a technical or economic issue. Prevention is always the key. Small shops like butchers', groceries and bakeries can be encouraged to work together and redistribute the surplus food to those in need. It's highly likely that your – or a neighbouring town – has a food bank or a charity that will be more than happy to help you transport food that has valid use-by date labels. In this way, safe, edible food will be consumed and not wasted.

E Eve

In my view, whatever the issue is, it is easier to deal with it before the problem snowballs. One of the measures I suggest is the abolition of financial subsidies on food. This will result in a rise in food prices. I always think twice when buying food and preparing meals, simply because I despise overspending and I'm a responsible citizen.
When I read the city council's reports on how much food ends up in the landfill in my town on a daily basis I'm really angry. Obviously, other people are unaware of the economic impact on every household.

F Fiona

What I see daily in the apartment block where I live worries me. Surplus food is thrown away and put into the mixed rubbish bin. Why is it such a big problem for people to sort out biodegradable waste and put it in the proper bin? I'm sure the situation would improve if the city council imposed higher fines for those who do not sort out the garbage properly. What I'm trying to say is that we have good laws but they are ignored most of the time.

Which person...
0 thinks food waste is a major problem of our civilisation? → C
1 offers expert opinion on the food waste problem?
2 thinks people should cooperate with local businesses to find the solution?
3 always reads labels on food?
4 is extra careful with the money they spend on food?
5 is concerned about waste disposal?
6 suggests food donation?
7 finds information on food products confusing?
8 thinks household members are responsible for food waste?
9 blames both their neighbours and the local government for food waste?
10 suggests that food should become more expensive?
11 connects the food waste problem to the rich?
12 suggests some legal changes concerning food production?

Task 2 (Questions 13-18)
Read the text below. For each question (13-18), choose the correct answer (A, B, C or D).

Huntresses of the sea

Four years ago, Bae Chong was commuting to her job on the Seoul subway. She spent her days working at a hair salon. It was a gruelling life: she had trouble finding time to care for her children, she was constantly sick, and interacting with indifferent strangers left her drained. And, bottom line, she never seemed to make ends meet. Now, like her mother before her, Bae spends her working days diving into the Korean Strait without an oxygen tank to gather seafood from the ocean floor.

Bae is a haenyeo, a member of a traditional profession on the Jeju island. Known for their independent spirit, iron will, and determination, the 'last mermaids' represent the long history of the semi-matriarchal structure of Jeju society. For centuries, these female divers have earned a living by plunging into the sea to gather its edible treasures and sell them. In the 1600s, women started taking over the diving work. Historians say they became experts in sumbisori: an ancient breathing technique, essential in their work, which their male counterparts could not match. Additionally, some of the Jeju men went deep-sea fishing and never came back. As women's earnings were free from the heavy taxes imposed by the king, and there was ever-increasing demand for the abalone or the ear shell, Jeju women earned a lot of money.

Bae says she didn't realise before she became a haenyeo that the women take pills to cope with motion sickness, which is intensified by the stink of their rubber suits and the disorienting fogging of their masks. She has found this to be the most challenging part of the job, and it took her too long to get accustomed to this. Some haenyeo report that they face strong currents and poor visibility and others have been washed out to sea or caught in riptides. The haenyeo must be careful not to push too far. Spending so much time under water, for inexperienced beginners, can lead to fatal heart problems.

The sheer amount of time spent under the sea means that the haenyeo have been first-hand witnesses to the environmental devastation of our oceans. Contamination will soon be the biggest problem. The seas off Korea's southern coast have warmed, which will lead to an influx of new species. On Jeju, the degradation of the existing underwater habitat has become increasingly severe because large seaweed has disappeared, causing marine life to die off. The occupation is becoming less viable. Changes in the environment are mainly to blame as they take away everything that is vital for a haenyeo. Some think that the barrier to becoming a haenyeo is set intentionally high so that the existing divers do not have to share diminishing resources.
There is also the competition from farmed seafood, and cheap imports. Combine that with the life-threatening nature of the job, and it is no surprise that it may soon become impossible to find new recruits. Moreover, young women are leaving Jeju and trying to find more stable jobs.

The Jeju government has started preservation measures for the haenyeo. They have recognised that the demand for haenyeo seafood could attract more tourists. Hopefully, this will help to create new jobs. The government wants to emphasise the historical importance of the haenyeo, who have been reimagined as Korea's pioneer feminists, and whose independent income has allowed them to have a voice in the predominantly patriarchal family structure. Their community-based, strictly hierarchical social structure has been linked to a model of democratic community governance and sustainable environmental practice.

A low income.
B chronic illness.
C human alienation.
D work-life imbalance.

14 According to historians, Jeju women took over the role of free divers because of A excessive taxation.
B the shortage of men.
C high seafood demand.
D their mastery of breath.

15 According to Bae, the hardest part of doing haenyeo is A nausea.
B the high health risk.
C knowing your limits.
D the unpredictable sea.

16 At this point, the biggest threat to marine biodiversity in the haenyeo area is
A water pollution.
B over exploitation.
C habitat destruction.
D invasion of non-native species.

17 Haenyeo culture is becoming extinct because of A migration.
B competition.
C global warming.
D labour conditions.

18 The government is trying to preserve haenyeo culture because haenyeo divers
A attract tourists.
B are great role models.
C tackle unemployment.
D safeguard the environment.

Task 3 (Questions 19-24)
Read the text. For each question (19-24), choose the sentence (A-H) that best fits the gap. There are two sentences that you do not need. There is an example at the beginning (0→I).

Tomorrow's cars

"A technological tsunami has been upturning the automotive industry over the last decade", says Patrick Breen, an industry CEO. Traditional patterns have been exploding as the digital revolution leads to a reinvention of all the hardware and software architecture on vehicles. It may well be that in a few years' time, a car will look nothing like it does today. (0) __I__.

In the opinion of Mr Breen, this is a disruptive technology. The car of the future is well and truly on its way! Let us look at some of its main features.

Electric was the first phenomenon to transform cars. (19) ____. However, electric cars are now emerging as a must-have in all the market segments because they have many technological advantages. This trend has been greatly reinforced by environmental obligations to reduce particle and greenhouse gas emissions. In the years ahead, increasingly powerful hybrid or electric engines will replace the traditional internal combustion engine.

Next is the autonomous car, a most spectacular revolution. (20) ____. The first two stages of autonomous cars have already been completed. Cruise control has existed for several years: drivers can set a cruising speed and remove their feet from the pedals. The next step?

100% autonomy. Engineers are working to replace human eyes with a multitude of cameras, sensors and lasers that will reproduce the environment in 3D and allow the vehicle to make navigation decisions alone.

The car of the future will be fully connected with objects... and humans! In fact, in order to be autonomous and make the right decisions, cars must be able to exchange a variety of information with the outside world: traffic, weather, vehicle condition, service stations, accidents, etc. (21) ____. In addition, numerous online services will be available to passengers: Wi-Fi, cloud, media, entertainment, etc. In Mr Breen's opinion, this involves a total paradigm shift. Just imagine: a several-hour trip will become an opportunity to answer your emails, watch the latest film released in cinemas, or skype a friend on the other side of the planet.

The last major change concerns the industry itself. (22) ____. All the car's hardware and software architecture is in the process of being redesigned. It is not just that the body is slowly changing to incorporate new technologies – such as lightweight composite and 3D printing materials. (23) ____.

This means completely overhauling the car's electronic architecture. (24) ____. It will bring a number of benefits to society: less pollution, more safety, more free time and services. And the end of it all? A paradigm revolution: cars will perhaps offer less pleasure driving on the open road but will offer real transport, safety and connectivity services.

A Tomorrow's cars will be able to do without their drivers.
B To sum up, the car of the future, built according to a new model, will be electric, autonomous and connected.
C Tomorrow's factories will be nothing like they are today.
D When it was first introduced, experts envisaged a specific use – for electric public transport for example.
E Such technology is quickly catching up on the autonomous car.
F But also, to ensure the connectivity and range of the vehicle, numerous smart devices will have to be connected and integrated.
G Eventually, through various sensors, it will be able to communicate with other vehicles but also with the infrastructure (roads, buildings, etc.).
H The car of the future is still too expensive for ordinary people.
I This development will be in stages: we start without feet and then do without hands and eventually without eyes.

Task 4 (Questions 25-32)
Read the text below. For each question (25-32), choose the answer (A, B, C or D) that best completes the sentence. There is an example at the beginning (0→C).

Why are fairy tales important?

'Once upon a (0) __C__' is the usual introduction to a fairy tale. A child who reads or listens to them imagines something that happened in the past. One of the main reasons why fairy tales are important is that they help in a child's character (25) ____. In this way young children are able to better understand the world around them.

As adults we still remember the fantasy lands and fantastic characters such as kings, fairies and princesses who (26) ____ our life from an early age. Lessons about life are portrayed through these characters.

Fairy tales teach children how to deal with basic human dilemmas and conflicts. The stories abound in picturesque scenes and supernatural heroes, but on the other hand, they may be dangerous in (27) ____ of hidden messages. The versions of fairy tales that are known today are softened versions of some very old stories dating from ancient times. Original fairy tales were not (28) ____ for children. These stories were too cruel and had to be (29) ____, although they still have some intimidating features.

There has always been a conflict between good and evil, (30) ____ can be seen as the internal conflict in a person. Good always wins, but to achieve that the main character has to have a pure heart to defeat the obstacles in front of him or her. The hero or heroine (31) ____ a warrior, e.g., in Little Red Riding Hood a girl defeats a big bad wolf.

By identifying with characters who are defined by their virtue, a child can (32) ____ positive values and obtain emotional stability later in life. That is the reason why each fairy tale ends with the sentence: 'And they lived happily ever after.'

Singing for body and mind

The physiological benefits of singing, and music more generally, have long been explored. Music (0) N exercises the brain as well as the body, but singing is particularly beneficial for improving breathing, posture and muscle tension. Listening to and (33) ____ in music has been shown to be effective in pain relief, too, probably due to the release of neurochemicals. An example is β-endorphin, a natural painkiller responsible for the feeling of satisfaction that is (34) ____ after intense exercise.

There's also some evidence to suggest that music can play a role in supporting a healthy immune system (35) ____ reducing the stress hormone cortisol and boosting the immunoglobin A antibody.

Music has been used in different cultures throughout history in many (36) ____ rituals and is already used as a therapy in our own culture (for the relief of mental illness, breathing conditions and language impairment, for example). Everyone can sing, however much we might protest, (37) ____ that it is one of the most accessible forms of music making, too. Song is a powerful therapy indeed.

Regular choir members report that learning new songs is cognitively stimulating and helps their memory. The satisfaction of performing together is likely to be associated (38) ____ activation of the brain's reward system, which keeps people coming back for more.

Singing, (39) ____ if there is no audience, improves our sense of happiness and wellbeing. Research has found, for example, that people feel more positive after actively singing than they do after passively listening to music, or after chatting about positive life events. Our improved mood is likely to be (40) ____ by changes in our sense of social closeness with others. This comes directly from the release of positive neurochemicals such as dopamine and serotonin. So, join a choir and start singing!

LISTENING PAPER
Task 1 (Questions 1-5)
You will hear five people talking about their most recent trips. Match each speaker (1-5) with one option from A-H. There are three options that you do not need. You will hear the recording twice.

Which type of trip did each speaker go on?

A A city break.	D A business trip.	G A summer holiday.
B A winter holiday.	E An educational trip.	H A trip to the country.
C A pilgrimage.	F A wellness holiday.

Task 2 (Questions 6-13)
You will hear people talking in eight situations. For each question (6-13), choose the correct answer (A, B or C). You will hear each recording twice.

6 You hear a man talking about cooking.
Why does he like cooking?
A Because it's cheaper than eating out.
B He likes talking to his wife.
C He likes the feeling of accomplishment.

7 You hear a woman talking about a phrase.
What does she think about it?
A She thinks it's meaningless.
B She disagrees with it.
C She agrees with it.

8 You hear a man talking about his living preferences.
Where does he prefer to live?
A In the city.
B In the hills.
C In the country.

9 You hear a woman talking about what qualities she looks for in a friend.
What does she value most in a friend?
A Not being rude.
B Being original.
C Being talkative.

10 You hear a man talking about problems at work.
What is the biggest problem?
A Coming late to work.
B Communication skills with colleagues.
C Motivation of employees.

11 You hear a woman talking about Rick, her close friend.
What does she think of him?
A He's outgoing.
B He's introverted.
C He's humorous.

12 You hear a man talking about Sydney.
What does he like about the city?
A Bondi Beach.
B Sydney Tower Eye.
C Downtown clubbing.

13 You hear a news item about the employment of young adults.
Which jobs are most in demand?
A Traditional jobs.
B Creative jobs.
C Highly-paid jobs.

Task 3 (Questions 14-19)
You will hear two friends talking about three online learning platforms. For each question (14-19), choose the correct answer (A, B or C) from the list of learning platforms. Mark A for AptEra, B for Benefix or C for Courseline. You will hear the recording twice.

Which learning platform...
14 offers traditional academic-style learning?
15 uses the widest selection of learning methods?
16 is the most appropriate for young professionals?
17 includes celebrity instructors?
18 is the most user-friendly?
19 is the most cost-effective?

Task 4 (Questions 20-25)
You will hear a radio interview with Lucy Bresson, a professional music photographer. For each question (20-25), choose the correct answer (A, B or C). You will hear the recording twice.

20 Lucy became interested in photography
A in her last year at school.
B when she first fell in love.
C when she took a course in photography.

21 Lucy's first permanent job was
A in a restaurant.
B in a marketing company.
C in an IT company.

22 Lucy became a music photographer
A through her website.
B by promoting herself.
C because of a friend.

23 Before a shoot, Lucy
A meditates.
B researches the band.
C spends time with the band.

24 Lucy's photographs depict
A large-scale views.
B facial expressions.
C atmospheric intensity.

25 Next, Lucy will
A take a break.
B have an exhibition.
C go on tour.

READING PAPER

Task 1 (Questions 1-12)
You are going to read an article in which people discuss student exchange programmes they took part in. For each question (1-12), choose one person from A-F. There is an example at the beginning (0→A).

Student exchanges

A Adèle
I've benefited greatly from participating in the students' exchange programme. The most rewarding thing for me was being able to push myself to do better, whether it meant putting more time in writing research papers or preparing for the exams. It was all a bit intense, but I still managed to keep calm when it seemed something went wrong or I'd run out of valuable ideas. And although the deadlines were strict, we were able to do everything on time. Actually, I'm going to be here for a while longer to prepare for my PhD, and maybe even get a part-time job if my scholarship application falls through.

B Benicio
Compared to my work schedule at university back home, it looked as if I would have a lot of free time to go places and meet people. It turned out that the 'free time' was intended for studying, so the course was equally time-consuming. But I made it my priority to find opportunities for socialising and travelling as well. After all, that's what these exchanges are about. And getting to know people you can rely on after you graduate is a great asset as they may also become an important network of contacts later on in life.

C Caterina
In my country we have strict standards that you need to satisfy to perform well in your studies. Serious work contributes to the deep understanding of a subject, which, despite all the stress, is an indisputable advantage of such an approach. And I expected no less here. The challenge was facing unfamiliar situations and learning to cope with everyday problems on your own. Although it's a great asset, it can be very scary at times! This is especially true if you don't know many people and are struggling with the language. Frankly, it is difficult to describe the whole spectrum of feelings, enthusiasm and sense of achievement that this exchange has given me.

D Darin
There are many upsides of being an exchange student, in my opinion. In an increasingly globalised world, more and more companies are looking for students with international experience and cosmopolitan views. Studying abroad proves that you can adapt quickly to changing situations and that you are a good problem solver, which will, I hope, result in a better job offer. It also gives you a much needed understanding of different cultures, which you can do properly only if you speak their language – so I tried to make the most of my thrilling exchange programme.

E Edita
Studying at another university can be very different to what you're used to at home, particularly if you're studying abroad for the first time. But it was good to find out that a more hands-on research-based approach to learning worked better for me than any other. It depends, of course, on what you're studying too. And although I was already used to living alone and relying more on friends than family, in a different country you see yourself in ways you never could have before. And I like what I see. In fact, if it were up to me, I would definitely stay here.

F Frédéric
I preferred that most of my classes started after midday, and we spent only 3 – 4 hours at university. This doesn't imply that we didn't study properly. And I loved the international atmosphere. Everyone already spoke English, and everyone was into politics. The sheer number of people I talked to in one place without the inconvenience of travelling extensively taught me more about other cultures than the internet ever could. Moreover, spending a semester abroad gave me an opportunity to reflect on current global affairs and shifted my perspective for good.

Which person...
0 has applied for a scholarship while on their exchange programme? → A
1 thought that their exchange was both an exciting and daunting experience?
2 says studying abroad made them work harder?
3 appreciated the work schedule at the university they attended?
4 joined the exchange programme to expand their employment opportunities?
5 decided to stay in their host country?
6 discovered the style of teaching that suited them most during their exchange?
7 suggests that learning a new language is an important benefit of exchanges?
8 stresses the importance of making new acquaintances in an exchange?
9 visited places during their exchange programme?
10 changed their outlook on major problems in the world?
11 found that managing to live independently was an important advantage of their exchange?
12 got to know themselves better during the exchange programme?

Task 2 (Questions 13-18)
Read the text below. For each question (13-18), choose the correct answer (A, B, C or D).

Where are zoos going?

As a child I often went to the zoo. For some reason my parents thought it safe to let a bunch of unruly children walk around the zoo while they had coffee and cake with the other parents. Some of the kids often dared me to do things that did not make me feel comfortable, and although we spent time together, we didn't really get to share our experiences and interests. But at least I didn't feel restricted like when we used to play in the street, and although I lacked the patience to take part in the educational activities, I did watch the animals closely and tried to communicate with them. Twenty years later, after being captives of the pandemic for two years, I asked some experts whether our pleasure in seeing wild animals up close is worth the price of their captivity.

"Education is not an insignificant reason for a well-run zoo's existence," says Dan Atkins. "People ought to be able to see what an animal looks, smells and sounds like." He does confirm though that some animals fare better than others in zoos. "Modern aquariums can be considered largely successful, with their vast tanks in which you can see whole communities of different species living together. By contrast, polar bears, big birds of prey and large hunting mammals like lions are not suitable for being kept in zoos – unless they are being threatened in the wild, which is now becoming a reality."

"I am campaigning vigorously for a sharp acceleration in the return of captive animals, such as cheetahs, to the wild and, ultimately, the closure of all zoos," comments Alina Dawson, an expert on wild cats. "Soon it will be the first time that cheetahs born in captivity have left the UK for rewilding in Africa. There are only about 7,000 cheetahs remaining on the planet," she says. "This reintroduction – to a reserve in Mount Camdeboo, in South Africa – is important because it will help to support the small proportion of cheetahs we have in that country."

Darren Jones, from the Zoological Society, acknowledges on the other hand that the releases of zoo-bred animals into the wild are not a frequent occurrence. This is how he interprets it: "The truth is that many 'wild' areas have been degraded by agriculture, their animals threatened by disease or squeezed into tiny areas with no way of reaching potential mates without coming into conflict with humans. This makes the reintroduction of animals much more complicated than people might realise." He adds: "Not many animals living in zoos are under threat and they are there simply to provide more information on their species."

Another idea that has recently emerged, of closing zoos to boost funds for conservation, is challenged by an expert from Atis Zoo, whose organisation has an annual budget of £40m.
"That money is raised virtually entirely from people paying at our doors to get in," he says.
"After you deduct our running costs, we have around £1.5m that is spent on government programmes for studying chimpanzees on site in Nigeria and reintroducing black rhinos to Uganda. If we simply closed our doors, our funding of these projects would come to an immediate halt."

In the end, it seems these efforts at conservation may prove futile in a world challenged by climate change, habitat loss and swelling numbers of humans. Although most say the educational function of zoos is no justification for life in captivity, they also agree that virtual zoos are a poor substitution for experiencing live animals. Nevertheless, it seems that zoos do have a role to play as arks for threatened wildlife.

13 What does the author of the text say about her childhood visits to the zoo?
A She felt safe on the premises.
B They gave her a sense of freedom.
C She participated in the zoo workshops.
D They helped her bond with other children.

14 Dan Atkins states that
A endangered animals should live in zoos.
B all animals are better off in the wild than in zoos.
C aquariums are not suitable for marine species to live in.
D the educational purpose of zoos cannot justify their existence.

15 What information does Alina Dawson give about cheetahs in paragraph three?
A They have been taken to South Africa and left in the wild.
B They need to be returned to their habitats with greater speed.
C They will soon be taken back to the place where they were born.
D They will join the 7,000 animals in South Africa to help preserve their species.

16 According to Darren Jones, why are animals not released into the wild more often?
A Their original habitats are no longer suitable and safe.
B Most animals now living in zoos belong to endangered species.
C After spending time at a zoo, animals cannot adapt to life in the wilderness.
D It is important to keep endangered animals in zoos for educational purposes.

17 The expert from Atis Zoo says that
A local government pays for the cost of running the zoo.
B the zoo earns 1.5 million pounds from its visitors anually.
C closing the zoo would save more money from the budget for conservation.
D part of the money earned from visitors goes to conservation work in the field.

18 What does the author conclude about the purpose of zoos in her final paragraph?
A Zoos will continue to be needed for educational reasons.
B Digital zoos are an adequate replacement for the real thing.
C Zoos should be kept to help and breed endangered animals.
D Zoos should be gradually shut down and animals returned to the wild.

Task 3 (Questions 19-24)
Read the text. For each question (19-24), choose the sentence (A-H) that best fits the gap. There are two sentences that you do not need. There is an example at the beginning (0→I).

How storm chasers work

Tornadoes and hurricanes are the most dangerous storms nature can throw at us. (0) I.

Most people who live in areas in danger of these storms keep a close eye on weather reports and take cover or evacuate when one is on the way. (19) ___. When a tornado or hurricane happens, they want to be there to observe and record it.

There are some really good reasons for chasing storms – mainly, scientific research, though a few people make a living selling photographs or footage of storms. There are also several reasons why amateurs shouldn't go storm chasing, no matter how much fun it looks. For one thing, hours spent driving around with no guarantee of actually seeing a tornado is anything but exciting. But also, storms are very dangerous. Professional storm chasers have meteorological training that allows them to understand the storms they're chasing. (20) ___. They also learn by chasing with other experienced storm chasers. Amateurs should never chase storms. Ever.

To hunt tornadoes, you need to understand them. A tornado is a swirling mass of air that can reach wind speeds above 300 mph. It's generated from a severe thunderstorm with enough energy and the proper conditions to start a "cyclone" of spinning air. (21) ___. Most frequently they tend to happen in the late evening or during the night, when thunderstorms sweeping across the land have picked up energy from the heat of the day.

Storm chasing isn't non-stop action and danger. It's actually a very methodical practice that requires lots of time spent studying weather data, driving, waiting and more driving. Before bed and first thing in the morning, storm chasers check weather reports from the National Weather Service (NWS), looking for favourable tornado conditions. Cold air at high altitudes with warm air close to the ground is a promising sign, along with winds at different altitudes blowing in different directions. (22) ___. Then they hop into their chase vehicle and start driving.

As they close in on the storm, the chasers will watch for several elements. One is the anticlockwise rotation of clouds that is typical of evidence of strong air currents within the storm. (23) ___. They don't always produce tornadoes, but they're a sign that one might be forming.

At this point, the chasers might have time to look for a good place to observe the tornado. (24) ___. Once a funnel cloud forms and a tornado touches ground, one of the chasers will track its movement by watching it against a stationary background object. A tornado can change direction suddenly, but in general the storm chasers will make sure they can move perpendicular to its path to get away if they need to.

A They can take place almost anywhere in the world.
B Storm chasers keep an even closer eye on weather data, but for a different reason.
C They know when conditions are safe and when it's time to back off.
D Ideally, they would set up on a hill about three miles away to get the best view.
E Tornadoes can happen anywhere and at any time.
F Another is a wall cloud, a cloud that seems to descend from the bottom of the storm.
G After analysing the weather data, the chasers select a likely path.
H This means about 75% of the world's tornadoes form in the United States.
I They can destroy entire buildings and cause thousands of injuries or deaths.

Task 4 (Questions 25-32)
Read the text below. For each question (25-32), choose the answer (A, B, C or D) that best completes the sentence. There is an example at the beginning (0→B).

Learning a foreign language

Most people decide to learn a new language (0) _B_ of some kind of necessity. They (25)___ be moving abroad, expanding their business to another country, or taking a holiday.

But plenty pick (26) __ a second language as a passion project. So, if this sounds like you, think about what to do. Having a genuine connection to a language might not make you (27) __ faster, but it'll keep you motivated when the basic vocabulary just isn't enough.

You've chosen a language, set your (28)___ and been inspired by some cultural references – but now what?

Once upon a time, the only option for those who fancied (29) ___ their hand at learning a language was costly language lessons that didn't really offer a variety of learning styles.

There's still certainly something to be said for traditional language lessons, since going to a language school you get plenty of speaking practice and support from language teachers.

Relocating to a country where your language of choice is spoken is without (30)___ the best way to learn quickly and effectively. There are plenty of language programmes with a mix of language classes and real-life practice opportunities.

Also, being close to the pros will help you. If you only ever (31)___ with another language learner, you'll both find yourselves stuck on a plateau, because neither of you will have the knowledge to lead one another up to the next level.

When you (32) __ the time to find a native speaker as a conversational partner, you'll find yourself progressing much more quickly. You'll probably also have more interesting conversations.

Task 5 (Questions 33-40)
Read the text. For each question (33-40), choose the answer (A-M) that best completes the sentence. There are five options that you do not need. There is an example at the beginning (0→N).

Being mindful

Mindfulness is the practice of purposely (0) _N_ your attention on the present moment – and accepting it without judgement. Mindfulness is now being examined scientifically and has been found to be a key element in stress reduction and overall happiness.

Increasing your capacity (33) ___ mindfulness results in activities that contribute to a satisfied life. Being mindful makes it easier to savour the pleasures in life as they occur, helps you become fully engaged in activities, and creates a greater capacity to deal (34) ___ adverse events. Scientists say that (35) ____ focusing on the here and now, many people who practise mindfulness find that they are less likely to get caught up in worries about the future or regrets over the past. They are (36) ____ preoccupied with concerns about success and self-esteem, and are better able to form deep connections with others.

As (37) ____ greater well-being isn't enough of an incentive, scientists have discovered that mindfulness techniques help improve physical health in a number of ways. Mindfulness can help relieve stress, treat heart disease, lower blood pressure, reduce chronic pain, improve sleep, and alleviate gastrointestinal difficulties.

There is more (38) ____ one way to practise mindfulness. However, the goal of any mindfulness technique is to achieve a state of focused alertness and relaxation by deliberately paying attention to the (39) ___ we base our judgements on. This allows the mind to refocus on the present moment. All mindfulness techniques are a form of meditation.

One can also cultivate mindfulness by directing attention to moment-to-moment (40) ___ during everyday activities. This is achieved by doing one thing at a time and by giving it full attention. While we floss our teeth, pet the dog, or eat an apple, we should slow down the process and be fully present as it unfolds and involves all our senses.

LISTENING PAPER

Task 1 (Questions 1-5)

You will hear five people talking about going to the gym. Match each speaker (1-5) with one option from A-H. There are three options that you do not need. You will hear the recording twice.

What is each person's reason for going to the gym?

A To build up muscles.
B To become a personal trainer.
C To lose weight.
D To get rid of stress.
E To recover after an injury.
F To compete in high-level sporting events.
G To improve their social life.
H To feel better about themselves.

Task 2 (Questions 6-13)

You will hear people talking in eight situations. For each question (6-13), choose the correct answer (A, B or C). You will hear each recording twice.

6 You hear Jeff talking to a friend about taking a photography course.
Why did Jeff start doing photography?
A To recover from a break-up.
B To make friends.
C To learn a new skill.

7 You hear Anna talking about her new flat.
What does Anna say about it?
A It's spacious.
B It's well-located.
C It's expensive.

8 You hear Fred talking to a friend about the weekend.
Where is Fred going?
A To a party.
B To an exhibition.
C On a boat cruise.

9 You hear Jane talking to a friend about a lecture she attended.
How did Jane feel afterwards?
A Enthusiastic.
B Disappointed.
C Exhausted.

10 You hear an activist talking in a radio programme.
What is the main topic of her speech?
A Deforestation.
B Extinction of species.
C Air pollution.

11 You hear a professor talking to a student about his essay.
What is the problem with the essay?
A The language used.
B The content discussed.
C The personal input.

12 You hear a woman talking to a friend about Ian.
What does she like about Ian?
A His empathy.
B His sense of duty.
C His enthusiasm.

13 You hear two people talking about gaming.
Why does the man play video games?
A To boost his mood.
B To develop his social skills.
C To gain new experiences.

Task 3 (Questions 14-19)
You will hear two friends talking about smartphone apps. For each question (14-19), choose the correct answer (A, B or C) from the list of apps. Mark A for ActOn, B for BudWay or C for CleverNote. You will hear the recording twice.

Which app...
14 is the most time-saving?
15 is best for group projects?
16 is the most widely used?
17 is best for the environment?
18 is the most instructive?
19 is free of charge?

Task 4 (Questions 20-25)
You will hear a radio interview with Ian White, an ocean photographer. For each question (20-25), choose the correct answer (A, B or C). You will hear the recording twice.

20 According to Ian, what is the most important thing in ocean photography?
A Pushing your own limits.
B Working on your growth and focus.
C Being skilful with your equipment.

21 How does he deal with the fear?
A By visualising possibly dangerous situations.
B By practising being comfortable when feeling anxious.
C By turning worry and unease into exhilaration.

22 When did he realise he wanted to be an ocean photographer?
A After taking his first photos at the ocean front.
B After seeing a sea-life exhibition.
C After volunteering in the Oceanarium.

23 How did he feel about switching from wedding to ocean photography?
A It was rather tough.
B It was sudden.
C It happened naturally.

24 What is the most expensive aspect of his job?
A Sophisticated lenses.
B Wetsuits.
C Travelling.

25 How does Ian feel about his success?
A It feels unreal.
B It serves a purpose.
C It irritates him.

READING PAPER
Task 1 (Questions 1-12)
You are going to read an article in which people talk about hobbies. For each question (1-12), choose one person from A-F. There is an example at the beginning (0→B).

Hobbies

A Andrew
My father was a pianist and I grew up listening to long and tedious concert rehearsals. He expected me to follow in his footsteps, but by the time I hit puberty I had got fed up with piano lessons and decided to try rapping in my free time. Although he found my attitude to music offensive and was repulsed by my somewhat vulgar lyrics, the unexpected ease with which I rhymed was truly amazing to both of us. Luckily, my sister was into her piano and loved classical pieces, which made my rebellion more bearable.

B Becky
At the age of 17 I had a bad case of pneumonia and stayed in the hospital for weeks. As a very hyperactive person I quickly became frustrated by the lack of activity so one of the nurses showed me how to make some simple origami, hoping it would distract me from my idleness. Although it didn't come naturally to me, I fell in love with it instantly and got hooked for good. Later in life I used to spend hours folding paper at home with my own children in order to swap the origami for money with neighbours and donate to the local animal shelter.

C Christian
I lost my wife to a serious illness last year. She was my companion and my best friend. I honestly thought life had completely become devoid of meaning. Then my daughter brought a leaflet advertising a ballroom dancing course for senior citizens and I realised how hard my depression was on her. She knew I'd give it a go, being physically active and fit. I've been enjoying it very much not only for the dancing – I had always had it in me – but also for the friendships which gave me a new sense of purpose.

D Derek
One of my friends had been suffering from back pain and we realised that our sedentary lifestyle of staring at one screen or another was detrimental to our health. We took up Geocaching, an outdoor recreational activity, in which the participants use a GPS receiver to hide and seek containers called 'caches' at specific locations marked by coordinates. My mother doubted it at first, but now she loves the fact that my mates and I walk and cycle while talking much more than before.

E Esther
When I first started working as a secretary to the CEO of a multinational company, I didn't know how frequently I'd be sitting at my desk at 8 pm feeling physically drained, stressed out about pending tasks and desperate for a cigarette. On one of his business trips abroad, my boss learned about how beneficial Thai Chi can be for the overall productivity of employees and introduced an obligatory session, which takes place before lunch break and outdoors whenever the weather permits. I no longer need the gym membership, and I've even stopped smoking.

F Flora
I have been a bookworm since my early days. In adolescence, my love of reading kept me away from parties and nightclubs, which my parents appreciated as much as my top grades. I earned a master's degree in French at the age of 23 but didn't really have the passion for teaching or interpreting. Since I started my book blog there hasn't been a boring day in my life and, in addition to being quite well off, I now get free book samples from publishers who are eager to see a review of their latest edition on my website.

Which person...
0 had difficulty staying in bed? → B
1 was encouraged by a family member to do a hobby?
2 needed the activity to stave off boredom?
3 improved their social life?
4 was forced into taking up the hobby?
5 turned their hobby into a profitable business?
6 kicked an addiction?
7 decided to spend more free time in the open air?
8 discovered a talent?
9 used their hobby to contribute to society?
10 became mentally healthier?
11 did their hobby despite a parent's disapproval?
12 became more physically active?

Task 2 (Questions 13-18)
Read the text below. For each question (13-18), choose the correct answer (A, B, C or D).

Reinforcement learning

Imagine a thought experiment in which you are sitting at a casino's poker table. Someone has explained the basic rules to you, but you've never played before and don't know even the simplest strategies. While on the one hand this might seem to be most people's idea of an anxiety-inducing situation, on the other it does not sound disimilar to the beginning of a fairly typical training session for a certain kind of artificial intelligence (AI) program.

If an AI system found itself at the casino poker table, it would begin taking random actions within the rules – if playing five-card draw, for example, it would not ask for seven cards. When, eventually, and simply by virtue of dumb luck, it won a hand, it would take careful note of all the actions that led to that reward. Then, if it played the game for long enough, perhaps playing millions of hands, and accumulated a sufficient quantity of data, it could devise a good strategy for winning.

This type of training is known as reinforcement learning (RL), and it's the-state-of-the-art technology in machine learning today. RL can be used to teach agents, be they pieces of software or physical robots, how to act to achieve certain goals. And it has been responsible for some of the most impressive triumphs by artificial intelligence in recent years, such as the Google DeepMind Challenge Match in South Korea in 2016, not to be confused with the chess match between Deep Blue, an IBM supercomputer, and Gary Gasparov in 1997. In the former case, an RL computer program beat the 18-time world champion in the board game of Go.

RL differs from another approach called supervised learning, in which systems are trained using an existing labeled dataset. To continue the poker example: in a supervised-learning process, the AI player would get data about millions of hands. Each item of data would be labeled to describe how good or bad an action is for a given state of the game. This would allow the player to take good actions when it sees game states similar to those in the training data. This isn't a very practical way to train, since building a dataset with a massive number of possible game situations and actions is extremely difficult.

In contrast, RL offers a more effective way of training by allowing the agent to develop a dataset in real time during the training, which is more sophisticated than a labeled dataset. It proves a big advantage when dealing with real-world applications that don't come with lots of carefully organised observations. What's more, RL agents can learn strategies that enable them to act even in an uncertain and changing environment, taking their best guesses at the appropriate action when in a new situation.

One typical critique of RL is that it's inefficient, that it's just a glorified trial-and-error process that succeeds because of the mere computing power put to it. But researchers have been devising efficient techniques that can exploit RL for practical breakthroughs. Their projects have been working on RL agents that can quickly figure out complex tasks and that can work together in teams, putting the group's overall objective ahead of their own individual goals. It is expected that in the near future, such methods will be tested on robots and other autonomous systems to bring these achievements into the real world.

13 Why does the writer introduce the thought experiment in the first paragraph?
A To draw a parallel with artificial intelligence.
B To draw a parallel with artificial intelligence training.
C To suggest a strategy for learning how to play poker.
D To describe circumstances which would cause anxiety.

14 In the situation described in the thought experiment, an artificial intelligence system
A would only win on account of pure luck.
B would start by not playing according to the rules.
C would continue playing the game millions of times.
D would accumulate information about winning hands.

15 Reinforcement learning
A was developed in South Korea in 2016.
B is at the cutting edge of modern technology.
C defeated Gary Kasparov in a game of chess.
D is used to teach secret agents how to reach their goals.

16 Supervised learning systems
A are similar to reinforcement learning systems.
B allow poker players to assess training data.
C are difficult to train to build a dataset.
D evaluate data by labeling it.

17 Reinforcement learning is superior to supervised learning because
A it generates a superior dataset.
B it is based on careful observation.
C it is based on a larger quantity of data.
D it enables certainty in changing situations.

18 Experts researching reinforcement learning
A rely on a trial-and-error process.
B are testing their methods on robots.
C owe their success to computer power.
D are developing agents which are team-player.

Task 3 (Questions 19-24)
Read the text on the next page. For each question (19-24), choose the sentence (A-H) that best fits the gap. There are two sentences that you do not need. There is an example at the beginning (0→I).

The tyranny of passwords

Modern life is the act of entering the name of a long-dead family pet into an online form over and over again, getting it wrong, and trying to figure out what the correct password might be. Our ancestors lived short, brutish lives and were gored to death on the battlefield. (0) I.

Passwords deny us access to our bank accounts, our photos, our contracts, even our heating. These petty dictators reproduce as endlessly as bacteria. And yet, you can never find the one you need. (19) _____. Easy to crack and hard to remember. And forgetting them is pricey.

We lose things; we forget. It is in our nature, it's what makes us human. Most of all, we forget our passwords. In fact, the average person has close to 80 passwords, hardly any of which they remember. Not being able to remember your password is merely irritating. (20) _____. Like in the case of German programmer Stefan Thomas who lost the password to around $220m worth of bitcoin. He had three copies of his bitcoin passwords saved on hard drives and a USB stick, but the first two versions failed due to software updates, and the USB stick is password protected. If Thomas enters the password incorrectly 10 times, the data wipes. He has two attempts left, and he can't remember the password.

The best password is a random password. But people aren't good at generating random passwords or remembering them. They think they are being smart in creating them. (21) _____.
Our passwords reveal a humanity that is much more shared than we can imagine. We all think alike, we all do similar things. And it's in all the hacker dictionaries.

There are literally billions of password breaches every year. (22) _____. The World Economic Forum estimates that cybercrime costs the global economy $2.9m every minute. Around 80% of those attacks are password-related.

There is a solution to all this chaos and confusion: a password manager. These are apps or small pieces of software. They store all your different usernames and passwords in secure vaults. A password manager will randomly generate impenetrable passwords for all your various accounts, and store them for you. (23) _____. And the password manager remembers the rest. It's the equivalent of having a book in your house, with all your passwords written in it – only digital and highly secure.

Wouldn't it be even better to never have to remember another password again? Well, that day is near. (24) _____. The solution is biometrics. An Israeli start-up has developed software that can analyse the unique way a person drags their mouse, and use it to catch cybercriminals impersonating users. Other firms are developing technology based on the unique contours of a person's ears. We will have a constellation of biometrics, not just your fingerprint, but your voice or how you hold your phone.

The tyranny of passwords is coming to an end. For the ordinary consumers, passwords will be gone within the next two to five years, so we may soon move seamlessly through life unburdened by passwords. Until that day – access denied.

A Sometimes, however, password amnesia can be life-altering.
B It's highly likely that a hacker will get access to them.
C We're on the brink of a passwordless world.
D However, almost everything you intuitively believe about passwords is not correct.
E They are infuriating gatekeepers that rule our lives on a daily basis.
F It's a total epidemic.
G Those passwords are tedious and humans need to give up on them.
H All users need to do is memorise their master password.
I But at least they didn't have passwords.

Task 4 (Questions 25-32)
Read the text below. For each question (25-32), choose the answer (A, B, C or D) that best completes the sentence. There is an example at the beginning (0→A).

The Cajon

The cajon has been, since the 19th century, a key component in traditional Afro-Peruvian music. Named (0) A the Spanish word for "box", the cajon was first invented to replace the African drums used by slaves in colonial Peru, (25) ___ were eventually banned by the slaves' masters. The first examples of the cajon were extremely simple, consisting merely of empty wooden fruit crates or even upside-down drawers – anything that (26) ___ be harnessed to the rhythm of the music.

If the cajon's contemporary popularity can be (27) ___ to any single musician, it would undoubtedly be Paco de Lucia, the famed master of the flamenco guitar. He attended a party in his honour thrown at Spain's embassy in Lima in the early 1970s. This celebration featured the musical stylings of a local folk band, (28) ___ instrumentation included the cajon. The instrument's bold sound naturally appealed (29) ___ Paco; the flamenco style includes multiple rhythms and typically calls for the guitarist to beat on the body of his instrument in addition to playing it normally. He (30) ___ captivated by the cajon and asked his percussionist to try using it to play the traditional flamenco rhythm. The results were so (31) ___ that de Lucia took a cajon with him when he returned to Spain. The cajon's sound is ideal for short, staccato rhythms like those used in flamenco with its stamping (32) ___ and clapping. Coming to Spain was the cajon's first step on a journey towards worldwide popularity.

Task 5 (Questions 33-40)
Read the text. For each question (33-40), choose the answer (A-M) that best completes the sentence. There are five options that you do not need. There is an example at the beginning (0→N).

The Post-Truth Society

Our society appears to be experiencing a period (0) N truth, norms, rules and traditions cannot be relied on in order for us to make decisions about our future. Some people call (33) ____ the post-truth society.

What are the causes of this fundamental change in our information culture? Experts say that 'datafication' (which means our lives (34) ____ more and more digital), mass surveillance (which means less privacy), and social media are (35) ____ blame. As well as an increasing (36) ____ to look to emotion, rather than reason.

Truth does matter – without it we are exposed to chaos. The most powerful counter to the post-truth society is to have educated, engaged and well-informed citizens, (37) ____ refuse to allow themselves to be deceived by disinformation, most of which comes from 'interested parties' (entrepreneurs, corporations, institutions, governments) who can gain a benefit from the (38) ____ of trust in consensual, factual truth.

Experts also say that these times call for unbiased and current knowledge that (39) ____ inform action – particularly from people working in sectors that are responsible for the post-truth society, such as 'big tech' executives, social media operatives, journalists and politicians.

All agree that learning and education must play a major role in (40) ____ workable solutions to address the challenges of the post-truth society.There are three options that you do not need. There is an example at the beginning (0→L).

LISTENING PAPER
Task 1 (Questions 1-5)
You will hear five people talking about the environment. Match each speaker (1-5) with one option (A-H). There are three options that you do not need. You will hear the recording twice.

What does each person think about the environment?

A Carbon energy is here to stay.
B Technology can provide the solution.
C People must change their lives.
D There has to be a switch to non-carbon energy.
E The climate situation is bad news.
F The changes we need will take a long time.
G There's nothing to worry about.
H Vegetarianism could save the planet.

Task 2 (Questions 6-13)
You will hear people talking in eight situations. For each question (6-13), choose the correct answer (A, B or C). You will hear each recording twice.

6 You will hear a girl talking about her best friend Mandy.
What does she say about her?
A She's fun.
B She's loyal.
C She's different.

7 You will hear a man talking about a job ad.
Why does he want to apply?
A He is qualified for it.
B The salary is good.
C It wouldn't be stressful.

8 You hear a man talking about winning the lottery.
What would he do with the money if he won it?
A Save it.
B Spend it.
C Invest it.

9 You hear a girl talking about adolescence.
How does she feel about being a teenager?
A Frustrated.
B Indifferent.
C Satisfied.

10 You hear two people talking.
What is the main topic of their conversation?
A Nutrition.
B Exercise.
C Health.

11 You hear a student talking about his new computer.
What does he need it for?
A Entertainment.
B School.
C Work.

12 You hear a woman talking about a piece of furniture she bought.
What does she say about it?
A It's expensive.
B It's damaged.
C It's too big.

13 You hear a man apologizing to his boss.
Why didn't he write the report?
A He forgot about it.
B He didn't know how to do it.
C He felt it wasn't his job.

Task 3 (Questions 14-19)
You will hear two friends talking about three companies as possible employers. For each question (14-19), choose the correct answer (A, B or C) from the list of companies. Mark A for AdvertPro, B for BrandMaster or C for CloudTech. You will hear the recording twice.

Which company...
14 has flexible working hours?
15 is an international company?
16 is active in the community?
17 pays its employees all travel expenses?
18 has a strict dress code?
19 requires no previous work experience?

Task 4 (Questions 20-25)
You will hear a radio interview with Shelly Bisque, a professional chef. For each question (20-25), choose the correct answer (A, B or C). You will hear the recording twice.

20 When did Shelly discover she loved cooking?
A As a young girl.
B When she went to secondary school.
C When she left school.

21 Why did Shelly leave her job at Gordon's Restaurant?
A Because she became obsessive about work.
B Because she wanted to be more creative.
C Because she wanted to prepare exotic food for retailers.

22 How did her boyfriend Finn react when Shelly decided to go to Japan?
A He was pleased for her.
B He decided to go with her.
C He sympathised with her motives.

23 What did Shelly do in Japan?
A She studied Asian cuisine.
B She worked in traditional restaurants.
C She ate a lot of noodles.

24 Why did Shelly come back from Japan?
A To get married.
B To develop new food products.
C To work for Kost-Less.

25 How did Shelly react to early success?
A She found the pressure too much.
B She started training other chefs.
C She started learning business skills.

READING PAPER

Task 1 (Questions 1-12)

You are going to read an article in which people talk about holidays. For each question (1-12), choose one person from A-F. There is an example at the beginning (0→A).

Holidays

A Alison

I'd always wished I'd been to the tropics, so when I saw the advert for a Caribbean cruise, I was over the moon. Considering the facilities and locations, it's really quite reasonable. For one of the destinations, I had to get a visa at short notice, and I was on pins and needles until it arrived, I can tell you. I've not been at my best recently, with work being so stressful, and I'm anticipating there'll be some therapeutic benefits from this trip. Everyone in the office is jealous – they're saying it's going to be so cool!

B Ben

This year I've decided to push the boat out and visit a Greek island. It's something I've always longed to do, and I fly out in June. It was a snap decision in the end, and I was worried that the villa was rather steep, but the sea views look fantastic. According to 'Healthy Living' magazine's recommendation, it's a winning location. The island has lots of places to visit, and they accommodate groups or single travellers, so I'm looking forward to an interesting time. I've gone self-catering, mind you: I hope getting supplies won't be a headache.

C Colin

If you'd told me six months ago that I'd be going on a proper safari, I'd have laughed, but all those years of filling in magazine coupons have paid off at last. A fortnight in Namibia – I can hardly believe my luck! I didn't expect to have so many shots to be honest, but that's a small price to pay, when you consider what's in store. We tour around a national park from our base camp, dropping in at various lookouts and stations every day. I'm relaxed about everything but the heat: that could be an uphill struggle.

D Deborah

We're creatures of habit, so it's the good old canal barge this summer. Moving along at four miles per hour is super-chilled, and it's amazing how much you see en route: kingfishers and otters, for example. You overnight at pubs or marinas along the way, and there's always some entertaining company to inject some humour into our evenings. They do say that laughter is the best medicine. We only worry about what to eat when we get hungry. Eating out every night can be a bit pricey, but that's the last thing we're worried about at our age.

E Ewan

It's the standard package holiday this year for us. You can't beat it – everything's paid for, so you can eat and drink as much as you like, there's a water park for the youngsters and the nightlife is pretty good too. It's a win-win situation, really – and you can book everything in no time at all. When it comes to holidays, you name it, we've done it, but this one just ticks every box. My wife is worried though: she says where's the fun when you get it all handed to you on a plate?

F Frances

It'll be walking in the Alps this time. We've hired a villa in the Tyrol and we're going with some neighbours. They fancied the Rockies, but this is the best we can do. Although the climbing will be quite demanding compared to East Anglia, once we've got a second wind it should be OK – fingers crossed! I've no doubt Derek will take his time as usual, snapping photographs, but that'll give the rest of us a chance to catch our breath. One thing I'm a bit worried about is whether we will have packed enough layers to wear.

Which person says...

0 had always regretted not going somewhere? → A
1 is going on the holiday they normally take?
2 is anticipating cold temperatures?
3 won their holiday in a competition?
4 considers their holiday the ultimate choice?
5 is surprised at the medical requirements for the holiday?
6 considers their holiday comparatively cheap?
7 is anxious about ascents?
8 only spent a short time considering their booking?
9 is taking a holiday on a small vessel?
10 is hoping the holiday will have medical benefits?
11 will stay in different places over the holiday?
12 is concerned about the food that will be available?

Task 2 (Questions 13-18)

Read the text below. For each question (13-18), choose the correct answer (A, B, C or D).

Trees and Green Spaces in Cities

"Trees provide nesting sites, food, and cover for countless species living around us. Of course," Tom Baker says, "as students of architecture we used to refer to trees as graceful supplements making a house feel like a home and enriching the view from the window, which they still very much do." They also help clear the atmosphere by decreasing pollution. Trees cool the air, land and water with leafy shade and moisture. Those planted near our homes and in our community reduce the need for air-conditioning and heating produced by burning fossil fuels. And the list goes on and on.

Fast-forward a decade, and Tom Baker is head of 'The Green Spaces Initiative' in Brookson. He says green spaces can contribute to a more liveable, sustainable, and economically strong city that improves the quality of life of its inhabitants. Urban planning thus requires careful consideration of the environmental impact of city life, including the attempt to reduce CO2 emissions, and of various other factors, such as local demographics, social or cultural values, and economic development. Apart from the traditionally accepted view that they provide spaces for recreation and relaxation, a wide range of experts have confirmed that areas of greenery enhance biodiversity. After a local opinion poll, another interpretation has emerged, defining them as places where people can interact.

It is estimated that, ideally, everyone should live within 500 metres of a green space. Despite that, it is not uncommon for city planners to overlook the inclusion of green spaces, especially in highly urbanised areas where there is little room for property development. City planners may prioritise economic development and infrastructure over green spaces although there is now a common understanding of their benefits. Whether or not humans have interfered with the development of a green area determines whether it is considered to be natural. This will lead either to revitalising it or protecting it for its significance to the environment.

In general, however, incorporating green spaces in cities is crucial and it requires constant campaigning to raise awareness among citizens of its numerous benefits. Tom adds: "An example is that spending time in a park can be a great family- and community-building activity, such as sharing a birthday or playing games, or that trees can reduce harmful substances, lowering the incidence of respiratory problems. While we're currently promoting the latest data referring to the reduction of stress levels and anxiety, next in line is that parks can create a sense of place, adding character to urban areas."

In short, there is no doubt that green spaces are beneficial for the environment and the community. Nevertheless, one major challenge remains: many cities have already grown so packed that large swathes of parks and forest trails are nearly impossible to establish as it would be too expensive to bring down existing blocks of housing. A solution may be creating mini forests in the smaller spaces, growing up to 30 times as fast as conventional ones. This involves planting a limited number of native species in a small space to produce a thick forest that could prove efficient in remediating soil and supplying animal habitats.

"Many cities have underutilised spaces, such as carparks, abandoned buildings and vacant lots. If they wanted, local authorities could convert them into parks, community gardens, green roofs, and other types of urban green infrastructure. Maintaining biodiversity for any green area is key for its own and human survival in general," states Tom. "Governments could also encourage local participation through petitions or complaints as well as involvement in the creation and maintenance of green spaces, as they are increasingly considered to minimise the influence of pollutants. This could be done through volunteer programmes, community garden initiatives, and other community-based programmes."

A They remove CO2 from the atmosphere.
B They bring songbirds and wildlife close by.
C They make a neighbourhood more beautiful.
D They reduce the heat from streets and buildings.

14 What are the benefits of more parks and green spaces, according to Brookson's residents?
A They reduce social isolation.
B They lower their carbon footprint.
C They produce habitats for many species.
D They present more opportunities for exercise.

15 Why are green spaces often not included in city planning?
A Because of the cities' low housing budgets.
B Because humans have changed them beyond return.
C Because people fail to realise how important green spaces are.
D Because in congested parts of the city space is in high demand.

16 Which slogan would summarise Tom's most recent campaign for making green spaces more popular?
A Green spaces remove pollutants.
B Green spaces improve mental health.
C Green spaces are educational and fun.
D Green spaces develop the identity of cities.

17 How can green spaces be developed in urban areas?
A By employing rapid-growth techniques.
B By removing old buildings to insert green spaces.
C By letting existing green areas and natural forests grow.
D By planting numerous tree species to restore deteriorated land.

18 In the last paragraph, what does Tom say should be given priority when planning a green space?
A The opinions and attitudes of the local population.
B The local government's plans for a particular area.
C The provision of habitats for local plant and animal species.
D The reduction of the environmental impact of life in city areas.

Task 3 (Questions 19-24)
Read the text. For each question (19-24), choose the sentence (A-H) that best fits the gap. There are two sentences that you do not need. There is an example at the beginning (0→I).

Downshifting

The paradigm of the career ladder has long been promoted by employment services and recruitment agencies. (0) I. Therefore, current developments in Western Europe, where city slickers are becoming brewers and executives are picking up power tools, are certainly something that is upsetting the applecart.

Statistics show that, at the start of 2022, one fifth of French people were in the process of changing jobs and over a quarter were thinking about it. In general, labour markets have become less regulated and more insecure for workers. (19) _____. English has a word for it – 'downshifting' – signifying a career change to an activity perhaps less well paid, but offering better job satisfaction.

Commentators are perplexed by what appears to run counter to perceived wisdom on social mobility and aspiration. Millennials and younger generations in society must increasingly make do with jobs less prestigious than their parents' or for which they are overqualified. (20) _____. What are we to make, therefore, of the manager who actively wants to become a cheese maker?

A recent study in France has lifted the lid on what is going on, providing an insight into new motivations and aspirations. The first takeaway is that career switchers' attitude to employment is 'experiential': they prize fulfilment over material reward. (21) _____. Some access benefits during retraining; others have income from family or savings to fall back on. Their existing qualifications and CV offer them an escape route should things not work out. In some ways, it is the best of both worlds.

The new career may not offer the kudos, social opportunities or financial reward they might otherwise expect, but the experiential perspective results in a change in expectation. (22) _____. As a result, they rarely feel a loss of status; indeed, they are more likely to report an increased sense of 'meaning' in their new job.

This brings us to the second major conclusion of the study, which has more to do with the nature of the employment being abandoned. (23) _____. This is manifested in rejection of an unhealthy sedentary existence, as well as the narrow focus of stratified work in a large faceless company. They complained of an increasing feeling of disconnection from a higher sense of vocation in what they were doing. Some went further, describing modern career structures and lifestyles as devoid of purpose and even meaningless.

In stark contrast, manual activity offers the gratification of physical involvement. There are perceived benefits to mind and body. (24) _____. This is completely in opposition to the soul-destroying tedium of a corporate culture of meetings, reports and hierarchies, where the division of labour means that workers can never physically hold the fruits of their labour. Of course, disturbing developments worldwide have contributed to this reordering of priorities but, ultimately, a concern with autonomy is what is driving these changes. The retrained craftsperson is more likely to be involved with all aspects of production and to see palpable results from their efforts. This, it seems, trumps old notions of 'a secure job.'

A They are less likely to focus on these aspects and more on the notion of job satisfaction.
B The work has immediacy and tangible results.
C That said, they often have the reassurance of a safety net.
D Part of this trend is that professionals are enthusiastically embracing 'trades', as they were once dismissively termed.
E Losing a job can be a shock to the system and have unexpected results.
F Many respondents reported being put off by the idea of a lifetime spent at a desk interacting with a computer screen.
G There is a measurable increase in spirituality.
H This is characterised as an unfortunate, even unfair, imposition.
I Offspring securely employed in administrative or professional occupations is the holy grail of ambitious parents all over the world.

Task 4 (Questions 25-32)
Read the text below. For each question (25-32), choose the answer (A, B, C or D) that best completes the sentence. There is an example at the beginning (0→A).

Losing an Accent

Everybody has an accent. Listening to accents we can immediately make (0) A about our interlocutors. The way someone talks (25) _____ to their identity. So why is it that some people lose their regional or national accent, (26) _____ for others it remains firmly in place? You may consider your accent to be immutable, but research shows that at any point in our lives the need to conform may alter – on a conscious or subconscious level – our vocal production, (27) _____ we like it or not.

In the case of those whose accents do shift, the way (28) _____ which they speak may be of less importance to their sense of identity, or it may be that it is their need to belong to a social or professional group that causes the change. As young children, we are exposed to a relatively small social group we learn to imitate. As we encounter wider societal groupings this same instinct to assimilate (29) ____ us to modify our speech patterns accordingly. The process can repeat itself multiple times in a person's life as variations in work or location occur.

Of course, there are others (30) ____ voices remain impervious to change. It is possible that this reflects a sense of security in cultural identity, or perhaps an urge to identify with (or even advertise) their original background rather than any new environment where they find themselves. In addition, (31) ____ a person possess the accent of what is deemed to be a prestigious group in society, they will consequently feel (32)____ pressure to abandon that advantage. This confirms speech's crucial role in our sense of identity. Accents are all around us!

Task 5 (Questions 33-40)
Read the text. For each question (33-40), choose the answer (A-M) that best completes the sentence. There are five options that you do not need. There is an example at the beginning (0→N).

The future with ChatGPT

ChatGPT defines (0) N as a state-of-the-art AI language model developed by OpenAI. It is a Generative Pre-trained Transformer (GPT) model that (33) ____ deep learning techniques to generate human-like text based on the input provided. It consists of a massive corpus of diverse internet content, including webpages, books, essays, and other publicly available text sources. However, ChatGPT answers users' requests based on these sources, but without credits or reference (34) ____ where the information comes from, which poses a huge copyright problem, particularly because of ChatGPT's widespread usage (35) ____ students, especially in completing academic assignments.

The AI model (36) ____ various language tasks such as answering questions, generating creative writing, and translating text. Although mimicking human conversation is, in fact, (37) ____ main feature, ChatGPT has other capabilities as well. This includes storing previous conversations to be recalled when and where necessary, or writing and debugging computer programs, answering test questions (sometimes at a level higher than the average human test-taker), composing song lyrics, simulating an entire chat room, and even playing games like tic-tac-toe. As impressive as this may sound, ChatGPT's features are creating legal and ethical problems that will have to be discussed and solved in the future.

Another ethical concern the model (38) ____ is plagiarism. Educational institutions are hugely concerned (39) ____ the originality of the work that students submit. Unfortunately, ChatGPT has made this problem even more serious by making it easier for students to plagiarise almost undetected. While (40) ____ have been AIs developed with the sole purpose of detecting AI-written content, the tools are not 100% accurate and they may pronounce a human-written text as AI-generated and vice versa.

It can be concluded that ChatGPT has been given many positive reviews but has also received a lot of criticism since appearing in 2022.

LISTENING PAPER
Task 1 (Questions 1-5)
You will hear five people talking about priorities in life. Match each speaker (1-5) with one option (A-H). There are three options that you do not need. You will hear the recording twice.

What is each person's top priority?

A Romantic relationships.	D Freedom.	G Health.
B Family.	E Status.	H Friendship.
C Job fulfilment.	F Money.

Task 2 (Questions 6-13)
You will hear people talking in eight situations. For each question (6-13), choose the correct answer (A, B or C). You will hear each recording twice.

6 You hear Terry talking to a friend about a walking club.
Why did Terry join the club?
A For something to do at weekends.
B To discover new places.
C To lose weight.

7 You hear David talking to a friend about his plans for the weekend.
What is David going to do?
A He's going to work.
B He's going to the flea market.
C He's going to his aunt's.

8 You hear a man and a woman discussing her new TV.
What is the woman's complaint about it?
A It's too loud.
B It's too expensive.
C It's too big.

9 You hear two people discussing the recent election.
What is the main topic of discussion?
A The numbers of people voting.
B The role the environment played.
C The influence of the youth vote.

10 You hear a man asking Sarah about her recent holiday.
What is Sarah's main emotion after the holiday?
A Enthusiasm.
B Irritation.
C Indifference.

11 You hear Pat talking to a friend about his work as a delivery rider.
Why did Pat take on the job?
A For financial reasons.
B For domestic reasons.
C For health reasons.

12 You hear a woman describing her business colleague Greg.
What does she admire most about Greg?
A His charm.
B His determination.
C His adaptability.

13 You hear a man talking about an apartment he has been to view.
What made him decide against it?
A The location.
B The cost.
C The view.

Task 3 (Questions 14-19)
You will hear two friends talking about three eBooks. For each question (14-19), choose the correct answer (A, B or C) from the list of eBooks. Mark A for Alfa, B for Bravo or C for Charlie. You will hear the recording twice.

Which eBook...
14 is slightly off-topic?
15 is clearly and logically written?
16 is the most creative?
17 uses references properly?
18 has photos linked to the topic?
19 will have the greatest impact on its readers?

Task 4 (Questions 20-25)
You will hear a radio interview with Patrick Ahmadi, a pickleball player. For each question (20-25), choose the correct answer (A, B or C). You will hear the recording twice.

20 Why did Patrick take up pickleball?
A Because of his interest in athletics.
B Because he wanted to learn something new.
C Because he was fascinated by the game.

21 Who was pickleball originally intended for?
A Ageing adults.
B Children and teenagers.
C All age groups.

22 What has, according to Patrick, made pickleball spread so quickly?
A It requires little instruction.
B It is taught at school.
C It is a family game.

23 What are the disadvantages of pickleball for Patrick?
A Hours-long training.
B Lack of pickleball facilities.
C Absence of social interaction.

24 What should be done, according to Patrick, to help develop pickleball further?
A More pickleball clubs ought to be established.
B Young players should get support to become professionals.
C More international championships should be organised.

25 What are Patrick's immediate goals in the future?
A To enter more competitions.
B To be an ambassador of the sport.
C To represent his country at the Olympics.

READING PAPER

Task 1 (Questions 1-12)

You are going to read an article in which people talk about modern technology. For each question (1-12), choose one person from A-F. There is an example at the beginning (0→A).

Modern technology

A Arthur

Well, things are certainly changing, aren't they? They say this is the greatest thing since the Industrial Revolution. These days everything is only a click away. And I know social media gets a lot of bad press, but anything that makes us communicate more is alright by me. Maybe we could do with a few rules to protect more vulnerable people. And now that everything is online and can be attacked by hackers – from a bank account to an electricity grid – I think the most important activity is to focus on making the digisphere a safer place. Would you agree?

B Betty

First off, can I just say that I'm an unapologetic geek. I study computer sciences at uni, and eat and breathe information technology, social media, the internet, and so on. I've even got Gran and Granpa into it. They can't live without their Facebook now. I agree we need to do something about Google, Apple and Amazon being too big and not paying enough taxes. They can get away with anything! And, sure, the pace of modern life may be too quick for some. But you have to change with the times if you want to survive.

C Carlota

The whole digital business makes me a bit uneasy. There is a compelling case, backed up by plentiful research that apps like Facebook, Instagram and TikTok can make insecure teenagers anxious and depressed. I strongly believe this issue should be addressed. And everything is moving so fast these days it's impossible to keep up, and not get stressed sometimes. We are humans, after all, not robots. It's not all bad though, with all that free information, free music, and entertainment. And we don't have to go to work anymore. We can do it from home.

D Damien

You only have to go back 30 or 40 years to realise just what an amazing thing information technology is. I mean, information is power, and before the internet only powerful people had access to it. These days we all do. Obviously we're on a learning curve and there's a lot to do. It's just not right that we can switch on music like tapwater and the artists get no benefit. That's just stealing. YouTube and Spotify should pay creators of artistic content. Unfortunately, that means we'll all have to pay too.

E Ezra

I suppose it depends on what generation you are, whether you're a so-called digital native or digital immigrant. My mum and dad love Facebook, but my generation wouldn't touch it, we use Instagram or TikTok instead. And then there are my grandparents, who still watch telly and listen to the radio. They reckon digital entertainment is rubbish compared to the old school. And I have to agree. The problem with user content is that too many users don't have any talent.

F Freya

It's hard to say. On the one hand, the possibilities of digital technology have improved our lives immeasurably. We can work from home, keep in touch with our kids, buy everything online, and entertain ourselves with a mere click. On the other, social media has destroyed people's lives and robots have taken our jobs. Also, technology has privileged some people over others, and no one talks anymore – they 'chat' or 'text' or 'post'. Which are all negative effects of technology. I suppose what I'm trying to say is that the digital revolution is both good and bad at the same time.

Which person says...

0 everything is easy to get? → A
1 information technology has made the world more democratic?
2 social media is generally good for us?
3 social media causes mental health problems?
4 the biggest concern is cyber-security?
5 digital technology causes unemployment?
6 technology has raised the level of inequality?
7 the big tech companies have become too powerful?
8 Facebook is for middle-aged people?
9 their grandparents are addicted to social media?
10 digital technology has resulted in lower quality entertainment?
11 music streaming is equivalent to theft?
12 things are changing too quickly?

Task 2 (Questions 13-18)

Read the text below. For each question (13-18), choose the correct answer (A, B, C or D).

A sudden genius

Derek had just left a job with a mobile communications service when he decided to visit his mother and friends back in Sioux Falls. During an indoor pool party, which his friend Rick was throwing to please a girl he was hopelessly chasing, Derek began doing backflips off the edge of the pool. Completely oblivious to the keen interest of the ladies around him, he moved down the shallow end of the pool shouting for someone to hurl a football over the water, so he could make a leaping catch. He slapped his face on the water surface, dove and hit his head on the concrete 3 feet below.

Ignoring Derek's unwillingness to see a doctor, his mother took him to the hospital where a CT scan of his bruised and swollen head showed he'd suffered a severe concussion. No sign of internal bleeding was evident but doctors kept him there overnight for observation. He was released the next morning to his mother's house where he slept for the better part of five days.

Feeling much better despite a persistent headache, Derek visited Rick to say goodbye before heading back to Colorado. After a short conversation, Derek noticed a small Casio keyboard across the room and his fingers started to twitch. "As we were talking, I kept looking over at the keyboard." says Derek. "I was just drawn to it." Since the incident, he'd been seeing what looked like black-and-white squares scrolling from left to right across his mind. He had thought it was just fogginess that would go away. As he approached the Casio, it was as if his body was intuitively reading them as notes or groups of notes. His once trembling fingers flew fluidly across the keys, releasing an unstructured and new, yet melodic, piece of classical music.

In the weeks that followed, Derek gradually lost 35% of his hearing, started getting debilitating headaches and to his utter horror became extremely sensitive to light, especially fluorescents. Still, nothing compared to the fact that his mind was continuously and unbearably flooded with squares and tunes and rhythms. His hands were tapping out beats even in his sleep and he had to let the music drain from his body like a release valve. Playing was the only thing that seemed to bring him peace.

And yet, as clamorous and cramped as his mind became, he says he never once wished for the music to stop. His mother said that the pain was the price he had to pay for his wondrous gift. For a time, he was terrified of losing it – afraid that a fall, a bump on the head or a night of heavy drinking might scare off the muse. Or that it might just disappear as inexplicably as it had arrived. His curiosity was disturbed by the persistant fear that the root of it all was something deadly that would bring his life to a halt.

He was reassured when his mother found an online article explaining the phenomenon that had altered his life so abruptly. When the left hemisphere of the brain is damaged due to a blow to the head, a stroke or dementia, undamaged tissue is recruited from the right hemisphere as a way to compensate for the loss. The right side, where creativity dwells, is then released from the logical and analytical tyranny of the left, freeing the previously untapped creative potential that had been hidden there since birth.

13 Why did Derek ask his friends to throw the ball into the swimming pool?
A He wanted to play catch in the shallow end.
B He was trying to be in the centre of attention.
C The ladies forced him to do something risky for fun.
D He intended to jump after it and catch it while in the air.

14 Why was Derek kept in the hospital for the night?
A He needed a lot of sleep.
B He had lost a lot of blood.
C His mother insisted that he stay.
D He needed further medical supervision.

15 What is true of the music Derek started playing at Rick's house?
A It was a classical piece written by a known composer.
B It had a regular, recurring pattern of metre and melody.
C It was the product of images he'd seen in his mind's eye.
D It was from a music score he had found on the keyboard.

16 What was the most challenging problem for Derek after the accident?
A The music appeared without stopping.
B He suffered too many headaches.
C He had to live in the dark.
D He was partially deaf.

17 What was Derek's biggest concern?
A That he would live his life in pain.
B That his condition has no explanation.
C That he would lose his sudden genius.
D That his gift was caused by a terminal illness.

18 How can the phenomenon Derek experienced be explained?
A It is a hidden potential in the left hemisphere of the brain.
B It is the consequence of the brain's ability to recover from trauma.
C It is an error in the connection between the two brain hemispheres.
D It is a consequence of too much online research about the condition.

Task 3 (Questions 19-24)
Read the text. For each question (19-24), choose the sentence (A-H) that best fits the gap.
There are two sentences that you do not need. There is an example at the beginning (0→I).

The Lost Language of Easter Island

A wooden fish could help linguists learn more about the writing system known as rongorongo

On the outskirts of Hanga Roa, Easter Island's only town, the Museo Rapa Nui has a small but striking collection. It includes a rare female version of the monolithic statues known as moai, and sets of piercing moai eyes made from white coral and red volcanic rock. (0) I. Raised on a stand, as if held up by a proud fisherman, it is the colour of chocolate and roughly the size and shape of an oar blade.

This unique fish represents a great – and unsolved – linguistic puzzle. (19) ___. Some resemble human forms, animals and plants, while others are more abstract – circles, crosses, squares. This is rongorongo, the only indigenous writing system to develop in Oceania before the 20th century and one of the last remaining mysteries on Easter Island.

According to oral traditions, rongorongo tablets were brought to the island by the first settlers between the years 800 and 1200. (20) ___. Some believe it long predated European contact in 1722, while others argue it emerged as late as the 1770s, after the Rapanui people saw European writing for the first time during a Spanish expedition to the island.

Since then, the Rapanui population has faced disease, epidemics, piracy, slavery and religious indoctrination, leading to its inevitable decline. Sadly, the same has happened to rongorongo – only a fragmentary understanding of the script has survived among the Rapanui locals. Over the years, there have been various attempts to decipher the script, but it has proved a difficult task. (21) ___. Only 26 rongorongo objects exist, some have only a few lines of text.

A major breakthrough happened in the 1990s when the key to the script's structure was proposed. Based on years of research and contrary to some previous assumptions, it is now argued that the language's similarities with Western writing are few – mainly just the linearity and left-to-right reading direction. Rongorongo is a word-writing script and each sign represents an object whose name is to be spoken aloud. (22) ___. Building on them, the reader fills in a good deal of unwritten text from memory. And human memory is unreliable.

We still remain a long way from being able to read long passages of rongorongo. Only limited information has been gathered from Rapanui people, and most of it still cannot be identified. (23) ___. Researchers have announced an algorithm that could automatically decipher a lost language, without needing advanced knowledge of its relation to other languages. Although the researchers didn't look at rongorongo, their work could potentially help to improve our understanding of the script.

Linguists, who highlight the importance of including Rapanui people in efforts to decipher the tablets, aren't optimistic that rongorongo will ever be fully understood. Nevertheless, the indecipherable glyphs still generate significant pride on the island, as well as intrigue. (24) ___. On the other hand, the script is as much a mystery for them as for the rest of the world.

A Regardless of the word of mouth, academics disagree about when the writing system emerged.
B Claims to have deciphered rongorongo tablets have been confirmed by other linguists.
C However, these signs are merely symbolic prompts.
D It is covered with rows of stylized signs, so called glyphs.
E For the locals they are a source of great admiration and awe towards their ancestors.
F This is mainly so due to the lack of artefacts.
G It appears religious rituals were used for that.
H But there are hopes machine learning could help in the future.
I With so much to see, it's easy to overlook the carved wooden fish in a glass cabinet.

Read the text below. For each question (25-32), choose the answer (A, B, C or D) that best completes the sentence. There is an example at the beginning (0→A).

Zipper

Have you ever thought what life might be like without the humble zipper? In a stiff breeze, it's handy to have a jacket that zips (0) A. Blue jeans probably wouldn't be fun to wear without zippers either!

If you go on a camping trip, your suitcase or backpack might spill its contents everywhere (25) ___ it is zipped shut. You might also get cold at night if your sleeping bag doesn't zip up.

The inventor of the sewing machine, Elias Howe, received a patent in 1851 for an 'Automatic, Continuous Clothing Closure' but didn't market it, because he was too busy (26) ___ the sewing machine.

Over 40 years later, Whitcomb Judson improved upon Howe's idea and designed a fastener for shoes. The product was launched at the World's Fair in Chicago, but it (27) ___ much success.

The modern zipper was eventually designed in 1913 by Gideon Sundback. His design increased the number of fastening elements (28) ___ 10 per inch and included two rows of interlocking teeth and a slider. It was the first fastener to resemble a zipper. But Sundback didn't come up (29) ___ the name! The name "zipper" was developed by the company that used this device on the rubber boots they produced.

Early on, zippers were mainly used on boots and it (30) ___ another 20 years before the fashion industry began to use zippers on clothing. One of the first uses was replacing the buttons on men's trousers with zippers.

It was a long way up for this mechanical wonder that has kept our lives "together" (31) ___ many ways. The zipper was invented by several dedicated inventors, though (32) ___ convinced the general public to accept it in everyday life. It was the fashion industry that made the novel zipper the popular item it is today.

Brown rice – source of health

Whether it is for lunch and dinner or special occasions (0) N birthdays and marriages, rice is almost always a part of the menu. Rice, (33) _____, is not white in its original form. It is in the process of milling brown rice seeds and polishing them that white rice is produced. Brown rice contains the bran, or the outer layer of the rice, which is rich in vitamins and minerals that milling destroys. White rice is just brown rice with most of the beneficial nutrients removed and is (34) _____ less healthy.

Brown rice is high in dietary fibre content and other essential nutrients. It has got a lower glycaemic index than white rice. The higher the glycaemic index, the higher the chances of a (35) _____ in blood glucose levels. Raised blood glucose levels (36) _____ to diabetes, so brown rice reduces such risks.

Brown rice takes longer to digest (37) _____ its high fibre content. As (38) _____ cuts down the frequency of hunger, gaining excess weight from oily or sugary foods is prevented. Weight gain encourages the development of type 2 diabetes.

Studies have found evidence that brown rice may help (39) _____ the health of the heart and the blood vessels. It is rich in B vitamins and magnesium. The deficiency of (40) _____ two is associated with heart failure and heart attacks.

Brown rice contains a natural compound which is used in the treatment of cancers of the breast, liver, colon and blood. Studies have shown that a higher percentage of dietary fibre offers protection against some forms of cancers. Also, the polyphenols present in brown rice have antioxidant properties which prevent damage to cells.

OPĆE UPUTE

Pozorno pročitajte sve upute i slijedite ih.

Ne okrećite stranicu i ne rješavajte zadatke dok to ne odobri voditelj ispitne prostorije.

Ispit čitanja traje 70 minuta.

Ispit se sastoji od zadataka povezivanja, zadataka višestrukoga izbora i kombiniranih zadataka dopunjavanja.

- U zadatcima povezivanja svaki sadržaj označen brojem povežite samo s jednim odgovarajućim sadržajem koji je označen slovom (zadatak 1).
- U zadatcima višestrukoga izbora od više ponuđenih odgovora odaberite samo jedan (zadatak 2).
- U kombiniranim zadatcima odaberite samo jedan sadržaj koji najbolje nadopunjava tekst (zadatci 3, 4 i 5).

Pri rješavanju ovih zadataka možete pisati po stranicama ove ispitne knjižice. Odgovore morate označiti znakom X na listu za odgovore. Svaki točan odgovor donosi jedan bod.[1]

Na 2. stranici ove ispitne knjižice prikazan je način označavanja odgovora i način ispravljanja pogrešaka. Pri ispravljanju pogrešaka potrebno je staviti paraf (isključivo skraćeni potpis, a ne puno ime i prezime).

Upotrebljavajte isključivo kemijsku olovku kojom se piše plavom ili crnom bojom.

Kada riješite zadatke, provjerite odgovore.
Provjerite jeste li zalijepili identifikacijske naljepnice na sve ispitne materijale.

Želimo Vam mnogo uspjeha!

[1] Bodovi u svakoj od triju ispitnih cjelina imaju određeni udio u konačnome rezultatu.

Task 1
Questions 1-12

You are going to read an article about learning foreign languages.
For each question (1-12), choose one person from A-F.
Mark your answer on the answer sheet.
There is an example at the beginning (0→E).

Learning Foreign Languages

A Alan

For the vast majority of people in my class, one of the most common barriers to conversing in a new language is the fear of a teacher's reaction. Being a communicative type of learner, I ignore the pattern and the structure of a language, but I will use it regardless of the risk of using some awkward or incorrect word. Once, I needed to replace a broken item in a store in Spain. I had to use Spanish instead of my native English, although my speaking skills were at an elementary level at that time. As usual, I thanked the shop assistant for correcting my pronunciation.

B Ben

At the very beginning, my friend advised me to pick out 50 French words and commit them to memory in various contexts. I have also compiled a script of useful phrases I have picked up while doing the shopping or reading notices in public places. Then, in the city where I am currently living there is a regular language-immersion meet-up group with a tutor, which joins people practising the language together in a carefree way, etc. This has given me the opportunity to absorb it as often as possible in many ways. I am aware that in order to master it, I will have to focus on structures and tenses in the future.

C Celine

My teachers proposed reading comics while commuting since they use fairly simple language and my brain can easily memorise new language structures via the pictures. Now, I have moved on to adapted readers and if I don't understand a word, I can always consult the dictionary. I was advised to write the translation on the page margin. Although the first pages are fully packed, I can say I understand more with each chapter and need to look up fewer words. I also highlight the structures I think might be useful later.

D David

The written test I took the other day says I am B2 in Italian. Still, I am reluctant to engage in any sort of verbal exchange with native speakers. The other day I met an Italian colleague on the bus and he struck up a conversation. I could barely utter yes and no! All my instructors had one thing in common: they would teach us vocabulary and write endless bilingual lists of words on the board and we would have to copy them and learn by heart. Recalling a word in a real-life context is still a tough challenge.

E Eve

For me, learning a language has always been about focusing on the experiences that the new language would open up. I am a keen traveller and have volunteered in different parts of the world. This has given me the opportunity to pick up some basics in several languages. Also, my pronunciation has improved a lot with singing. I listen to the song and try to sing along and memorise the text. This has helped me to master idioms and grammar, and memorise the subtle differences in the meaning and pronunciation of words.

F Fiona

Native speakers consider me a gifted genius. If you ask me, talent is nothing without consistent hard work and expert teachers. An online language course tutor has suggested that I record myself for two to four minutes without stopping. I will describe the world around me, or give my opinion on a particular topic. Next, I will listen to the recording of my speech and notice which words I use. If I have used only familiar words, I will search for synonymous words to replace them. Afterwards, making a new recording and listening to it will prove whether I have made any progress.

Which person...

0 is an auditory learner? → E

1 believes that determination, formal education and practice lead to success?

2 has difficulty when speaking the language?

3 uses a wide range of activities to get exposed to the new language?

4 is particularly interested in expanding vocabulary?

5 is entirely self-taught?

6 doesn't worry about making mistakes?

7 is aware of multiple connotations of words?

8 likes to get feedback from native speakers?

9 has gradually improved their reading skill?

10 blames the teaching methods for lack of language competence?

11 plans to upgrade their grammar?

12 learns through images?

Woman Completes Quest to Eat One Scone in Every UK Legacy Property

There are few things more quintessentially British than afternoon tea, where pride of place is taken by a pile of warm, fluffy scones smothered in clotted cream and topped with delicious strawberry jam. Doughy, crumbly and still warm from the oven, scones are a staple in TV shows like 'The Great British Bake Off' and 'Escape to the Country'. Is it possible to have too much of a good thing?

One British woman combined her passion for scones and the country's rich historical heritage in a unique and quirky project that has been described by fellow Brits in terms ranging from "odd" to "funny in the head" but has been recorded in a popular blog. Betty Masters aimed to eat one scone in every single UK Legacy property, and she completed her decade-long 'odyssey' last week as she tucked into – predictably – a scone and cuppa with milk and sugar at a stately home in Northern Ireland. "It's all been incredibly rewarding!" said the 45-year-old travel agent, sharing her culinary achievement with a clutch of reporters from across the world, "I'm never, ever sick of scones!"

UK Legacy is a conservation organisation founded in the late-19th century that safeguards sites like castles, stately homes, beaches and acres of rolling countryside across the land. For their annual subscription of £50 per year, its 7.5 million members have a free pass to the organisation's many sites – as well as credit for contributing to the upkeep of the country's rich and varied heritage. The organisation is synonymous with respectability, volunteering and middle-class people who are choosy about the kinds of places they patronise and for whom membership is a discreet, even hidden, badge of honour. It was founded several decades ago, at a time when the luxurious world depicted in programmes such as 'Downton Abbey' and 'Poirot' was reaching its end and mounting running costs making the maintenance of grand houses and estates increasingly difficult. Thanks to its efforts, millions have been able to access these and other national treasures.

UK Legacy's popular tea shops are a valuable source of revenue, selling over 3 million scones a year. What makes the scone its best-selling item and, equally importantly, is there a correct way to pronounce it? There are two schools of thought regarding what is by now a classic question. "Scone rhymes with tone!" asserts Jessica Taylor, a 65-year-old retired physiotherapist, in the tea shop at Broome Abbey in Nottinghamshire. "Don't be daft, it rhymes with gone!" counters her colleague Pam Smith, 59, a part-time factory worker (who claims volunteering "gets her out of the house"), "She just thinks she's posh!" It is a common misapprehension. In fact, there is an even balance in pronunciations across the south of England, though Pam's predominates in Northern England and Scotland.

The gift of scone-making, both attest, lies in "cold cream, cold eggs – and colder butter," although their tried and tested hand-me-down family recipes have marked differences: Jessica swears by sultanas and a pinch of cinnamon, while Pam confides that "half a cup of grated cheddar" is what makes hers special. "Scones are everybody's cup of tea," says Betty Masters, stating that a good rise is also important. What were her standout moments from her decade of research? She mentions a Christmas pudding scone in North Wales meant for the gift-giving season that literally vanished from the shelves. And at Andrew Carnegie's birthplace in Dunfermline, there were no scones, but the millionaire's shortbread won at a contest. We end our interview in a neighbourhood café with – you've guessed it – tea and scones!

13 The author considers

A scones to be excessively British.
B scones the focal point of afternoon tea.
C British people to be very proud of scones.
D cream and strawberry jam the ultimate topping.

14 According to the author, British people

A found Betty's quest eccentric.
B considered Betty's behaviour amusing.
C thought Betty spent too much time on her quest.
D did not believe that Betty would complete the project.

15 Betty Masters

A remains a fan of scones.
B has never been ill after eating a scone.
C distributed scones to a group of reporters.
D did not believe she would complete her quest.

16 UK Legacy members do not

A mind which causes they support.
B have to show their badges on entry.
C receive public recognition for their work.
D have to pay to enter individual properties.

17 The pronunciation of the word scone is

A frequently wrong.
B acquired at school.
C governed by geography.
D an indicator of social status.

18 The scones Jessica and Pam make

A are their inventions.
B are presents for other people.
C are made from inherited methods.
D are entered in baking competitions.

The Power of Influencers

The age of digital media has seen the appearance of new opportunities for professional success, which defy traditional principles and requirements of 'making it big'. (0) ____. These individuals, who have gathered a significant following on social media platforms, hold a unique position as trendsetters and opinion leaders. The phenomenon has completely revolutionised the notion of influence, transforming the way people grasp information, make purchasing decisions and engage with brands.

So, what does it take and how is it done? Whereas some influencers can attribute their popularity to sophisticated education and exceptional expertise, others monetise their charisma or a sense of humour that enables them to capture and entertain audiences. They often focus on niches – specific segments within a broader market or field. (19) ____. By creating compelling content related to corresponding products or services, they inspire, inform and entertain millions of people worldwide.

The expansion of the influencer marketing phenomenon can undoubtedly be linked to the power of social media. (20) ____. Unlike in traditional advertising, a more personal and authentic approach to promotion is achieved. There is a sense of confidence in the person that one feels towards a trusted peer, making their recommendations and endorsements highly influential.

The most successful influencers have become powerful drivers of consumer behaviour. With their persuasive storytelling skill and as an integral part of the consumer decision-making process, they stimulate a desire for a variety of products. (21) ____. The whole idea of marketing and financial success has been changed due to this ability to shape trends and introduce new lines.

Nevertheless, the influencer industry has encountered a few challenges and ethical considerations. One concern is the issue of authenticity. (22) ____. Naturally, the followers question these individuals' credibility. Additionally, the line between organic content and sponsored posts can sometimes blur, raising questions about transparency and disclosure. As a result, regulations and guidelines regarding sponsored content have emerged to protect consumers and ensure transparency.

Alongside the rise of 'traditional' influencers with millions of followers, micro-influencers have gained prominence. (23) ____. This leads to increased trust and stronger impact. Brands are recognising the potential of collaborating with them to target niche markets effectively and create more authentic connections with consumers.

This new occupation has also influenced cultural and social norms. The advertising role has been expanded by significant input evident in shaping beauty standards, lifestyle choices, and even political opinions. Debates have been sparked about social media inauthenticity, the impact on mental health and the potential for encouraging unrealistic expectations. (24) ____.

The phenomenon of influencers has irreversibly changed the landscape of social influence. Their rise to prominence highlights the power of digital media in connecting individuals using new forms of communication. While influencers have revolutionised marketing and consumer behaviour, challenges surrounding authenticity, transparency and social impact persist. As society continues to adapt to the grip of digital platforms, understanding the role of influencers becomes crucial in navigating this dynamic and evolving arena.

A Their audiences are smaller but even more closely-knit communities of buyers with similar needs.

B That is how they foster wider audience engagement and consequently create revenue.

C They would have done anything to attract new subscribers or followers.

D The implications of this newfound power can indeed be disheartening.

E Selling products and services had always required a lot of knowledge and skill.

F The connection between influencers and followers provided there is immediate, creating a sense of intimacy and relatability many people long for.

G Some influencers have been criticised for promoting products they do not use or genuinely believe in.

H These can range from fashion and beauty to fitness, travel, or technology.

I The rise of influencers has become a defining feature of contemporary society.

Task 4
Questions 25-32

Read the text below.
For each question (25-32), choose the answer (A, B, C or D) that best completes the sentence.
Mark your answer on the answer sheet.
There is an example at the beginning (0→A).

Sleeping Octopuses

Octopuses may be many mariners' nightmares, but new research has added (0) ____ growing evidence that they may dream while asleep.

Octopuses (25) ____ to undergo two different stages of sleep: 'quiet sleep' and 'active sleep', the latter of which involves twitching body parts and rapid changes in the texture and patterning of the skin.

Researchers (26) ____ the Japanese Institute of Science claim – in addition to confirming that octopuses do indeed sleep during this active stage – they have also discovered that this stage shares many characteristics with REM sleep in humans.

Prof. Tom Roody, the study's lead author, said the team's findings were not proof that octopuses dream. "Perhaps we (27) ____ already associate certain skin patterns during wakefulness to particular situations: hunting, social displays, threat displays, and camouflage to different sorts of environments. These patterns reappear during active sleep," he said. "So, if we are looking at something like dreaming, (28) ____ I repeat, this is a possibility we do not prove in this study, they would resemble a pseudo random walk over waking experiences."

However, Roody put (29) ____ that there are other possible explanations: for example, that octopuses refine their camouflage patterns while they sleep.

When the team tapped on the tanks and watched how the animals responded, they found the octopuses showed different reactions depending on whether they were awake, in the quiet stage of sleep, or in the active stage. Every 60 minutes or so, the animals (30) ____ rapid changes of skin colour that lasted about one minute, together with changes in breathing rate, as well as body and eye movements.

What's more, if the octopuses were deprived (31) ____ sleep for two days by being tickled with a paintbrush, they subsequently showed an increased rate of active sleep. They entered the stage sooner, (32) ____ a self-regulating control – one of the key criteria of sleep.

The researchers confirmed that octopuses were indeed asleep during the active stage.

Task 5
Questions 33-40

Read the text on the next page.
For each question (33-40), choose the answer (A-M) that best completes the sentence.
There are five options that you do not need.
Mark your answer on the answer sheet.
There is an example at the beginning (0→N).

A Name Is a Name Is a Name...

What's in a name? If you (0) _____ to ask the author behind this fundamental question, the answer would quite simply be that names play no role in explaining who or what we are. Now, for the author of the question, namely (33) _____ William Shakespeare – in his 16th-century tragedy 'Romeo and Juliet' – it seemed of little importance what someone's name might mean because our names should not define who we are. Of course, we need to take (34) _____ consideration that the character of Juliet, who asks the question originally, is trying to justify her romantic interest in Romeo, who just happens to bear the last name of Juliet's family's sworn enemies.

Let us now fast-forward to a time five centuries later when researchers decided to pose the question of what influence our names had on us and, (35) _____ Shakespeare and his quite progressive world views, actually found out the opposite. Our names determine us much more than they (36) _____ ever thought. Interestingly, independent research, conducted in 2013 and 2015 respectively, found that our names determined our lives to the extent of us opting for our careers, developing talents or having interests based on our first or last names.

Dubbed nominative determinism, this phenomenon explained why there was an inordinately large number of medical professionals with such names (37) _____ Payne, Butcher or Medina, as well as lawyers named Lawrence or Laurence. But the pressure our names put on us doesn't stop there. According to the same research, even our talents and interests are affected. Therefore, someone like Usain Bolt had no other choice but to become the fastest man on the planet, (38) _____ did the poet William Wordsworth have any say (39) _____ choosing his profession. Who (40) _____ have guessed that our names play such a significant role in shaping who we are? Definitely not those who have named us.
